DARROW DROPS PARDON FIGHT IN MASSIE CASE

Navy Orders Officer to California.

BULLETIN.

HONOLULU, May 5.—(AP)—Clarence Darrow, chief counsel of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and the other "honor slayers" of Joseph Kahahawai, tonight advised his clients not to press for a pardon and take up the restoration of their citizenship rights at a later date. He denied that he had ever asked Gov. Lawrence M. Judd for a pardon. All he did, he said, was to discuss the possibility of one with the governor.

HONOLULU, May 5.—(AP)—A fight to the finish to obtain complete pardons for the four Americans who received commuted sentences in Hawaii's honor killing case was announced today as the principals prepared to leave the islands.

CLARENCE DARROW. [A. P. Photo.]

"There is no reason in the world why a person deserving punishment of no more than an hour should lose his citizenship," said Clarence Darrow, 75 year old attorney who defended the four convicted of manslaughter in the killing of Joseph Kahahawai. Darrow conferred today with Gov. Lawrence M. Judd regarding a full pardon for the quartet.

Fight for Citizenship.

"They ought to have a full pardon," he said of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and the two other navy men, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, whose ten year sentences were commuted to one hour. The commutation did not restore their citizenship.

The veteran defender and territorial attorney general, Harry R. Hewitt, engaged in an exchange over the circumstances of the petition for executive clemency that gained the four their commutation.

"They wrote that, we didn't; we just signed it," Darrow said. "When you are in a hole and somebody offers you something, you don't stop to ask for more, do you?"

By "they" Darrow referred to the office of Attorney General Hewitt, who countered by saying the petition for clemency signed by Mrs. Fortescue and the navy men was prepared by his office at the instance of the defense.

After the conference between Darrow and Gov. Judd, the latter said the attorney discussed a possible request for a pardon, but did not actually ask one. The governor said Darrow requested another conference Saturday.

Gov. Judd joined Mr. Hewitt in saying the request for the commutation had been sponsored by the defense and not by the administration. The governor said his attitude on commutation had not changed.

"At no time was a pardon mentioned," he said.

Mind Open to Arguments.

Asked if he had made up his mind on the question of a pardon, Gov. Judd said his mind was open to arguments.

Mrs. Massie today said she and her husband as well as Mrs. Fortescue, Jones and Lord would sail for San Francisco Sunday on the liner Maiolo. This followed word from Washington that Lieut. Massie had been transferred to the California city and that orders were expected which would take Jones and Lord, the two sailors, back to the mainland.

The young victim of the brutal attack which led to the killing of the native thus indicated she would not remain here to appear once more against the four remaining men still facing criminal assault charges. Without Mrs. Massie, the territory would not prosecute the group.

Prosecutor John C. Kelley indicated late today that the men would not be retried.

Massie Assigned to Pacific Coast.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—Obviously intent upon concluding the Fortescue-Massie slaying case, Secretary of the Navy Adams today said no disciplinary action would be taken against naval personnel involved and Lieut. Thomas H. Massie was ordered to duty in San Francisco on recommendation of Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of the Honolulu naval district.

FAILS TO RETURN RANSOM GIVEN BY MRS. M'LEAN

Editor's Wife Bares Secret Deal.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Another lurid chapter was added to the spectacular detective career of Gaston B. Means today when government agents lodged the former department of justice investigator in jail on charges of having swindled Mrs. Edward B. McLean, Washington society woman, out of $100,000 on the pretext he could recover the Lindbergh baby.

Means, remembered as the stormy petrel of the senate investigation of Harry Daugherty, attorney general during the Harding administration, was taken into custody after Mrs. McLean, wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, had sworn out a warrant charging the former inmate of Atlanta penitentiary had refused to return $100,000 entrusted to him as ransom money for the return of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr.

Means Given $100,000 in Cash.

According to a statement made tonight by District Attorney Leo A. Rover, Means told Mrs. McLean early in March that he was in touch with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby. On his assertion he could obtain the baby's release for $100,000, Mrs. McLean went to the president of a local bank and obtained $100,000 of her own money in currency. This money was turned over to Means, Mr. Rover said, and for the next few weeks Means simply stalled Mrs. McLean along. Finally, added Mr. Rover, she swore out a warrant, but the money has not been returned.

This brings to $150,000 the amount known to have been paid out in vain efforts to obtain the Lindbergh baby's return.

Department of justice investigators said tonight that Means had never had the remotest clew as to the whereabouts of the missing Lindbergh child. Officials of the department, as well as District Attorney Rover, continued their investigation tonight in an effort to locate the missing money. The absence of the district attorney on a secret mission tonight led to reports he had hopes of locating the ransom money, but this lacked confirmation.

Means Held in $100,000 Bonds.

Means was questioned by department of justice officials, but what he told them was not made public. Later he was taken before United States Commissioner Needham Turnage, where he pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny after trust. His bond was set at $100,000 and the hearing scheduled for next Tuesday. Questioned by reporters, the big good natured former government agent hinted that he might have a real story.

"I don't break confidence," he said. "If the people that I have been dealing with tell the truth you won't need any story from me. If they do not, come around and I will give you a real story."

Similar to "Jafsie" Efforts.

One of the weird stories circulated tonight was that Means represented that the gang he had contacted was the same outfit which Dr. John F. ["Jafsie"] Condon had dealth with when he paid $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money, only to learn he had been duped. Inquiry at Trenton, N. J., disclosed that officers investigating the Lindbergh case asserted they had no knowledge of the activities carried on by Means.

The story of Mrs. McLean's emergence in a rôle similar to that played by "Jafsie," who threw $50,000 in small bills over a cemetery wall in a futile effort to ransom the son of Col. Lindbergh, began immediately after the kidnaping. Its characters include a Catholic priest, the Rev. Francis J. Hurney; a naval officer, Capt. Emory S. Land, aid to Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations; the bank president, and Albert Fox, Mrs. McLean's attorney.

Means Produces "Kidnaper."

The locale included Aiken, S. C., El Paso, Tex., and Mexico, as well as the national capital. The priest acted as an intermediary on several occasions, but just whom he met was not made clear. Mrs. McLean made hurried trips to Aiken and El Paso to keep rendezvous with the purported kidnapers, one of whom, allegedly

CANDIDATE FINDS IT'S HARD TO FIND THE RIGHT STATE

Charleston, W. Va., May 5.—[Special.]—Samuel E. Bowen of Charleston, who is a Democratic candidate for secretary of state and a lifetime resident of West Virginia, went campaigning with his manager up in the eastern panhandle of West Virginia.

They entered a strange town, met Democratic officials, and arranged for a meeting.

"What you running for?" asked a local leader.

Bowen told him, and the man replied: "You're all wet. This is Virginia."

Chagrined, Bowen and his manager left. They got out of Virginia and entered another strange town. They made similar arrangements for a meeting, albeit cautiously.

And again one of the local Democrats asked him what office he was running for.

"My dear sir," said the dignitary, "you're in Maryland."

Bowen, who is a member of the house of delegates, then bought a map and came home.

Law May Bar Brood from Its Parental Roof

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan may have to turn from Blackstone to Mother Goose and look up the rhyme about the woman who lived in the shoe and had so many children she didn't know what to do to find precedents in the case which was presented to him yesterday.

JUDGE PHILIP J. FINNEGAN.

Mrs. Ellen W. Reagan, a comely widow of 49, plays the part of the woman. She has seven children and five stepchildren, but they are very nice children, several of them well known in Chicago society, and they get along amicably with Mrs. Reagan and each other. It's really the village of Riverside which doesn't know what to do.

Old Mansion Is the "Shoe."

The shoe in which Mrs. Reagan and her children live is an old mansion of some 20-odd rooms at 82 Nuttall road, Riverside. It was built in the '90s and came into the family through the first wife of Mrs. Reagan's late husband, Herbert E. Reagan, a manufacturer.

He had five children by his first marriage. Mrs. Reagan also was married before, to Joseph Sterling Goddard, a Chicago lawyer who died in 1917. They also had five children and two more sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Reagan.

Mrs. Reagan evidently is a wise mother, for the three broods of children all lived happily under the same roof until, as the poets have it, four of her daughters and stepdaughters fluttered away from the nest and down the aisles of society weddings.

Girls Marry Notables.

Caroline Goddard married Robert F. Grim, a young bond salesman. Elizabeth Goddard married John H. Silverthorne, a brother of Countess Alice de Janze. Ethel Reagan married George S. Hellyer, of the family which imports teas. Keturah Reagan married Henry Silverthorne Faurot.

But—the depression came. Bond Salesman Grim's bond house closed. Son-in-Law Hellyer was learning the tea business, at no salary at all, living on an inheritance from his father. Son-in-Law Silverthorne's business wasn't so good, either, a family friend said. All three couples returned to Mrs. Reagan and the Riverside mansion.

Mrs. Reagan was equal to the situation. She called in builders, who changed partitions, installed new bathrooms and kitchenettes and sleeping porches, and soon there was room for everybody.

Students Coming Home.

In addition to the three young couples, Joseph Sterling Goddard Jr. will be home from the University of Pennsylvania; Lester O. Goddard from Yale; Jacqueline Goddard from Stewart Hall in Virginia, and Ruth Reagan from Children's hospital in Boston, where she is training as a nurse, when vacation time rolls around.

Mrs. Reagan herself will be home soon from Rome, where she spent the winter with Barbara Reagan, her stepdaughter, and her two youngest sons, Benjamin, 11, and Herbert, 13 years old. Another stepson, Archibald Reagan, lives in Oak Park.

Everything was going nicely until an unidentified Riversider went for a stroll one Sunday afternoon recently and sighted the Reagan homestead.

"Tut, tut," he muttered, "that's an apartment house."

Law May Divide Family.

He hied him to S. Ashley Guthrie, village attorney, for apartment houses are forbidden in Riverside, and a village ordinance prohibits more than one family living in a house. The village started suit for a mandatory injunction against Mrs. Reagan, demanding that she tear out all the partitions, extra bathrooms, and kitchenettes, and send her married daughters out into the world, depression or no depression.

Judge Finnegan set hearing on the case for June 1.

NEW GLASS BRICKS ADMIT LIGHT, BUT YOU CAN'T SEE IN

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—Glass bricks, somewhat stronger in compression than clay bricks, that freely admit light but prevent outsiders from looking through them, were demonstrated tonight at a meeting of the American institute by A. E. Marshall, consulting chemical engineer for the Corning Glass works.

"The glass bricks," Mr. Marshall said, "have a high degree of heat resistance. They will be used for decorative and ornamental effects, and will be especially useful for buildings with modern air conditioning, as they will permit full natural daytime lighting without the heat losses caused by most types of windows."

Paschen Hid $500,000 in Bank, Charge

Groundwork upon which government prosecutors hope to pile evidence to show that Chris Paschen had a secret $500,000 bank account in 1927-'28 was laid yesterday before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, where the building commissioner during the last Republican administration is on trial charged with evading payment of about $114,000 income tax.

CHRIS PASCHEN.

Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green found the going hard in this preliminary work, for his every step was contested by Defense Attorney Cassius Poust. But at the close of the day the existence of fifteen checks totaling $48,000 had been made known to the jury.

"A. B. Anderson" Held Paschen.

Through subsequent witnesses Green hopes to be able to show that these found their way into a bank account allegedly maintained by Paschen in the Foreman State National bank under the fictitious name of "A. B. Anderson." Mrs. Paschen's maiden name was Annette Anderson.

Yesterday's checks have not yet been introduced into evidence and they are not payable to Paschen, but the prosecutors' hopes that they will be able to show they were intended for Paschen were made known when Green presented them, one by one, to John Sullivan, a former vice president in the Foreman bank, which was absorbed by the First National bank last year.

The first check was on the city of Chicago, made out to "L. Kuhn & Co.," for $7,420. It was brought to Mr. Sullivan's desk by Joe Sladek, Paschen's "manager," who sought to cash it. The "Kuhn" concern was not a familiar one to the banker and he demurred.

Operates Three Companies.

"That's one of Paschen's affiliated companies," Sladek told Sullivan, the latter testified, and the check was cashed. Others of the checks were made out to the "Commercial Building and Cleaning company" and the "Commonwealth Cleaning company." These three concerns were operated by Paschen, according to the opening statement made by Assistant Attorney General William J. Froelich, and did much of their business for the city. Sullivan's explanation was the same for each check—he approved it for cashing when told by Sladek that the concern to which it was made payable was "affiliated" or "associated" with Paschen.

At the close of court Assistant United States Attorney Sam Clawson had concluded showing through the testimony of Byron B. Kost, former teller at the Foreman bank, that the checks had been cashed at the bank, guiding Kost through the teller's sheets until he had located the checks.

Trace Course of Checks.

The next step anticipated is an attempt to show that they found their way into the "A. B. Anderson" account. The government has not made known how this is to be accomplished, but it was recalled that in another income tax prosecution the method used was to show that, on the day the check was cashed, the deposit of an identical amount was shown on an account.

CONGRESS GETS MESSAGE: CUT FOR ECONOMY

Demands 331 Million Expense Slash.

Put Heart in Country!

"Nothing is more necessary at this time than balancing the budget. Nothing will put more heart into the country than prompt and courageous and united action in enacting the legislation which this situation imperatively demands and an equally determined stand in defeating unwise and unnecessary legislation."

* *

"The government cannot be dictated to by organized minorities. Such action will undermine all popular government." —President Hoover.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Official Washington boiled over today on the subject of drastic reduction of the cost of government and the necessity of balancing the budget.

President Hoover in a special message to congress read the riot act to the house for various sins of commission and omission in this field, whereupon angry debate flamed up in both houses.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, assailed the President for lack of definite notions on economy and budget balancing and Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] while defending the President blurted out his wish for a Mussolini in our government in this critical hour—not an actual Mussolini but a man of courage and determination.

Reed and Robinson Confident.

But Senator Robinson bespoke Democratic confidence that the budget would be balanced and Senator Reed breathed assurances that there is going to be no cheap money legislation, no inflation such as Europe apparently fears the United States is headed for. The senate is going to block effectually the inflation moves originating in the house, Mr. Reed assured.

The Hoover message took the house to task for its emasculation of the omnibus economy program, for its evisceration of the original billion dollar tax bill framed by the treasury and the ways and means committee and for its failure to provide for balancing the budget.

These acts of the house, together with its passage of the Goldsborough bill to boost commodity prices through federal reserve manipulation of credit, its enlargement of expenditures on veterans' benefits, its passage of the 132 million dollar additional federal aid road construction bill, its refusal of adequate authority for abolishing unnecessary bureaus and commissions, and its threat of soldier bonus legislation involving "uncontrolled inflation"—all these, said the President, have diminished public confidence and retarded economic recovery.

Asks Repeal of Veterans' Aid.

Just before transmitting his message the President received Archibald Roosevelt, son of President Roosevelt, who, on behalf of the national economy committee, presented a petition for the repeal of legislation granting more than 450 millions in benefits to war veterans whose disabilities are unconnected with military service. The petition gave details of what the committee called "a vast legalized racket foisted on the people," accounting for nearly half of the one billion dollars expended annually for veterans' benefits, which constitutes one-fourth of the federal budget.

The ways and means committee of the house considered behind closed doors the bill for immediate cash redemption of the soldier bonus and prepared to act on the measure tomorrow.

Only 30 Million Dollars Saved.

It transpired that the savings left in the economy bill passed by the house this week have dwindled to less than 30 millions as a result of the discovery of duplication of reductions already instituted in the current appropriation bills.

The President in his message this afternoon appealed to congress for a tax bill that will balance the budget "so designed as to distribute the burdens equitably and not to impede economic recovery." Then he urged economies to the extent of 331 millions to be achieved by reducing appropriations 230 millions below his own budget estimates, and by reorganizations that would save another 100 millions. He admitted, however, that deficiency appropriation of 70 or 80

HOOVER'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS DEMANDS BALANCED BUDGET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Following is the text of President Hoover's message to congress assailing the house for wrecking the economy bill and its failure to balance the budget by sound revenue measures:

"I should not be discharging my constitutional responsibility to give to the congress information on the state of the Union and to recommend for its consideration such measures as may be necessary and expedient, if I did not report to the congress the situation which has arisen in the country in large degree as the result of incidents of legislation during the last six weeks.

"The most essential factor to economic recovery today is the restoration of confidence. In spite of the unquestioned beneficial effect of the remedial measures already taken and the gradual improvement in fundamental conditions, fear and alarm prevail in the country because of events in Washington which have greatly disturbed the public mind.

Scores House Action.

"The manner in which the house of representatives rejected both the revenue program proposed by the treasury and the program unanimously reported by the committee on ways and means, the character of the tax measures passed, the action of the house which would increase governmental expenditure by $132,000,000 for road building, the action further to enlarge expenditures in nonservice connected benefits for the veterans' bureau at the very time when the house was refusing to remedy abuse in these same services, the virtual destruction both the national economy program proposed by the executive officials and the program of the special house committee on economy, the failure of the house to give adequate authority for early reduction of government bureaus and commissions, the passage of legislation by the house placing the burden of impossible execution upon the federal reserve system over the protest of the federal reserve board, the threat of further legislation looking to uncontrolled inflation have all resulted in diminishing public confidence and offsetting the constructive, unified efforts of the executive and the congress undertaken earlier in the year for recovery of employment and agriculture.

"I need not recount that the revenues of the government as estimated for the next fiscal year show a decrease of about $1,700,000,000 below the fiscal year 1929 and inexorably require a broader basis of taxation and a drastic reduction of expenditures in order to balance the budget.

"Nothing is more necessary at this time than balancing the budget. Nothing will put more heart into the country than prompt and courageous and united action in enacting the legislation which this situation imperatively demands, and an equally determined stand in defeating unwise and unnecessary legislation.

"Most expeditious action is necessary if the revenues, appropriations, economy legislation and a balanced budget are to be attained before the beginning of the new fiscal year on July 1 next.

Tells What Is Required.

"The details and requirements of the situation are now well known to the congress and plainly require:

"1. The prompt enactment of a revenue bill adequate to produce the necessary revenue and so designed as to distribute the burdens equitably and not to impede economic recovery.

"2. A drastic program of economy which, including the savings already made in the executive budget of $369,000,000, can be increased to exceed $700,000,000 per annum. Considering that the whole federal expenditure, except about $1,700,000,000, is for uncontrollable obligations, this would represent an unprecedented reduction.

"Such a program, to accomplish its purpose, must embrace the rejection of all measures that increase expenditures unless they be for undoubted emergency; the reduction in appropriations now pending below the figures submitted in the executive budget on Dec. 9 last; a reconsideration of the legislation covering those economy projects which require repeal or amendment to the laws; and an effective grant of authority to the executive to reorganize and consolidate and eliminate unnecessary government bureaus and establishments.

"In the category of appropriations within the authority of the appropriation committees those committees have given some months to devoted consideration of the executive budget, which as I have said in itself carried a reduction of $369,000,000 below the expenditures of the current year.

"Considering the situation in the country and a study of the results so far attained by the committees, together with a review by the executive officials, I am convinced that, subject to the inclusion of conditions mentioned later, a reduction of at least $230,000,000 below the executive budget can be made in the supply bills [of which some $70,000,000 or $80,000,000 may be the subject of deficiency bills at the next session].

Asks Again for 5 Day Week.

"In order to effect these economies, to preserve the efficiency of the government, and to assure the humane treatment of government employés, authority must be given to meet emergencies which may arise from such close budgeting by the transfer of not to exceed 15 per cent of any appropriation to any other appropriation within the same department, provided no appropriation is increased more than 15 per cent, but subject to the approval of the director of the budget; and to suspend the leave with pay so that the five day week and its equivalent to salaried employés can be installed where necessary.

"With the reduction proposed in the original budget, together with the further reductions here proposed, it will be necessary to discharge 50,000 to 100,000 employés, unless we divide the remaining work of the government amongst the whole of its employés just as has been done in industry.

"I know of nothing more inhuman in the present situation than for the government to add to the pool of unemployment and destitution when it is entirely unnecessary and can be provided against by the same measures which were undertaken by industry at the request of the government itself nearly three years ago.

"In the category of further economies which can only be made by changes in laws which would give authority to the executive and the appropriations committees, many items were proposed by executive officers of the government, and some portions of them were embodied in the bill presented by the special economy committee to the house or representatives.

"Less than $30,000,000 direct and definite savings were covered in the bill which finally passed the house. Many of the indeterminate and indirect savings in that legislation cannot be realized until late in the new year or after that.

"Many of the recommendations which were rejected by the house of representatives should again be considered. Aside from the economy proposals affecting employés which are here included in the above discussion of the supply bills, there are opportunities to increase the direct savings provided for in the house economy bill from $30,000,000 to from $130,000,000 to $150,000,000, plus many indeterminate items which would result in further economies.

"These savings would be over and above the amounts of savings referred to in the direct appropriations. Without going into the merits or demerits of the proposals, they do represent the correction of abuses and the curtailment of unnecessary functions of the government and embrace items that can be dispensed with during the present critical period.

Pleads for Consolidation.

"In the category of economies that can be made by consolidation, reorganization, and elimination of the less necessary bureaus, commissions, etc., the authority given in the measure passed by the house of representatives is so restricted that it cannot be made effective until late in the next fiscal year.

"In order to expedite this economy, I earnestly recommend that the executive be authorized to proceed immediately in the consolidation of public works, and personnel, partly provided in the house economy bill, public health, merchant marine, conservation, education, munitions manufacture, army and navy hospitals, aviation fields, and other specific army and navy activities which may advantageously be consolidated for the purpose of economy and more effective administration.

"The savings to be made are indeterminate but very considerable. If made by the executive action within the above direction from the congress they can be made promptly.

Uncertainty Is Disastrous.

"The imperative need of the nation today is a definite and conclusive program for balancing the budget. Uncertainty is disastrous. It must be in every sense a national program. Sectional, partisan, group, or class considerations can have no place in it.

"Ours is a government of all the people, created to protect and promote the common good, and when the claims of any group or class are inconsistent with the welfare of all they must give way.

"Various groups and sections of the country have brought insistent and delaying pressures to bear for the adoption or rejection of various projects which would yield great economy and revenue. They have not realized that sacrifice by all groups is essential to the salvation of the nation. They have not recognized the gravity of the problems with which we are confronted.

"They apparently do not know that by their actions they are imposing losses on members of their own groups and sections through stagnation, unemployment, decreased commodity prices, far greater than the sacrifices called for under these suggestions.

Minorities Cannot Dictate.

"The government cannot be dictated to by organized minorities. Such action will undermine all popular government. I know that these actions do not reflect the will of the country and I refuse to believe that the country is unable to reflect its will in legislation.

"In conclusion let me urge the national necessity for prompt and resolute and unified action, keeping constantly in mind the larger aspects of the problem and that the necessity for these measures is born of a great national emergency.

"If such a program should be agreed to by the leaders and members of both houses it would go far to restore business, employment, and agriculture alike. It would have a most reassuring effect on the country."

of the 230 millions might be necessary at the next session, reducing the savings that much.

President Asks Wide Authority.

Mr. Hoover asked for wide authority to effect consolidations and elimination of unnecessary bureaus immediately. He denounced groups of interests for blocking economies, asserting that the "government cannot be dictated to by organized minorities." The necessity for the drastic measures he urged is born, said Mr. Hoover, of national emergency.

The reading of the message in both houses touched off an explosion of wrath on the part of the Democrats who branded the document Hoover campaign literature. In the senate the Democratic attack precipitated a heated debate.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], the minority leader, started off by taking the President to task for submitting unreliable estimates of the appropriations required.

Robinson Hits Back at Hoover.

"There was never a critical time in the political history of the United States, there has never been a period or a crisis in which the opposition party in the congress have given such helpful support to an administration in the enactment of legislation; that that support has been given on the theory that it is the only course open to us who oppose the administration in a political way if we are to avoid those destructive conditions which so long have threatened and which appear so imminent," Mr. Robinson went on. "I do believe it is necessary to balance the budget; and in order to accomplish that I think we will levy taxes which will prove very burdensome, which will cause great vexation, which will stimulate the rising tide of resentment against the congress of the United States. Nevertheless the task must be performed. In doing it I should like to have those with whom I work feel that while my efforts may prove only partially effective, while they may prove feeble they are well intended and earnestly made."

Beyond Party Politics.

Beginning with the statement that he was glad Senator Robinson proposed to coöperate in balancing the budget and cutting expenditures in a spirit of nonpartisanship, Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] asserted the country was no longer interested in party politics, but was chiefly interested in having congress balance the budget and trim expenditures.

"The value of the dollar has declined sharply in recent days," said the Pennsylvania senator. "Yesterday $13,000,000 in gold left the country. Security and bond prices are falling sharply from day to day. Yet business is not so much worse than it was a few days ago to account for this loss of public and world confidence in this country's financial condition.

Due to Apprehension.

"I'll tell you the real reason for the stock market losses, the drop in the value of the dollar, and the withdrawal of foreign gold. It is due to a growing apprehension throughout this country and the world that we are talking about economy but doing nothing, and that we are not producing sound measures for producing the needed revenue for balancing the budget. The impression has gone abroad that congress does not have the courage to balance the budget and that it will accede to the demands for passage of legislation which will injure the national credit and debase the currency. This growing apprehension has injured national credit and weakened confidence to a degree we do not realize in this country.

"The world and this country are fearful we will debase the currency by passing such bills as the cash bonus measure and the Goldsborough price stabilization measure.

No Time to Sell U. S. Short.

"I'm glad to stand here and assure the world we are not going to debase the currency or leave the budget unbalanced. I'm going to say this is no time to sell America short, that American currency is not going to be debased, that the bonus and Goldsborough bills will not pass.

"The market need have no cold chills regarding the prospects for passage of legislation which will debase our currency. The Goldsborough bill would debase our currency and it will not become law. It provides for fixing prices and I want to say now that a country which cannot control the price of wheat certainly cannot hold up the whole commodity market."

Senator Reed asserted that the people of moderate circumstances would be the greatest sufferers if the currency is debased. Debts, he said, would be paid in debased currency. The man who had money in the bank would suffer as well as the owner of a life insurance policy. He added that the rich man would not be injured.

It was in answering Robinson's plea that the President send up specific recommendations for cuts in expenditures that Senator Reed became most worked up.

"The senator from Arkansas asks for specific economic recommendations," boomed Reed. "I want to say that the President suggested cuts in veterans' appropriations to the house and look what happened. Apparently the house did not have the courage to oppose the veterans' lobby.

Says U. S. Needs Mussolini.

"If this country ever needed a Mussolini that time is now. I'm not proposing that President Hoover be made a dictator at this time or that we give up our liberty. What I am saying is that if we are going to get economies enacted into law we must have one man with courage and with power to put his views into effect."

"Does the senator from Pensylvania want his references to Mussolini to stand?" spoke up Senator W. E. Borah [radical Rep., Ida.].

"What I have in mind," responded Reed, "is that what this country needs is courage in public office. We haven't been getting it from our public office holders. We have not been showing the courage which the public deserves."

As Senator Reed sat down two champions of the opposing forces sprang up. With the sinuous, rapier like style of oratory for which he is famous J. Hamilton Lewis, Democratic senator from Illinois, bent to the counter attack.

Congress, he declared, cannot carry out any program unless it has the confidence of the American people. And the factor destructive of confidence in congress, Senator Lewis asserted, is the President's permitting "that little body of gentlemen who entitle themselves the little cabinet" to tour the country claiming every achievement for the administration and blaming every failure on the Democrats.

"That little army who go fluting and piping about the country," purred Lewis, pinkly gray whiskers belligerently outthrust, "the distinguished gentlemen of the press"—an eye upward to the press gallery—"tell of their doings in large headlines which gratify their vanity.

"If the distinguished President wishes coöperation let him first recall these little gentlemen—the fifers and drummers of an empty brigade—require them to observe the manner of gentlemen, and follow the advice set forth in the message of the President himself."

Then it was Senator Hiram Johnson's turn. No rapier thrusts for the senator from California. He swung a club and his hatred of Mr. Hoover nerved his arm, keyed his voice to militancy.

Senator Johnson would be for any sort of economy that he believed to be real and against any kind that he believed a sham, but one thing had been said that he could not permit to pass unanswered. He whirled upon Senator Reed and his freshly uttered sentiments concerning a Mussolini.

Rainey Says Message Is Late.

"I recognize the faults of democracy," cried Senator Johnson. "It is unwieldy, it sometimes moves slowly, and reaches its goal by a method of trial and error. But democracy represents something bigger and nobler than any dictatorship on the face of the earth.

"I deny"—and his voice rose to a hoarse shout—"that America needs now or ever any Mussolini. Democracy is willing to do the job. To say that it needs a Mussolini is to echo the cry of every exploiter, every worshiper of mammon, is to ally ourselves with that class that believes that God created it superior to every other class and with a bounden right to manipulate the government in its own interests.

"Democracy has stood the shock of war and the threat of destruction, and it always emerged victorious. Instead of uttering lugubrious complaint, let us say that we'll rise, that we'll come through, that democracy needs no Mussolini."

When the message was read in the house, Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], majority leader, said the President's suggestions "might have been of value if the President had presented them earlier. They come now after the house has acted. I regard them as the first speech of the President of the United States in his campaign for reëlection as President."

"I want to say in answer to the gentleman from Illinois that there is not a single recommendation in the entire message that the President of the United States has not made several times in writing and in interviews in newspapers," retorted the minority leader, Bertrand Snell [Rep., N. Y.]. "He has stood for economy all the way through, but congress has not carried out his recommendations. The majority of the members on this side of the aisle have stood more for the economic bill than the members over there. I tell you that the American people will be interested in what the President has said and the Democratic party will have to answer for it."

McDuffie Asks Question.

"I would like to ask the gentleman if it is true that the President had one of his secretaries up here when we were considering this economy bill opposing one of the provisions which would have saved a hundred million dollars?" interjected Chairman McDuffie of the economy committee. "Mr. Walter Newton was here on the floor. My information is that Mr. Newton was here opposing the provision."

The reference was to the army and navy consolidation provision.

The national economy committee's petition, presented to the President by Mr. Roosevelt, says that the principle of just and fair veterans' relief has been abandoned for a "subsidy for a favored class that will destroy all confidence in the government unless it is stopped."

Send Petition to Congress.

The petition sent to the President and congress pointed out, among other things, that the federal government already had spent about six billion dollars for veterans' relief, in addition to an expenditure of more than $500,000,000 by the states, and that at this rate the government would have spent 21 billion 500 million on veterans' relief by 1945, or a sum greater than the cost of the world war.

The committee charged that "the subservience of our government authorities to the minority group receiving this subsidy, the flinching from any real effort to reduce this 1 billion expenditure is a direct cause of the depreciation of the dollar in the international exchange."

After pointing out that a saving of not less than 450 million annually could be effected by the reforms demanded, the petitioners took President Hoover, Secretary of the Treasury Mills and leaders of congress to task for failing to speak "a clear and determined word" on this subject while calling for "drastic economies."

BOMB BLAST AT SALOON CAUSES $5,000 DAMAGE

A dynamite bomb was exploded early this morning at a rear entrance of the saloon of Teddy Gudiatis, 5858 South Ashland avenue, and damage estimated at $5,000 was done to it and neighboring buildings. The bomb was placed at a door on the 59th street side of the building, and the entrance and interior walls were wrecked. Plate glass windows were blown out of several stores on the corner, and the blast was felt for the radius of a mile.

The place is in the beer territory controlled by Danny McGeoghegan, according to the police, and Gudiatis had ignored orders to buy beer from the McGeoghegan crowd.

SENATORS VOTE ANOTHER BOOST IN INCOME TAX

Plea for Restoration of Sales Levy Denied.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The senate finance committee refused today to put the sales tax back into the new billion dollar revenue bill, and voted instead to add 100 million dollars to the already overwhelming burden which the bill places on the income tax payers.

SENATOR D. A. REED.
[(C) Harris & Ewing.]

By a vote of 11 to 7, with the radical members of the committee furnishing the majority, the committee voted to restore the rates of the 1921 act, which impose a normal tax of 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of income and levy 8 per cent upon the remainder, which makes the surtax begin at $8,000 and carries it to a maximum of 55 per cent on net income in excess of $1,000,000.

Second Increase Voted.

It was the second increase in income taxes by the senate committee. The estimate of 100 millions of increased revenue was in addition to the previous increase, which in itself practically doubled the present normal income taxes and more than doubled the surtaxes of the act of 1928.

By a vote of 12 to 8 the committee turned down the sales tax, radical members opposing it on theory and others, principally among the Democrats, on the ground that the "soak the rich" coalition which defeated it in the house would still stand firm against it were the bill sent back to the house with the sales tax restored.

Calls Bill Impossible.

It was Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], who moved to restore the sales tax. Following its defeat and the passage of the higher income tax was as follows:

"The bill is becoming so bad that I feel certain the country will not permit it to be passed. It embodies no policy. It singles out particular industries for impossible burdens of taxation. It pretends to tax large incomes at confiscatory rates when all men know that large incomes are practically nonexistent. The bill as it stands will not balance the budget and it will inflict irreparable damage to the business interests of the country. We are chasing a will o' the wisp when we talk about soaking large incomes."

The sales tax proposed by Senator Reed would have been at only 1 per cent instead of the 2¼ per cent proposed in the house and all food, clothing, farm implements, and machinery would have been exempted. Such a tax, it is estimated, would have raised approximately 200 millions.

How They Voted.

The vote which disposed of the sales tax was as follows:

For—Republicans: Smoot, Watson, Reed, Shortridge, Keyes, Bingham, Metcalf, Democrat: Walsh [Mass.].

Against—Republicans: Couzens, La Follette, Thomas [Idaho], Jones. Democrats: Harrison, King, George, Connally, Gore, Costigan, Hull, Barkley.

The vote which added the increased income taxes on motion of Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] was virtually the sales tax vote in reverse. It was as follows:

For—Republicans: Couzens, La Follette, Thomas [Idaho], Jones. Democrats: King, George, Walsh [Mass.], Connally, Gore, Hull, Costigan.

Against — Republicans: Watson, Reed, Keyes, Bingham, Metcalf, Smoot. Democrat: Harrison.

Today's action probably will be the committee's last step in preparing the bill for the long debate that is due to take place on the senate floor. Only a few administrative features remain to be adjusted.

ROBBED IN FRONT OF HER HOME.

Miss Ella Kelly, 5653 South Lincoln street, yesterday surrendered a purse containing $100 and a $100 bond to a thief, who leaped from an automobile in front of her home as she was leaving the house to pay bills.

To accommodate married members of the family, Mrs. Reagan changed partitions, put in kitchenettes and sleeping porches, and added bathrooms. The Riverside village authorities claim this makes the home an apartment house and as such forbidden in Riverside. They demand the new partitions be torn out. Judge Finnegan yesterday set the case for hearing on June 17.

ATTACK VICTIM AWARDED $6,750 IN A CIVIL SUIT

Judgment for $6,750 was awarded yesterday to Shirley McCartney, 9 years old, 3934 West Ohio street, in a civil suit against Joseph De Paola, 67 years old, 3846 West Ohio street, charging criminal assault. A jury in Superior Judge Paul McWilliams' court returned the verdict.

The child testified that on Oct. 2 De Paola enticed her and her brother Elmer, 8 years old, into his home and attacked her. De Paola was originally convicted of rape, but after medical testimony the charge was changed to contributing to the delinquency of a minor. De Paola is now serving a sentence of one year in the House of Correction.

C. A. C. WANTS NIGHT PARKING BAN ENFORCED

George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, yesterday wrote to Police Commissioner John Allman and Commissioner of Public Works Albert A. Sprague urging enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting night parking of automobiles on Chicago streets.

"Ever since 1927, when it became increasingly evident that night parking was leading to a mounting number of auto thefts, increased insurance rates, serious fire and accident hazards, and offering criminals excellent hiding places, the association has been endeavoring to secure enforcement of the ordinance," Mr. Rossetter's letter read.

COUNCIL GROUP TO AIR CHARGES ON LOOP PARKING

Massen Is Ready to Hold Public Hearing.

Ald. John A. Massen [43th], chairman of the city council traffic committee, announced yesterday that he will call a meeting of his group immediately to review the charges of downtown merchants that the loop parking ban is causing a loss in their business of $75,000,000 to $80,000,000 a year.

In a letter to D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair, the alderman stated that on request from Mr. Kelly or from loop organizations he will call a public hearing at which all interested parties may present their cases. He intimated that the traffic restrictions may be changed if the loss indicated is substantiated.

"The statement attributed to you in THE TRIBUNE this morning is a severe indictment of one of the regulations [traffic] now in force," the letter read in part. "Under these circumstances I feel that I would be very remiss in my obligation to the public and to the business interests of the city if I did not immediately assure you of my willingness to promptly call a public hearing for a review of this entire situation.

"If the losses indicated are substantiated I am confident that my colleagues on the committee on traffic and public safety will recommend to the city council such remedial measures as may be consistent with public welfare."

Before Ald. Massen made public his letter Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st], who has consistently fought the present ban on loop parking for years, announced that he will submit at the next council meeting an ordinance providing for thirty minute parking in the loop.

"The loop has been turned over to the taxicabs," said Ald. Coughlin.

CUT ARMAMENT, ADJUST DEBTS, BORAH WARNS

Boost Silver Value His Third Plank.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—With the summer of 1932 destined to tell whether the world is upward bound or on its way to a still deeper depression, there are three fundamental questions which must be affirmatively settled if prosperity is to be restored. Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho] warned the world's nations today.

SENATOR W. E. BORAH.
[(C) Harris & Ewing]

Armaments must be reduced; reparations must be readjusted, the dominating, always colorful chairman of the senate foreign relations committee announced.

And as a third essential, said the senator from the silver producing state of Idaho, silver must be restored to the place it occupied before Great Britain took the lead in pushing back to the gold standard and forced India in 1925 to do likewise.

As usual the Idaho senator was persuasive. As usual the senate paid him the compliment it withholds from many of its membership. It was there in numbers and listened.

Speech Termed Well Timed.

The speech, dramatically timed, came as the President was sending his economy message to the capitol, the senate finance committee was writing the 1921 income tax rates into the revenue bill, and the Goldsborough inflation bill and the all but wrecked omnibus economy bill, both passed by the house, were waiting senate action.

"The summer of 1932," said Senator Borah, "will be one of great moment to humanity. It will mark either the beginning of economic recovery or it will denote greater distress than we have yet experienced."

"When a man is lying in bed with a broken limb and gangrene is setting in," Senator Borah declared, "he may have courage and confidence, but he also needs the surgeon."

Fundamental evils must be corrected before recovery can set in, the senator asserted. With a national wealth as great as ever—some 400 billions of dollars—the fault evidently lay, he said, not in lack of wealth, but in its faulty administration.

Cites Burden of Armaments.

Taking up the first of the world adjustments which he said must be made, Senator Borah declared:

"I do not know anything so calculated to discourage investments, so calculated to discourage those who have means as the knowledge of the fact that the burden of armaments is not only not to be lifted, but in all probability is to be increased.

"In some of these countries they are without credit, millions are on the streets, and yet the extortion for the purpose of establishing heavier and heavier armaments is to be continued."

Senator Borah declared that the masses in every country including the United States were becoming "restless and resentful."

Sees Nations Failing.

"We do not accomplish things in this country through revolution in the sense that that word is ordinarily used," he said, "but there can be no doubt of the feeling of the people that the governments are not successfully meeting the problems which now confront them."

As another evidence of Europe's state of mind, the senator recalled the failure of the recent conference to establish a Danubian customs union. The effort failed, he said, because European nations were "still imbued with the spirit which came out of the world war."

With the Danubian conference recorded as a failure Senator Borah foresaw little hope for the second adjustment which he declared the world vitally needed, that of reparations.

"It has already been foreshadowed," he said, "that the Lausanne conference cannot hope to succeed. If that should fail and the reparations question should go unsettled we have economic chaos in the heart of Europe.

"It must be apparent to all that unless those who hold in their hands the reins of power on the continent of Europe can grapple with these problems upon a wider, more tolerant and liberal basis than they have heretofore shown, the conditions in Europe will be beyond the power of language to express."

With that, Senator Borah came to his third and chief point—his argument for the restoration of silver to the position it held prior to 1925, the year that India, at Great Britain's instigation, took the first step toward going on the gold standard.

Carefully the senator from Idaho steered around "bimetallism" and "free silver." He termed his text the "maldistribution of gold and its effect upon the price of commodities."

Two Nations Hold Bulk.

He considered the eleven billion dollars of monetary gold in the world, at best, a small basis on which to rest the world's business structure. The situation was aggravated to the status of an economic catastrophe, he believed, by the fact that of this sum the United States and France, with an aggregate population of 170 millions, held 70 per cent while the one billion 500 million persons making up the remainder of the world's population must get along with only three billions of monetary gold, or something like $2 per capita.

Senator Borah held it to be significant that the flow of gold into the United States and France marked the beginning of the collapse of security and commodity prices.

"Unless the status of gold is placed in its proper perspective in world finance one of two results must happen," the Idaho senator declared. "Either the whole present economic system will collapse or all of the currency of the world will have to be detached from gold."

Should present efforts to increase the gold price of commodities fail, he warned, the United States must abandon the gold standard.

Raises Debts Question.

Senator Borah then raised the question of debts contracted when money was cheap on which payments must be made in the present day of dear money and fallen commodity values.

The debt aggregate in this country, of some 104 billions on its face, amounts to more than 140 billions on the basis of commodity prices on the dates the debts were contracted, the senator declared.

With the gold of the world virtually controlled by two nations, with tariff walls reared high, and with little chance of performing international services Senator Borah saw no means unless through an increased supply of money for the nations of the world to pay their debts.

"There must be relief from this gold mentality in some way," he declared, and he saw in England's record of improved economic conditions since she went off the gold standard last September proof that abandonment of the gold standard might lead to good instead of the distress so commonly predicted."

GETS DIVORCE

Mrs. Carlisle Sullivan Foley.

Mrs. Carlisle Sullivan Foley, daughter of Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan, yesterday was granted a divorce from Loyal Ludington Foley, president of the wholesale drug concern of Foley & Co. Superior Judge Joseph Sabath granted the decree on grounds of desertion. The suit was uncontested. Mrs. Foley testified that she was living with her parents at 3800 Sheridan road. Her husband has resided at the Drake hotel since their separation in June, 1930.

MOVE FOR HOLIDAY IN NAVAL BUILDING DEFEATED IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—An effort to scuttle the Hale naval construction bill in the senate was defeated today when an amendment by Senator Lynn J. Frazier [Rep., N. D.], intended to force suspension of naval building and army increase for a year, was beaten, 58 to 17.

Those who supported it were Senators Blaine, Borah, Capper, Frazier, Howell, La Follette, Norris, and Nye, Republicans; Bulow, Connally, Costigan, Dill, King, McGill, Thomas of Oklahoma, and Walsh of Montana, Democrats, and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor.

Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Mr.] declared that it was futile for the government to suspend army and navy construction while foreign powers were continuing to expand in both branches of their national defense.

Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.] urged an adequate navy as the best guarantee against war. He said the navy was "one of the principal protections of American prosperity, American development, and the American home."

HOUSE DEBATES ARMY BILL CUTS OF 59 MILLIONS

Measure Asks Reduction of 2,000 Officers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The war department appropriation bill carrying a reduction of 2,000 officers for the regular army was introduced in the house today under circumstances indicating its progress will be marked by acrimonious exchanges between national defense and pacifist congressmen.

As debate was begun on the measure it provided 387 million dollars for the purely military and nonmilitary activities of the war department. This figure represents a slash of $59,000,000 below the appropriations voted for the current year and a reduction of $25,000,000 below the estimates for the department as submitted by President Hoover.

Total 387 Million Dollars.

For the first time in years the funds supplied for the army's purely military activities fall below 300 million dollars. The 281 million dollars recommended by the appropriations committee compares with 334 millions appropriated for the current fiscal year. The bill carried 105 millions for nonmilitary items such as improvement for rivers and harbors. The house committee reductions accounted for approximately $25,000,000 of the 59 millions cut below last year's appropriations, the other reductions having been made by the budget director.

Cut Over 100 Millions.

A checkup on the army and navy appropriation bills disclosed that actual national defense expenditures for the next year will be slashed more than 100 millions below appropriations voted for the current year if the army and navy supply bills are enacted as written. National defense expenditures for next year would be approximately 600 millions, made up of 281 millions for the army's purely military activities and 326 millions for the navy. This compares with 334 millions voted for the army and about 380 millions for the navy for the current year.

The explosive elements in the bill include the transferring of 2,000 officers from the active list to inactive status and the suspension for one year of all summer training activities for the C. M. T. C., the R. O. T. C., and the organized reserves.

UPHOLD 12 YEAR TERM FOR HURSH IN LAND FRAUDS

The convictions of Alexander Hursh, former millionaire, who went broke in the $11,000,000 collapse of Romola Inc., and three former officials of the land company in Chicago, were upheld yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Los Angeles, Cal. Fourteen officials of the company received varying sentences for using the mails to defraud last June.

The company had sold California land to Chicago and midwestern buyers on promises that "fig, orange and peach trees would thrive almost without care." The promises did not materialize and more than $2,000,000 in civil judgments have been obtained by defrauded persons.

Former Chicago officials whose convictions were upheld are E. S. Phillips, lecturer in the Chicago land office; W. L. Jourdan, manager, and James J. Murphy, broker. Hursh was sentenced to 12 years in a federal prison.

TYDINGS WANTS HOOVER TO TELL DRY LAW VIEWS

Says Nation Is Entitled to Information.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Before applauding galleries whose occupants refused to obey Vice President Curtis' demands for order, Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem.] of Maryland, one of the senate's foremost wets, today flung out one of the bitterest attacks on official fence straddling and subservience to organized minorities ever heard in congress.

The applause began when the senator from Maryland cried out:

"If the Anti-Saloon league, so-called, could be put in a boat and sent to the north pole for a year congress would vote to repeal the eighteenth amendment in 24 hours."

Government of Minorities.

It continued as he went on with:

"The curse of America is that it is a government of sectionalism, a government of minorities. Organize ten men with a little money who can put a few advertisements in the papers or who can keep a lobby here in Washington and almost anything can be accomplished."

The applause arose again as Senator Tydings demanded to know where President Hoover stood on prohibition. If the President is going to support a modification plank in the Republican platform, as some of his cabinet officers have indicated, is he going to wait—with congress searching for such a source of revenue as legalized beer would supply—until the Republican convention to declare himself, Senator Tydings demanded.

Adopts New Tactics.

He strode into the center aisle to deliver his next blow at senators already listening in wonder as one of their most youthful colleagues forsook for the first time the bantering tactics that previously have marked his debate on prohibition.

"I know that if a vote could be had in secret," Senator Tydings continued, "in this body and in the house of representatives, this farce which we call national prohibition would not last until sundown. But we must vote in the open.

"Over on yonder hill"—he pointed in the direction of the Methodist building—"sits a little group of busy reformers who have threatened every one with dire disaster who abandons this type of prohibition.

"Have we ceased to represent the people of our country?" he demanded.

"Right" to Know Stand.

He told the senate that the people "have a right to look to the leader of the republic and to exact from him a clear cut, ringing, and unequivocal stand on this all important question."

"I say that it is beneath the dignity of that great office," he went on, "for members of the official family of the chief executive to go abroad and make public utterance as if they knew what they were saying, and then to have others situated in the official family or semi-official family say just the opposite the next day."

"I am not talking as a Democrat," he continued. "That is the last thing in my thought. I have had this thing on my chest for three months. I had hoped that from the White House something would come. But there have come only equivocations day after day."

Device Derails "L" Car; Averts Collision with Train

SENATOR NORRIS COMES OUT FOR GOV. ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.] said tonight he would not support President Hoover in the November elections, but would throw his strength behind Franklin D. Roosevelt if the Democratic party nominates the New York governor.

Norris, who bolted the Hoover standard in 1928 to support Alfred E. Smith, said the President "has not done anything he said he was going to do."

The Nebraskan insurgent Republican spoke after being told that Senator Huey P. Long [Dem., La.] had quoted him as advising that the Democrats nominate Roosevelt and urging that the Louisiana delegation to the Chicago convention cast its votes for the leading Democratic candidate.

"Senator Long saw me before he went away," Norris said, "and I expressed the opinion that the only hope of the country was for the Democrats to nominate Roosevelt.

"That would be the best way out. I didn't support President Hoover before and I don't expect to support him now.

"History has demonstrated that I was right in opposing him four years ago.

"He has not done anything he said he was going to do."

Senator Long Backs Roosevelt.

Atlanta, Ga., May 5.—(AP)—The Atlanta Constitution says Senator Huey P. Long today declared the Louisiana delegation to the national Democratic convention would support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination.

Senator Long passed through Atlanta late today en route from Washington to his home in New Orleans. In a prepared statement he said the "Roosevelt candidacy is the most probable outlook for results at this time."

$1,178,000 WILL BE PAID OUT BY 8 CLOSED BANKS

75,340 Depositors Share in Disbursements.

Eight closed banks in Cook county will pay $1,178,224 to 75,340 depositors within the next few days. The receivers of the banks were ordered yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson to make the payments as speedily as possible so that taxpayers may use the money to pay taxes before June 1 to avoid penalties.

The eight banks are the Auburn Park Trust and Savings bank, 734 West 79th street; Roseland State Savings bank, 114th place and Michigan avenue; Cheltenham Trust and Savings bank, 2900 East 79th street; Elmwood Park State bank; Park Ridge State bank, Humboldt State bank, 2722 West North avenue; South West Trust and Savings bank, 35th street and Archer avenue, and the Builders and Merchants Bank and Trust company, 5437 North Clark street.

One Is a Bain Bank.

The Auburn bank is one of the Bain banks. Receiver Irwin T. Gilruth was instructed to make a 10 per cent payment, amounting to $55,000, to the 4,640 depositors. Preferred claims of $26,000 and bills payable of $79,800 have been paid. About $60,000 will be set aside to cover preferred claims filed but not adjudicated, including a claim of $50,000 filed by County Treasurer McDonough for tax funds held in the bank. This will be the third Bain bank to pay a dividend, the Brainerd and Bryn Mawr banks having recently made 10 per cent payments.

A ten per cent payment totaling $158,537 will be paid to the 6,500 depositors of the Roseland State bank. This bank has already paid a 20 per cent dividend to the depositors.

Frank W. McKey, receiver of the Cheltenham bank, will pay 10 per cent or $24,663 to 3,200 depositors, making a total of fifty per cent, or $123,317, paid since the bank closed in June, 1931.

Payment at Elmwood Park.

Receiver Einer S. Liljeberg of the Elmwood Park bank will pay ten per cent or $57,990 to 5,200 depositors. Bills payable of $196,476 and preferred claims of $9,850 have been paid.

The Park Ridge bank, closed Dec. 18, will make a ten per cent payment amounting to $60,000 to the 5,000 depositors, after setting aside $215,000 to cover a claim of that amount made against the bank by the town of Park Ridge. Receiver H. E. Robertson said that the town's claim for preference will be fought in the courts. Bills payable of $125,465 and preferred claims of $171,582 have been paid.

Depositors of the Humboldt bank will get a ten per cent payment of $185,847, to be divided among 15,000 persons, about June 1.

The South West bank will make an initial payment of 20 per cent or $355,000 to the 8,800 depositors. Receiver Willard F. Cummings has also paid off $646,903 in preferred claims and $340,500 in bills payable. The bank closed last Oct. 9.

Receiver William H. Wade will make a second payment of 10 per cent or $283,277 to the 27,000 depositors of the Builders and Merchants bank.

DEMAND CITY USE $1,000,000 TO FEED LOS ANGELES HUNGRY

Los Angeles, Cal., May 5.—[Special.]—Boos, yells, and disturbances marked a stormy session of the board of municipal water and power commissioners when civic leaders and representatives of neighborhood clubs and business men's associations clamored in the council meeting for one million dollars to be turned over from the $5,500,000 water and power funds for use in emergency unemployment relief.

Joseph Scott, Knights of Columbus head, demanded transfer of the million dollars and said: "The money is needed to keep decent people from starving. There is no other place to turn. After all, this money belongs to the people."

Nothing was promised concerning return of the one million dollars to the water bureau for its future needs.

F. L. WRIGHT DEFENDS MODERN IN ARCHITECTURE

America is not yet ready to accept modern architecture on a large scale, Frank Lloyd Wright declared last night at a dinner of the Association of Arts and Industries at the Congress hotel. In praising modern design Mr. Wright took occasion to rap other architects whom he charged with "ignorance of construction in general."

"The modern architect," he declared, "is like the French; they can never forget and can never learn. Old architecture is no good any more; it's dead."

Mr. Wright paid a tribute to his "old master," Louis Sullivan, of Chicago, who he declared originated modern architecture, which later spread to Europe.

The symposium on architecture was on the question "Is modern architecture livable?" Alfred Granger, in replying to Mr. Wright, declared that it lacks hominess and that it is "brittle, hard, superbly sanitary but like a hospital."

Mrs. Irene Sidley, decorator, and Ernest A. Grunsfeld Jr., architect of the Planetarium, also discussed modern architecture, both being rather doubtful of its adaptability to home life on a large scale.

POLICEMAN HURT BY HOODLUMS.

Policeman Joseph Casey of Marquette police, was cut on the face yesterday when three men he sought to question at 43d street and Wentworth avenue shattered the windshield of his automobile with a bullet.

JOLIET POLICE GET CLEWS TO BOY'S KIDNAPERS

Chief of Police N. J. Fornango of Joliet said last night that important clews to the kidnapers of 22 year old Gustave Miller have been found and that "important developments" may be expected within twenty-four hours. He refused to be more specific.

Young Miller, son of Max Miller, owner of a chain of groceries and bottling goods stores, was kidnaped April 28. Since then his relatives have been deluged with demands for ransom, most of which came, apparently, from swindlers not involved in the kidnaping.

Max Miller has received communications saying his son might be found in the west side haunts of Chicago's 42 gang. Other writers assert the gang that kidnaped the Lindbergh baby also seized young Miller. Chief Fornango has informed Detroit police that there seems to be a basis for this assumption.

700 CITIES ASKED TO JOIN IN WAR ON TAX WASTE

Middle West Conference Appeals to Voters.

A call was issued yesterday to business leaders in more than 700 cities throughout the country to join in the movement launched by the middle west tax conference last March to relieve the country of a large part of its tax burden through drastic curtailment of governmental expenditures.

The latest development in the drive against high taxes was a letter sent out by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, asking chambers of commerce and business organizations to participate in nation-wide massmeetings during the week of May 9.

Demands Economy Showdown.

Mr. Rossetter in his letter stated:

"The recent talk about federal economy—growing out of popular protest against the levy of more than one billion dollars of new and increased federal taxes in advance of maximum reduction of expenditures—now has come to a head. Based upon conferences with the executive branch of the government, the house economy committee has drafted a bill designed to effect very considerable retrenchment in addition to the reduction of $369,000,000 in the original budget, the $150,000,000 of cuts in the supply bills effected by the house, and the further cuts of the supply bills ordered by the senate.

"Every dollar cut from expenditures is a dollar which does not have to be raised in new or increased taxes, and can be left in the channels of productive private industry. If this bill fails the budget can be balanced only by new taxes to meet the remainder of the prospective deficit.

"The reasons are very plain why such community meetings, sponsored by chambers of commerce, should be held. The probable effects resulting from the execution of such a plan on a nation-wide scale are readily apparent.

Urges Public Protests.

"There is a conviction among a large group in the house that the country is in earnest in its demand for drastic retrenchment of federal expenditures. A pertinent if not controlling question which every congressman will want answered before he votes for such a measure might be phrased as, 'Will the people, whose letters and telegrams indicated they were so strong for economy when it was a general proposition still have the same feeling when economy is spelled out in specific terms'?

"The legislative journey of any such bill will not be easy. No proposed saving lacks opponents. They will state their case with maximum pressure. They may carry the day with congress simply because the great body of the people do not go to the trouble to make known their advocacy of economy. The answer is in the hands of the ordinarily silent body of taxpayers and business interests in your city, our city, and the other cities, villages, and rural settlements of the country. If business and taxpaying interests do not now show concerted opinion they scarcely should complain against any tax which would have to be levied in lieu of such economies."

NARCOTIC AGENTS SEIZE MERCHANT ON DOPE CHARGE

The arrest of Samuel G. Houston, 40 years old, president of S. Houston & Son, commission merchants at 157 South Water market, on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act, was revealed yesterday when he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. Preliminary hearing was set for May 18, and bond fixed at $1,000.

Houston was arrested Wednesday after opium worth $3,000 had been sold to H. B. Westover, chief of Chicago narcotic agents. Four Chinese were also arrested and will have preliminary hearings on May 18.

Votes Against U. S. Pay Cuts Liven Three Congress Races

Prospects for a fight on congressmen who voted to exempt salaries of $2,500 and under from a proposed 11 per cent cut were seen yesterday in the statements issued by opponents of sitting congressmen. The votes of Congressmen Frank R. Reid [Rep., 11th dist.], John G. Allen [Rep., 14th dist.], and J. Earl Major [Dem., 21st dist.] were discussed by the men who will oppose them in the November election.

The Illinois delegation in the lower house at Washington was divided on this question, which was raised through an amendment offered by Congressman Fred A. Britten, Republican, of the 9th district. In consideration of proposed slashes in the national budget in the interest of economy a general salary reduction of 11 per cent was contained in the appropriation bill as it emerged from the committee of the whole. Britten's motion was to exempt salaries of $2,500 and under and this prevailed by a vote of 238 to 154, with party lines counting for little.

Reid's Opponent Active.

James A. Howell of Elgin, Democratic nominee who will oppose Congressman Reid in the November election, issued the following statement regarding Reid's vote for the Britten amendment:

"Showing the same disregard for the necessity of economizing in government expenditures as he has exhibited toward the evils that have resulted from prohibition, my opponent for congress in the 11th district voted consistently against the recommendations for economy submitted by the recognized leadership of his own party.

"A prudent legislator ought to advocate and support diversified legislation. With such a large number of citizens working at reduced wages scaled down to affect economies in business and so many more out of employment it is unthinkable that a conscientious congressman would fail to vote in favor of at least some reasonable measures aimed to reduce charges that the people ultimately must pay."

Must Cut U. S. Costs.

Chester Thompson of Rock Island, Democratic nominee who will oppose Congressman Allen, commented as follows:

"Seeking office on a platform of strict economy in government, I realise that costs of government must be reduced at once if the stability of government itself is to be maintained. Needless commissions, boards, bureaus, and committees, should be abolished without further delay and this includes the prohibition enforcement department.

"With drastic economies being effected in private businesses the federal government must follow suit and give the people government that they can afford to pay for under existing economic conditions."

Roy M. Seeley of Springfield, Republican nominee against Congressman Major, made the following statement:

"The vote of my opponent, J. Earl Major, congressman from the 21st district, on the economy budget is tantamount to turning his back on the appeals of the taxpayers for relief from the high costs of government.

"Instead of remaining passive during past congressional terms he should have devoted some of his time, in conformity to the preferential vote of his district, toward favoring the legal manufacture and sale of beer and providing a tax on same instead of contributing to the national deficiency by voting for large prohibition appropriations."

SENATE SLEUTH, HERE, DENIES PIT QUIZ IS PLANNED

The arrival in Chicago yesterday of W. H. Baldwin, chief investigator for the banking committee of the United States senate, which has been delving into short selling on the New York Stock exchange, brought rumors and denials among Board of Trade members that speculative trading in wheat here was to be investigated.

Baldwin, reached at the Palmer house last night, declared that "no inquiry into grain trading is planned as yet." He declined to comment further, but it was understood that he expected to gather names and information about stock market operators in Chicago.

Peter M. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, declared last night that no inkling had reached him that a senate investigation of the Board of Trade was contemplated. He added that he could see no reason for such a step, since the government has for years regulated the various grain exchanges and obtains a daily report of all transactions by members of the exchange. Mr. Carey said, however, that the board would welcome an investigation by the senators if they wish to make one.

WOMAN BURNS TO DEATH.

Rock Island, Ill., May 5.—[Special.]—Mrs. Wilbert Mungerson, 28, died in St. Anthony's hospital here today as the result of burns suffered yesterday when she attempted to pour gasoline in a kitchen range at her farm home near Preemption. Mrs. Mungerson ran screaming from the house and leaped into a water tank.

DENY REPORTS MRS. DAHLBERG HAS REMARRIED

Reports that Mrs. Bror Dahlberg, divorced wife of the head of the Celotex company, had remarried in New York City last Tuesday and sailed yesterday on the Bremen with her new husband, were denied in New York and Chicago last evening.

Mrs. Dahlberg's name had been linked with those of Prince Sapieka of Poland and "Dollie" Weisberg of 885 Rush street, reputed gold coast speakeasy proprietor.

Prince Sapieka is financial advisor to the Polish embassy. Through his secretary, he said, he did not even know Mrs. Dahlberg. Weisberg, interviewed by ship reporters as he boarded the Bremen, admitted he knew Mrs. Dahlberg but denied any wedding had occurred. Several reporters, however, said a woman resembling Mrs. Dahlberg hurried aboard ship and entered the stateroom adjoining Weisberg's.

A 'LET GEORGE DO IT' ATTITUDE PUT CRIMP IN WORLD

At Least, Lloyd George Thinks So.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 5.—An extremely gloomy picture of world conditions was drawn by David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister of England, today at a luncheon of the Foreign Press association in London.

"Can any one say he is in any better shape than he was ten years ago?" Lloyd George asked. "Economically and financially the people are in a worse condition. Over 20,000,000 now are unemployed and countries which ten years ago were as firm as a rock now are reeling. Trade restrictions, customs barriers, quotas and exchange regulations are strangling international trade.

"Is there any real improvement in international relations? Take the test of armaments. They are bigger, more powerful, and more shattering than ever before. There is complete agreement that we must have disarmament, but there is also an equally complete agreement that disarmament must be accomplished by somebody else. There is a complete agreement that we must remove the barriers against trade, but an equally complete agreement that some one else must do it.

"Years ago there was agreement between the late Aristide Briand of France and myself on what must be done so that the poor nations of Europe would have strength to recover from their terrible wounds. We appealed to Europe. It was of no use then to appeal to America. I have no doubt that America would listen now, but poor Briand has been swept away and I didn't survive very long.

"We decided that there must be a great conference of banks to devise what was to be done about gold and currencies. That was ten years ago, but the conference never met. Will it meet this year or next? Until it meets we are leaving unsettled one of the most vital questions affecting the recovery of the world, but perhaps it is eleven years too late.

"We proposed wiping out the war debts so the world could start afresh, but the proposal was received in cold contempt and freezing antagonism."

BRITAIN TO AIR WAR DEBT BEFORE INTEREST IS DUE

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—Great Britain's war debt and reparations policy will get another airing in the house of commons before another payment of interest is made on the British war debt to the United States. Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, made a promise to that effect to a questioner today.

The chancellor made it plain, however, that the sanction of parliament would not be sought before any further payment was made on the American interest. The next payment was due on June 15, but was postponed by the Hoover moratorium. The next thereafter is due Dec. 15.

Simultaneously responsible government officials characterized published reports in the United States that Great Britain will ask a 25 per cent reduction in war debts and reparations at Lausanne next month as "an invention." It was reiterated that Great Britain's fundamental debt policy is total abolition of war obligations along lines of the Balfour note.

STATE DEMOCRAT BOSSES PLAN VICTORY DRIVE

Agree to Create Women's Organization.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 5.—[Special.]—The same spirit of confidence proclaimed at the party's state convention last Friday radiated today from the organization meeting of the Democratic state central committee as it planned the operations leading up to the election of Nov. 8.

"The sentiment is here," was the substance of remarks by speaker after speaker, "and it is our job to see that it gets into the ballot box. Only overconfidence or sheer laziness can deprive us of victory."

Create Women's Group.

In addition to electing its officers and performing other regular duties the committee at its meeting in the St. Nicholas hotel authorized the appointment of a managing committee to handle the campaign and the creation of a women's organization throughout the state. Mrs. Dorothy Kaye of Watseka was assigned to the latter task.

Almost complete attendance, an unusual thing when such meetings as this frequently are routine affairs, was shown when the veteran chairman, Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, now the nominee for lieutenant governor, called the meeting to order. As the first business Donovan was reelected unanimously.

Elect Other Officers.

On the same motion the following officers also were elected: Vice chairmen, Leo J. Slaski, Chicago; John W. Yantis, Shelbyville, and Patrick G. McGuire, Chicago; secretary, Edward P. Allen, Quincy, and treasurer, P. A. Nash, Chicago. The reelection of Allen was of interest because he managed the governorship campaign of Bruce A. Campbell and because he told the committee that he is now wholeheartedly with the ticket.

The move for the revival of the former system of having a women's organization in every congressional district downstate came at the suggestion of Donovan, who said that he had been swamped with letters from women wanting to take part in the battle.

Resolutions by Edmond L. Mulcahy indorsing Senator James Hamilton Lewis as a candidate for the presidency were adopted unanimously.

There were expressions of approval when John Stelle of McLeansboro presented his resignation as an alternate delegate at large to the national convention and then moved that the name of Charles J. Vopicka of Chicago be substituted for his own. It seemed Vopicka, a veteran leader, had been overlooked by the convention last week.

Hurl Brick in Window of Evanston Tailor Shop

The window of the tailor shop of David E. Nored at 2020 Central street, Evanston, was shattered by a brick yesterday afternoon. Policeman H. Nethery pursued two men, firing several shots, but they escaped. Nored said he had refused to join the Cleaners and Dyers association. Bricks also were thrown into a shop at 417 West 71st street, and a bottle into the shop of Lynn Lanning, 2543 East 79th street. Both attacks were laid to the price war.

Election Canvass Reveals Healy Is Victor Over Smith

Issuance of the election proclamation yesterday by the board of election commissioners revealed two changes in primary winners. The canvass disclosed that Thomas I. Healy nosed out Wilbur Calhoun Smith for the Republican nomination for the county board vacancy created by the resignation of Mayor Cermak. Healy will run against John E. Traeger, the Democratic nominee, who is a former county assessor. Smith is a son-in-law of Edward R. Litsinger, former reviewer.

The official returns for this office give Healy 60,840 and Smith 50,791. The police returns credited Smith with 66,663 votes and Healy with 59,878.

Other Change in House.

The other change was in the 6th senatorial district, where Drennan J. Slater was found to have defeated Benjamin H. Suhr for the second Republican nomination for a seat in the state house. Representative Arthur E. Fischer was the high man. The final vote showed: Slater 17,666 and Suhr 14,405.

The proclamation showed that in the 3,054 precincts in Chicago 468,419 Democratic and 509,841 Republican votes were cast out of a total registration of 1,412,135. In Chicago Heights, Summit, Cicero, Berwyn, and Evergreen Park, 18,341 Democrats and 21,294 Republican votes were cast.

The final vote for the Republican nomination for governor gave Len Small 208,677 votes against the 133,899 polled by Omer N. Custer, his closest opponent. Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic nominee, polled 317,286 against 170,566 cast for Michael L. Igoe, his independent rival.

Swanson Vote 280,298.

In the state's attorney race the Republicans gave State's Attorney Swanson 280,298 votes and Judge Michael Feinberg, the Crowe candidate, 133,132 votes. Senator Thomas J. Courtney, the Democratic nominee, received 289,149 votes and Judge Matthew D. Hartigan, the Igoe candidate, 84,295 votes.

Because of an injunction issued by Judge William J. Lindsay the election board did not proclaim the name of Joseph F. Haas, who, according to the returns, captured twelfth place on the Republican ballot for Municipal judge. His candidacy was attacked by Assistant State's Attorney Edgar B. Elder, who was thirteenth and who charges that Haas is an assumed name.

SCHOOL BOARD CALLED TO HEAR ADVICE ON WASTE

$100,000 for Report; May Keep It Secret.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A special—and perhaps secret—session of the school board has been called for next Monday afternoon to hear Dr. George D. Strayer's advice on how to trim some of the expense from its $90,180,263 budget.

Dr. Strayer is head of the division of field studies, institute of educational research of Teachers' college, Columbia university, to which the board agreed to pay $100,000 last October for a survey of the Chicago school system. That job, according to an official statement of Mrs. Helen Hefferan to her fellow trustees, has been completed, and the report now is being printed in New York, while Chicago printers haven't enough work to keep employés on the pay roll.

Finds Millions Wasted.

It is expected that Dr. Strayer will recommend to the trustees the elimination of $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 of waste provided in the $90,180,000 budget, adopted March 1. Before that the D. F. Kelly committee had urged the board to reduce the cost of operating the school buildings by "$1,000,000 or more" a year. Previous to that counsel, THE TRIBUNE repeatedly had pointed out that the cost of operation of the Chicago schools is much higher than for most of the large cities of the country.

The waste in school operation is such an open secret that it is deemed certain Dr. Strayer will make a definite recommendation on that subject. Under his contract he is obligated to make a study of that subject "with a view to discovering any economies." He is under the same obligation with reference to the cost of business administration, which is about twice as high as in New York City.

$500,000 Waste on One Job.

He is also obligated under his contract to discover "any savings which may be legitimately effected" in the cost of constructing school buildings. A year ago Gov. Emmerson's tax conference produced testimony to show that approximately $500,000 was wasted in the construction of the Parker Junior High school, costing a little over $2,000,000.

Probably the most comprehensive promise by Dr. Strayer in his contract reads: "An analysis of the present school costs with a view to discovering any excesses in cost or any possible increase or improvement in the service which may be secured for the money spent."

In addition, the board has asked him to say what sort of school system would result if the budget is reduced ten million or twenty million or thirty million dollars.

Asks Executive Session.

In reply to this request Dr. Strayer wired from New York to President Myers yesterday:

"Could you arrange for me to meet the board in executive session next Monday afternoon. Can supply some of the information requested in resolution [of board] at that time."

Why he requested an executive session was not explained. The board already has paid $75,000 of the $100,000 promised and is pledged to deliver the remaining $25,000 when the formal report, which is due June 1, is delivered.

Trustee William D. McJunkin, who sponsored the resolution asking Dr. Strayer for advice, wants him to tell what the system is now supplying in education, either in quantity or character, which is worth to the pupils two and a half times as much as the education supplied in 1916. If that is to be answered in an executive session the taxpayers who pay the bills probably will have to be contented with the expert's answer second hand.

Trustee Joseph Savage, who has been absent from two recent meetings of the board, will be at the special session Monday. He was the leader of the holdover trustees in adopting the $90,180,263 budget.

MARRIED 40 YEARS, REALIZE WISHES AND DIE NEAR SAME TIME

Pine Bluff, Ark., May 5.—(AP)—Former Circuit Judge W. B. Sorrells and his wife, who had been married forty years and had expressed the wish not to outlive each other, died a few minutes apart at their home here today.

He suffered a heart attack about 3 a. m. and died an hour later. When Mrs. Sorrells realized he was dead she fell into the arms of her son, W. B. Sorrells Jr., editor of the Pine Bluff Commercial, and a few minutes later was dead also.

Another son is John H. Sorrells of New York, executive editor of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Pick Chicagoan President of Foundry Association

Detroit, Mich., May 5.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond of Chicago was elected president of the American Foundrymen's association in the closing business session of the annual convention here today. The William H. McFadden medal was awarded to Dr. H. W. Gillett, director of the Battelle Memorial institute, Columbus, O., and the John A. Penton medal was awarded posthumously to the late Laverne W. Spring, chief metallurgist of the Crane company, Chicago. Both medals are for "outstanding contributions to the advancement of the medal casting industry."

CITY WAGE CUT SHELVES PLAN TO RECLASSIFY JOBS

Advisory Group's Economies Face Delay.

The more drastic economy recommendations in the 1932 budget plan prepared by Mayor Cermak's advisory committee will probably be shelved, at least for the present year, it was indicated yesterday following a conference in the office of A. A. Sprague, commissioner of Public Works.

Those who conferred with Mayor Cermak were Sewell Avery, chairman of the advisory committee; Commissioner Sprague, Assessor J. L. Jacobs, and Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee. Mr. Jacobs, as efficiency engineer for the city, made the survey on which the budget recommendations were based. The city council appropriated $30,000 for the work.

Abolishes 2,500 Jobs.

Under his plan, sponsored by the advisory committee, it was estimated that nearly 2,500 jobs would be abolished as nonessential. What worried city employés even more, however, was the reclassification of jobs recommended by Jacobs. By relegating numerous employés to jobs of lower classification the effect of a general pay cut would have been obtained without disturbing basis rates of pay.

"If we dock employés seventy-eight days pay this year, as we are going to do," said Mayor Cermak after the conference, "we can't reclassify too. Of course, any new employés will come in under the reclassification plan, but it won't affect the present employés.

"I don't think the council will approve reclassification after voting to dock pay. However, we'll try to dovetail the recommendations of the advisory committee in with our present plans."

No definite decision was reached at the conference, it was said.

Approve Savings Club Plan.

The proposal of Ald. John Toman [23d] that the city controller and Chicago banks organize a system of savings clubs in which taxpayers might make weekly deposits to accumulate funds to pay their taxes, has received favorable comment from a number of sources, Mayor Cermak said. However, he added a suggestion designed to win the support of property owners who had deposited their tax money in banks and lost it by the failure of the institutions.

"The Toman plan is a good one if it can be worked out," said Mayor Cermak. "It might be arranged for the banks to deposit collateral to guarantee deposits just as they guarantee deposits of city funds."

Plan New Cuts in Levies.

The park employés annuity and benefit fund, out of which the pensions of Lincoln, south and west parks employés are paid, will be able to cut its 1931 and 1932 tax levies even below the figures recommended by the Kelley committee, Daniel A. Roberts, president of the pension board, said yesterday in a letter to D. F. Kelly.

The pension fund levied $514,178 in 1930, and the committee recommended that its levy be cut to $323,000 for 1931 and the same figure for 1932. The pension board had voted for a $365,000 levy in 1931 and a $265,000 levy in 1932, the total for the two years being $16,000 less than the total recommended by the committee. Mr. Roberts stated that the board now believes it will be possible to cut the 1931 levy to $315,000 and the 1932 levy to $240,000, a total saving for the two years of $91,000.

CLARK, BANKER, 92 TODAY, WILL 'WORK AS USUAL'

David W. Clark, vice president of the Madison and Kedzie Trust and Savings bank, will celebrate his ninety-second birthday today by working as usual. When he arrives at the bank at his customary hour of 9 o'clock, he will find a basket of flowers from his fellow officers.

A family dinner will be held in his home, 3125 Warren boulevard, tonight, at which a birthday cake with all the candles it will hold will be cut. His daughters, Mrs. John T. Lenehan of Chicago and Mrs. W. J. Powers of Chillicothe, Ill., will attend the dinner. He will receive friends later.

Mr. Clark was born in Boston and has resided in Chicago 77 years. For 40 years he served as member of the Republican central committee of Cook county, and as a member of the Republican congressional committee. He was a delegate to the national conventions of 1900, 1924, and 1928.

DARK HORSE WITH BLACK MUSTACHE WINS U. OF C. RACE

Wilfred Davis, 5735 Blackstone avenue, yesterday won a mustache cup and a bath as possessor of the most luxuriant student mustache on the University of Chicago campus. Davis, described as a dark horse entry, was seized by defeated contestants and tossed into the Botany pond when his victory was announced.

The winning mustache has a spread of 2¼ inches, is a half inch long, and black.

"The mustache is one of the finest in texture, conformation and color that I have seen since the depression started," said Herb Patterson, campus barber, who was judge of the contest. Gilbert White, editor of Cap and Gown, the university year book, was awarded the booby prize of a nursing bottle.

WISCONSIN RULE OF LA FOLLETTES CALLED 'RACKET'

Chapple Says It Is Driving Industries Away.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Neillsville, Wis., May 5.—[Special.]—"The La Follette political racket" was pictured as applying to Wisconsin politics the racketeering methods of Al Capone and organized gangland today by John B. Chapple, candidate for the Republican nomination for senator against Senator John J. Blaine.

JOHN B. CHAPPLE.

The Ashland editor declared that the "political blackjack" applied in the interests of "10,000 racketeering pay rollers" was driving industries out of the state. He said Moscow had its eye on Wisconsin as a laboratory for communist-socialist propaganda.

"If the La Follette racket is permitted to prosper," he said, "we in Wisconsin will have no more government by the people, but instead, government by that group best able to operate a political racket."

Mr. Chapple spoke tonight at Medford, and last night in Neillsville, where he held an audience for nearly three hours with his analogous treatment of "the La Follette racket" in politics and rackets of the underworld.

Lists Fifteen Weapons.

"I have listed fifteen weapons of the racketeer that are also used in the La Follette political racket," said Chapple. "They are: the gag, threat, blackjack, protection, dictatorship, undercover tactics, importation of outside experts, use of the blind, attempts to influence courts, control of funds by the insiders, the shakedown, secrecy, the blacklist, the boycott, and putting the victim on the spot.

"The difference between the La Follette political racket and the other rackets is that one operates inside the law and the others operate outside the law. Of the two I am convinced that the La Follette political racket is more dangerous to the welfare of the people, for it endangers every one of us."

Radicalism in Wisconsin, Mr. Chapple argued, is now taking on Muscovite form and is heading toward the ideas of communism. He exhibited books and documents tending to show that some leaders in the La Follette political organization are members of associations which in turn are affiliated with other organizations working for communism, and "the dictatorship of the proletariat."

Cites La Follette Message.

"In his message to the special session of the legislature," said Chapple, "and in his demand to divide up the pigs and other wealth, the socialism of La Follette is admitted. That message was a regular catechism of socialistic ideas. It was a bid for the support of the radicals of the nation.

"It was hailed by the radicals as the entering wedge in a program that would destroy the America of today and replace it by a new economic order.

"Here in Wisconsin the seeds of a disintegrating, poisonous, disastrous doctrine have been sown, not openly, as in Russia, but slyly, cunningly, as Lenin advised should be done until complete power could be won.

"It is an attack upon three great American fundamentals—the economic order, the home and the moral code, and religion."

Economic phases of the political racket were taken up by Mr. Chapple. "Ruinous and destructive policies such as those advocated by La Follette have already cost Wisconsin heavily," he said. "W. W. Coleman, president of the Bucyrus-Erie, says bluntly that there is a serious economic disadvantage in having a plant in Wisconsin and that the only safe policy to pursue is to provide all future expansion in other states."

Move to Other States.

"Allis-Chalmers of Milwaukee has acquired two new industrial units in the last three months, the activities of which, according to President Otto Falk, would logically have been brought to Wisconsin. Instead they are being located in Indiana.

"An expansion program for the Milwaukee plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company had been held up, according to Ludington Patton, vice president.

"Another example, the Cutler-Hammer company, large manufacturer of electrical equipment, says the deciding factor in a decision not to move its Connecticut plant to Wisconsin was the high tax rate in Wisconsin and the uncertainty of future legislative action. It was decided instead to transfer the plant to New York state.

"J. C. Kimberly, vice president of the Kimberly-Clark Paper company at Neenah, has pulled out of the state for the same reason. Kimberly gave $100,000 to Lawrence college at Appleton last year and has been a leader in the affairs of the Fox river valley. Wisconsin cannot afford to lose men of his kind.

"And finally, not long ago the Burgess company moved its battery plant right out from under the shadow of the La Follette controlled capitol at Madison and over to Freeport, Ill.

Does It Help Workers?

"What I want to ask is this: Does this help the worker in Wisconsin? The La Follette leaders are teaching you to hate, but are they helping you to get a job by driving the industries out of Wisconsin, or are they chaining you down and destroying your chance to get ahead?

"Does the La Follette program help the farmer who needs a local market for his best prices? He does not get the local market unless men are working at good jobs in cities not far away.

"And while we are on that subject, let us see just where the La Follette program leads so far as the farmer is concerned: Will La Follette turn upon the farmer after he gets political jobholders running the banks, the mines, the railroads and other enterprises? Let us see.

"What does La Follette mean when he says he is in favor of direct public ownership of things of common necessity? Is there anything more necessary than the farm?

"If La Follette gets through with the banks and the big industries in Wisconsin, will he also turn upon the farmer and try to establish socialized farms? If his own words mean anything that is exactly what he has in mind."

Mr. Chapple declared Gov. La Follette had been paving the way for political operation of banks, and that he was still vice president of an organization committed to the socializing of banking.

"One measure introduced in the last session," he said, "called for establishment of the Bank of the State of Wisconsin with the governor as president and with all the powers of the bank. The bank law in this special session was another attempt to load political officeholders on to banking as a first step toward state operation.

"Extortion and the shake" was another racketeering agency which Mr. Chapple charged had been adopted in Wisconsin politics. "The constant increasing of taxes amounts to extortion," he said. "Citizens of Wisconsin are today as truly the victims of extortion as are the parents of the Lindbergh baby."

H. S. STUDENTS DEFY TRADITION; 10 OUSTED FROM PROM GROUP

The tradition of Senn High school, 5900 North Glenwood avenue, is that there must be only eight musicians in the orchestra that plays at the annual senior prom, according to David N. Davidson, the principal. And that is why ten students who dared to vote down the employment of an orchestra of the traditional size and request the employment of a larger one were dismissed from the committee on arrangements, he added.

The ten students, according to two of them, felt that the senior prom, to be held at the Edgewater Beach hotel the night of June 10, would not be a success unless a larger and better orchestra was hired. They said the committee was dissolved by Mrs. Mabel W. Silliani, dean of girls, and a new committee appointed that would vote without question to hire the orchestra of her selection.

Mr. Davidson insisted it was all a matter of tradition, and that, anyway, Mrs. Silliani had nothing to do with the dissolution of the committee, which she appointed.

Augustana Students Vote Roosevelt In on 2d Ballot

Rock Island, Ill., May 5.—[Special.]—Participating in a mock Democratic national convention, Augustana college students tonight nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt for President on the second ballot. Vote on the second ballot was: Roosevelt, 783; Murray, 148; Garner, 86, and Smith, 6. On the first ballot Roosevelt received 284 and Smith 171.

CROSSES STREET TO MEET WIFE; KILLED BY AUTO

Three automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday increased the toll since Jan. 1 to 375. The victims:

Joseph White, 41 years old, 3107 5th avenue. Fatally injured when he walked into the path of a car at Madison street and Albany avenue while crossing toward his wife waiting at the opposite curb. The driver was Michael O'Connor, 3227 Lowe avenue.

John Braslin, 45 years old, a lodger in the municipal shelter at 54 West Austin avenue. Killed when he attempted to cross Michigan avenue at Madison street against the traffic signals. He was struck by the car of Ted Garland, Elgin, who was not held.

William Sullivan, 22 years old, 12149 Stewart avenue. Fatally injured last night when he lost control of a motorcycle on which he was riding and crashed into a tree at 122d and Halsted streets. He died at the Roseland community hospital.

Two speeding sedans rammed a grocery truck at Laflin and 15th streets early yesterday and crashed together when the truck overturned, spilling the driver, Abraham Ginsburg, 730 South Winchester avenue, and fracturing his right arm. Five men who drew revolvers leaped out of the cars and took to their heels. Police said both sedans were stolen.

Mrs. Bernice Tonyan, 23 years old, 1629 Lincoln street, North Chicago, was seriously injured early today when an automobile in which she was riding was struck at Jackson and Washington streets, Waukegan, by another car. With Mrs. Tonyan were her husband, Arthur, and James Cray, 139 19th street, North Chicago. Although the car overturned, none of the others was seriously hurt.

In the second car were Attorneys John Noll, 1411 Grand avenue, Waukegan, and Karl S. Moras, 520 Sheridan road, Highland Park. They were uninjured. Mrs. Tonyan, who is a daughter of Chief of Police Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest, was taken to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan.

FALLS INTO BIG CHUTE; TRAPPED, HE DIES ALONE

Frank Budda, 40 years old, was found dead early this morning in a chute in the plant of Darling & Co., fertilizer makers, 43d street and Racine avenue, where he was employed as a night watchman.

The chute, which is about 90 feet long, leads from the second floor to the first floor. The opening at the top is large and tapers down as it descends. Budda's body was tightly wedged about a dozen feet from the top. Firemen of hook and ladder company No. 18 were called and chopped part of the chute away to get the body out.

It was the opinion of the firemen that Budda fell accidentally into the tunnellike structure and died of suffocation or heart disease as he stuck, head down. Another watchman said Budda had pulled a box as usual at 11 p. m. The body was found two hours later.

AMPUTATE LEG OF JAP ENVOY ON SIGNING TRUCE

Nippon's Troops Begin to Evacuate Shanghai.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 6.—[Friday.]—Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China and chief Japanese delegate to the Sino-Japanese armistice conference, who signed the agreement ending four months of open warfare in this area in a hospital yesterday morning, immediately afterward was taken to the operating room where his right leg was amputated. The amputation was successful and the minister was reported in good condition.

Several high Japanese surgeons, two of whom came here from Japan several days ago, decided that the amputation was necessary, but the operation was deferred until Shigemitsu had signed the armistice agreement, a draft of which was taken to his bedside for that purpose.

Right Leg Fractured.

Shigemitsu, who was standing directly over the spot where the Corean bomb exploded on the speakers' platform during Emperor Hirohito's birthday celebration, received the full force of the explosion in his legs. The right leg was broken above the ankle.

The other Japanese officials injured by the bomb are reported to be improving, including Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, who lost his right eye.

As a result of signing the agreement, Japanese military authorities today issued orders to begin the withdrawal of their troops from the position they now occupy into the international settlement. Complete withdrawal must be completed within four weeks. The Japanese also have ordered the withdrawal of warships which have been stationed in Shanghai harbor along the lower Yangtze river since the outbreak of the conflict. A report from Nanking today said that Gen. Wen Ying-hsin is likely to be appointed chief of the Shanghai bureau of public safety and commander of the new Chinese gendarme force which will police Chapei and the zone evacuated by the Japanese troops. Gen. Wen is a West Point graduate.

U. S. Regiment Withdrawn.

Apparently as a result of the armistice, the American 31st Infantry regiment was withdrawn yesterday from patrol duty along Soochow creek. The positions now have been taken over by the Shanghai municipal police. It is also understood that the American marines, as well as British troops, are being withdrawn from patrol duty along the borders of the international settlement.

100 Soviets on Hunger Strike.

MOSCOW, May 5.—(AP)—A dispatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia, said today that more than 100 soviet Russians had been arrested at Harbin, Manchuria, and were being tortured by anti-Soviet "white" Russians serving in the Chinese police force. Slavutsky, soviet counsel at Harbin, has protested the arrests as "unprecedented impudence," apparently intended to menace Soviet-Manchurian relations and peace in the far east.

The prisoners, most of them arrested by Japanese gendarmes, were on a hunger strike against "inhuman treatment" and failure of the authorities to state the charges against them, the dispatch said.

The tortures were described as including the pouring of a tobacco solution in the prisoners' noses. Among those tortured, the message said, were a soviet official of the Chinese Eastern railway and his wife. Many of the prisoners were reported to be in chains. The prisoners were turned over to the Chinese police by the Japanese gendarmes.

Aviation Notes

The Goodyear-Zeppelin company of Akron, O., has closed a contract with Owen Jones, owner of Pal Waukee airport, to establish a base for one of their nonrigid airships at the port. A sheet metal hangar costing $30,000 is to be started immediately. The hangar will be 70 feet high, 75 feet wide, and 180 feet long. A six passenger Puritan type blimp is to be kept there.

Airline passengers enjoy an unusual sight in the cultivation of 200 acres adjoining Chicago airport on the east. The tract, owned by the city and held for future expansion of the airport, is being cultivated by Cook county unemployed.

Russel Boardman, who flew from New York to Istanbul last July with John Polando, to establish a new distance record of 4,999 miles, yesterday telegraphed to the offices of the Bendix Aviation corporation his entry in the second Vincent Bendix trophy race from Los Angeles to Cleveland. The race will be run during the National Air Races at Cleveland from Aug. 27 to Sept. 5.

Members of the Sky Harbor Flying club have taken up aerial photography under the tutelage of H. Haller Murphy, war time photographic instructor of the army air corps.

Missing H. S. Girl Found; Out to Make Own Way

Teallie Wilson, 18 years old, missing athletic star at New Trier High school, was found in Chicago yesterday afternoon in the Salvation Army headquarters at 1230 West Adams street. She said she left her home Tuesday to make her way in the world because she had no clothes and was dissatisfied with home conditions. Her mother and father are divorced. She was returned to her mother, Mrs. Edna J. Wilson, 116 Central avenue, Wilmette.

TWO BURGLARS ROUTED TWICE.

Two burglars were twice frightened from their loot yesterday when they were surprised by police after breaking windows in the Schnitzer clothing store, 1628 Blue Island avenue, and the Gold Bell dress shop, 1316 East 53d street.

CAPONE IN A NEW WORLD LIMITED TO THIRTY ACRES

Begins Prison Routine in Quarantine.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlanta, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—So far as the world outside the thirty acre confines of the federal prison here is concerned, Al Capone might as well be on another planet.

The prison, with its rulers and 3,100 inmates, is a little world in itself, self-sustaining and self-contained. Even United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer of Chicago, who brought Capone here, could learn no information about him today when he went out to get his return papers. Capone's name was not mentioned in his presence.

The forms on the penitentiary mittimus were filled out by the prison warden and the visiting marshal and the job of imprisoning the gang chief was formally ended.

In Quarantine 20 Days.

Capone is now in quarantine and will remain there twenty-days for medical examinations and inoculations. During this time the authorities will decide what work he will do, whether he will work in the cotton mill, the shoe factory, the broom factory, or some other hard labor imposed for "infamous crimes." He would like to be an athletic instructor or a chef, with the privilege of preparing spaghetti for the warden, but the warden is a South Carolinian and doesn't care much about spaghetti.

Two Visitors a Month.

Capone may have only two visitors a month, one each fifteen days, and the visits will be limited to thirty minutes each. If he chooses he may pass up the visits and the time becomes cumulative for visitors from remote points. But even these visits will be limited to two consecutive thirty minute periods on three consecutive days. All visitors must be close relatives. At no time may he see newspaper men or lawyers and he cannot write about his prison life.

Once each week, on Sunday, he may go to the baseball game between prison teams or the prison movie, but he cannot see both. He may avail himself of the prison library and attend night school conducted by the educated prisoners.

The prison holds two other well known Chicagoans, Charles [Limpy] Cleaver, desperado, and William Fahy, former ace of the postal inspectors, who are serving twenty-five year terms for the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery in 1925.

MT. MORRIS TO MERGE WITH AN INDIANA COLLEGE

Mount Morris, Ill., May 5.—Mount Morris college, founded in 1839 by the Methodist church, but operated since 1878 by the United Brethren denomination, is nearing the end of its corporate life and will merge next fall with North Manchester college of North Manchester, Ind.

Failure of endowments, failure to receive the united support of its church, small enrollment, and a costly fire a year ago were given by the trustees as the reasons for the merger.

Action on the merger proposal was taken today at a meeting of the trustees.

The college only recently dedicated a new $25,000 gymnasium to replace the one destroyed when fire swept the campus in April, 1931.

The college has 125 students. Its president is Dr. C. Ernest Davis.

Jefferson Mathis of Milledgeville, Ill., a trustee, said he understood the Bethany Biblical seminary of Chicago was negotiating for the purchase of the physical properties of Mount Morris college.

WOUNDED BANDIT'S PAL HELD.

Alex Johnson, 19 years old, 5004 Superior street, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bond of $25,000. He was the companion of Charles Harrington, who was shot by Miss Marie McLaughlin, 17 years old, in an attempted robbery of her father's barbecue stand at 9139 South Western avenue.

GREEN ANSWERS CERMAK; TELLS OF JAILING 77

Judge Says Records Show He Is Foe of Gunmen.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green compiled yesterday a list of 77 persons he has imprisoned in the Bridewell and jail as a reply to the criticism of him by Mayor Cermak.

The mayor's criticism occurred after Judge Green suppressed the evidence and turned loose Sam Hunt, Capone gangster. Hunt was arrested on April 28 with a .38 caliber revolver in his pocket. The judge claims that the search of Hunt was of a type that the State Supreme court has declared illegal.

"I think I have a creditable record against gunmen," said Judge Green. "I have written a letter to the Chicago Bar association, the Crime commission, Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court, and Mayor Cermak calling attention to that record.

Cites Record on 77 Cases.

"There is no one in the city more against gunmen than I am.

"Here is a record of 77 persons I have imprisoned. Two of them are pickpockets, one is a panderer, another is a professional bondsman who injured several persons while driving an automobile in an intoxicated condition, and still another one was practicing medicine without a license.

"The other 72 were gunmen, and I have only been sitting in the criminal branch of the court regularly since Jan. 1.

"Those 72 were put in the bridewell for terms of 10 days to a year, and some of them were in addition fined $25 to $200 each. They were put in on legal evidence and will serve their sentences.

Vagrancy Warrants Urged.

"A gunman has no legal means of support. He is a vagrant. If the police want vagrancy warrants for known gunmen, they can get them from me any time, night or day.

"I sentenced Joseph Battaglia, an alleged Capone gunman, to six months, as a vagrant. That is the maximum sentence. I sentenced Louis Clementi, another alleged Capone gangster, to six months for vagrancy. Melvin Keithley and Rex Murray, pickpockets, were put away by me for six months on conviction of vagrancy.

"The first conviction by a jury on a charge of defacing the number of a firearm was in my court. That was of Louis Scaramuzzo, commonly referred to as 'a Capone gunsmith.' I imposed on him the maximum sentence, which is one year. I gave Joe Davies, another Capone gangster according to reputation, a year for the same offence."

"I am sitting in the jury court," went on Judge Green. "Before I was placed in that court 90 to 100 cases a day were transferred to the jury court; now the number is 6 to 10. Today it was only four.

"If the lawyers thought there was an advantage in transferring to the jury court, why are there not as many cases now as formerly? Why are there less than one-tenth as many?"

DENIES WEDDING

"QUEEN MARY" PURNELL.
[Acme Photo.]

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 5.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Purnell, formerly known for 30 years as Queen Mary, ruler with her late husband, King Benjamin Purnell of the original House of David colony, Israelite sect, near Benton Harbor, denied rumors today that she and Francis Thorpe, nationally known baseball manager of the House of David traveling troupe, were married.

"I certainly am not married," said Mary, her black eyes flashing, "and do not intend to be."

The former queen, now ruler of her own "kingdom," near the original Israelite grounds, says she is true to King Ben's memory. She helped Benjamin found the colony, struggling through poverty until wealth came with converts to the chosen 400,000. Ben began collecting when he came here from the Kentucky hills, promising immortality to members if they refrained sin.

SENTENCE VET WHO THREATENED RAISA KIDNAPING

Andrew Matzukewich, a shell shocked war veteran, the confessed extortionist who tried to obtain $10,000 from Rosa Raisa, Chicago Civic opera star, on threats of kidnaping her baby, was sentenced yesterday to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $200 by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter.

ANDREW MATZUKEWICH.

Assistant District Attorney Owen A. West read Matzukewich's confession, in which he admitted forging the names of world war veterans to obtain loans or adjusted compensation certificates and then forging the resultant checks. Approximately $600 was obtained in this manner, West said. The fine was imposed after the government had shown Matzukewich had bank deposits totaling $300.

Matzukewich was arrested by the police after he had attempted to obtain money from a saloonkeeper on the promise to have Al Capone freed from the county jail. Investigation by secret service agents under Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan disclosed his connection with the Raisa kidnaping letters and Matzukewich's mail robbery and forgery record. He was then turned over to the government.

The Raisa letters demanded money on threat of injury to the singer's 7 months old baby, Rosa Giulietta. The first letter demanded $500 and the second $10,000. The letters were received in August and November.

MILK DEALERS TO MEET TODAY WITH FARMERS

Arbitration of the dispute between Chicago milk distributors and 18,000 dairy farmers over a proposal to cut the milk price paid to the farmers 25 cents a hundred pounds will begin at the Hotel La Salle this morning.

This was announced last night as word was received that Dr. Clyde L. King of the Wharton School of Finance, Philadelphia will arrive this morning to arbitrate the differences. The farmers, through the Pure Milk association, have refused to accept the dealers' plan to reduce their price from $2.01 to $1.76 per 100 pounds [46½ quarts].

QUIZ HOODLUM ON ATTEMPT TO BURN 75 TRUCKS

Hunt Motive for Gang's Attack on Garage.

Jack Sopkin, 27 years old, 1865 South Komensky avenue, a west side hoodlum, was questioned yesterday afternoon by Assistant State's Attorney Hal J. Coghlan after his arrest as one of four terrorists who earlier in the day tried to burn 75 trucks and 40 automobiles in the Midtown garage, 1105 West Monroe street. Sopkin denied connection with the plot despite his identification as one of the terrorists.

FRANK MENDY.

Prosecutor Coghlan attempted to determine through examination of Sopkin whether the arson plot is a campaign by George [Red] Barker and Mike Galvin, heads of the outlaw teamsters' union, to control the interstate trucking business, or a retaliative measure of David [Cockeyed Mulligan] Ablin, night club impresario and garage racketeer. Ablin is said to be a close friend of Sopkin.

Seize Frankie Levine.

The Ablin connection was strengthened by the arrest of Frankie Levine, 38 years old, said to be manager of the K-9 club, 105 East Walton place, formerly controlled by the cockeyed exponent of gay night life. Sopkin was found to have the keys to Levine's car, which was found near the garage. Levine said he had loaned the car to Sopkin, but denied knowing for what purpose it was to be used. He also said he has no connection with the K-9 club and has no more than a slight acquaintance with Ablin.

Ablin is alleged to have supplied defense funds for Sopkin in his trial for the robbery of John Sexton & Co., wholesale grocers, on Oct. 11, 1930. The State Supreme court last week affirmed Sopkin's sentence of one year to life for this robbery and a mandate for his imprisonment is expected next week. He told the prosecutor he was near the garage because he had taken a girl home and was waiting for her to reappear. He refused to name the girl.

Coghlan said he would hold Sopkin until the prison mandate is delivered and fight a habeas corpus action which is to be heard before Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Criminal court today. Coghlan said he will question Sopkin further on his connection with Ablin. Sopkin has a police record which dates from 1920.

Four Terrorize Employés.

Four men entered the garage shortly after 1 a. m. and held up Harry Conley and John Klein, employés. They ordered them into one of two cars into which they had come. Conley and Klein were driven to Lake street and Ashland avenue and put out of the car. The terrorists drew gasoline from the garage pumps. While they were thus engaged, Frank Bendyk, another employé on his way to work, saw them.

Mendyk ran to the office of a transfer company, borrowed a revolver from a watchman, and returned to put the men to flight. Sopkin ran almost into the arms of a detective bureau squad. The others escaped.

G. O. P. TRUSTEES DECLINE TO END TIEUP IN CICERO

Official business in Cicero, so far as the actions of the town board are concerned, will be at a standstill until May 16. This was learned yesterday from the three Republican trustees, holdovers from a former administration, who stayed away from last Monday's meeting of the board and thus prevented the transaction of any business.

There will be a meeting of the board tonight, but the three bolting trustees will not attend. They will appear, however, at the next board meeting, May 16, they said, and there will be a showdown on the entire mixup.

The board of trustees is composed of six members, three Democrats who were elected in the Democratic landslide, which carried Joseph G. Cerny in as town president, and the three holdovers. Four trustees are necessary to a quorum.

Frank Kvetone, one of the holdover trustees, declared yesterday that he had persuaded his colleagues, Fred Loyda and James Sedlecek, to stay away from the meeting.

"The new administration evidently thought they could get along without us," he said. "Monday night showed they were wrong."

These 'Laundry' Tickets Call for Quart, Not Shirt

Philadelphia, Pa., May 5.—[U.P.]—Yen Tai, proprietor of a "Chinese laundry," was to be given the opportunity in police court today to explain why certain "laundry" tickets were good for one quart instead of one shirt. Detectives said they obtained a quart of alleged liquor from him upon presenting a ticket which called for "Chapel dynamite." Similar quarts and similar tickets were confiscated.

PAINTER CLAIMS WENDEL FORTUNE AS SECRET SON

Relative No. 1,801 Shows Marriage Certificate.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—Another chapter in the saga of the eccentric Wendels was written today when a solid little Scotch seaman turned landlubber emerged from obscurity to claim the entire $100,000,000 estate left behind by the spinster Ella Wendel, supposedly the last of her eccentric clan, who died last year in a crumbling red brick mansion on 5th avenue.

Thomas Patrick Morris steps to the front of the army of 1,800 "relatives" and their melange of lawyers who have yet to find a courtroom large enough to hold them. Morris has documents purporting to show himself the "son" by a secret marriage of the late John Gottlieb Wendel, the bachelor brother who would not permit his six hermitlike sisters to marry because of fear of breaking up the family fortune.

Marriage Certificate and Will.

To support his claim Morris retained a lawyer, Raymond L. Wise, turned over to him a florid marriage certificate embossed with clasped hands, white flowers, doves, church bells, and a golden wedding ring; a strong box full of melodramatic letters; a curious "confession" penned on the flyleaf of a novel published in 1901, and lastly a "will" written on the blank pages in the back of the same book.

Then, while investigations were begun in this country and in Scotland to check his documents, Morris returned to his present trade of house painter. This afternoon Lawyer Wise told the story, but he refused to tell where Morris could be found by interviewers. It is a lengthy story, stranger than any told in the paper-backed novels of the nineties.

Mother Ran Away.

Morris, now 52 years old, according to the lawyer, was born in Dundee, Scotland. His mother, Mary Ellen Divine, had been secretly married to John G. Wendel at Castle Garden, New York, June 11, 1876, but ran away from him a few months before Thomas was born. Wendel made many trips to Dundee to visit little Thomas and would ask the boy to call him papa.

Thomas, however, the story continues, was skeptical and suspected he was an illegitimate child. It clouded his life and eventually he ran away to sea. After many years of sailing, the seaman made port here and that same day, while walking in City Hall park, encountered Wendel. His "father" was angry, but finding him without money gave him some. Thereafter they met frequently, and eventually Wendel took him to the gloomy old mansion on the avenue. There he waited in the reception room admiring the marble staircase while Wendel conferred with his sister Ella.

Miss Ella Drives Him Out.

When the eccentric Miss Ella had heard Wendel's story she flew into a rage and shouted:

"Get out, you and your brat."

They left the house and the boy went back to his ship. Wendel died in 1914, but the sailor Thomas heard nothing of it. He had never realized how wealthy the Wendels were and it was not until last year when he chanced to see newspaper accounts of the death of Ella Wendel that he realized he was "the sole heir to a hundred million dollars." He resolved to demand the fortune, gathered his evidence from his old home in Scotland and called on Charles G. Koss, the Wendel attorney.

His claim was given little consideration by the aged lawyer. The handwriting was not that of Wendel, Mr. Koss told him. He tried several nationally famous law firms, but none would take his claim. Then he retained Mr. Wise. Thus far Mr. Wise has unearthed evidence that there was a minister whose name James F. Calhoun checks with that signed to the marriage certificate and that the Rev. Mr. Calhoun was in Castle Garden in 1876.

"Nothing is improbable where the eccentric Wendels are concerned," said Wise, "and Morris' claim is entirely reasonable. We will go to court with it."

AUSTRALIA ACTS TO SEIZE MORE OF STATE'S TAXES

CANBERRA, Australia, May 5.—(AP)—Parliament enacted additional legislation today empowering the federal government to attach new sources of revenue in the state of New South Wales to cover foreign obligations on which the state defaulted.

Recently, under the financial agreement act, the federal authorities seized the state income tax receipts, subsequently extending the seizure to other state taxes. The new legislation earmarks death duties, liquor licenses, and automobile license fees for the commonwealth.

GASTON MEANS HELD AS $100,000 LINDY GRAFTER

Took Mrs. McLean's Cash to Get Baby.

heavily armed, was produced by Means. The publisher's wife balked, however, at going to Mexico when Means finally said the baby would be delivered there after it had not been delivered at either Aiken or El Paso.

The account of the alleged swindle as pieced together from the statements of the principals and government investigators discloses that Mrs. McLean offered her aid to Lindbergh immediately after the kidnaping. Through Mr. Fox she then approached Means and asked him if he thought he could recover the baby. Means, according to the story, jumped at the opportunity and said he felt certain he could find the kidnapers.

Cell Mate Proposed Kidnaping.

Means is alleged to have explained that a former cell mate at Atlanta had made him a proposition prior to the kidnaping to join in the abduction plot but he had refused. Some time later Means, it was said, represented he had contacted this man and could effect the return of the baby for $100,000.

Mrs. McLean then went to the president of a leading bank here and obtained the $100,000 in $100 and $50 bills, which she claims to have turned over to Means at her home at night in the presence of Father Hurney.

Before taking this definite step, however, Mrs. McLean had consulted with Capt. Land, a cousin of Col. Lindbergh, who saw the latter and obtained the consent of Lindbergh and Col. Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's attorney.

Goes to Aiken and El Paso.

Mrs. McLean waited while Means allegedly "contacted" further with the kidnapers, and then was advised to go to Aiken, S. C., where she has a home and the baby would be delivered to her there. She went at once to Aiken, where she met Means and a rough looking individual, armed with guns, who represented himself to be one of the kidnap gang. Mrs. McLean was told, it was declared, that it would be necessary for her to go to Texas, as the baby was in Mexico.

Mrs. McLean, it was explained, followed instructions and went to El Paso, where she again met Means, according to the allegations. There Mrs. McLean was informed a hitch had developed in the plans and it would be necessary to return to Washington and reestablish contact.

Showdown Finally Comes.

Several days later the showdown occurred. Attorney Fox, according to his story, told Means he had to make good or return the money. The former justice agent then informed Fox, the latter said, that he had contacted a member of the gang and had turned over the money. Mrs. McLean again waited in vain for the return of the child.

Means then changed his story, it was said, and said he had left the money at his former home in Concord, Conn., and would get it. Later he returned, expressing surprise that the money had not been returned.

He claimed, according to the McLean story, that he had given it to her agent, No. 11. Means was then given fifteen days to make good and when he failed the justice department was informed.

Both Mrs. McLean and the man she accuses of having duped her have figured often as front page material. Mrs. McLean as the wife of an intimate of President Harding entertained the chief executive often at "Friendship," the famous Washington suburban estate of the McLeans. Recently domestic differences with her husband has kept her name before the public.

Means had first entered the spotlight in the Harding administration. His latest exploit was the publication of a book, "The Strange Death of President Harding."

Twice Means served terms in federal penitentiaries.

Mrs. McLean's Son Killed.

Mrs. McLean's interest in the Lindbergh kidnaping was inspired by a fear she had had for years that her own three children would be abducted. She has kept them constantly under the watch of armed guards.

When the first McLean child, Vinson Walsh, was born on Dec. 19, 1909, he was called the "hundred million dollar baby." He was to inherit the joint fortunes of John R. McLean, builder of newspapers and gas companies, and Thomas F. Walsh, Colorado mine magnate and intimate of King Leopold of Belgium.

He was surrounded by nurses, governesses, and tutors, but most of all by guards. One day a truckman's cart entered grounds of the McLean home while Vinson, then 9, was playing on the lawn. Before the gate could be closed he dashed to the street and was struck by a passing car and killed.

Lacks Visa and Cash

ISTANBUL, Turkey, May 5.—(AP)—Plennie Wingo of Abilene, Tex., who is trying to hang up a record for walking around the world backwards, is stranded in Turkey and can't get out backwards or forwards.

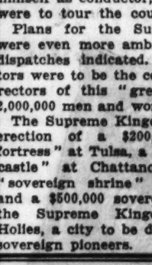
He had no trouble for the first 3,826 miles from Fort Worth, but the Balkan police regulations don't say anything about crabwise passage across the frontiers, so first the Bulgarian police and then the Turkish police arrested him.

Now he's in jail here without a visa and broke.

STATE STARTS INQUIRY INTO ESSKAYE, INC.

Plans Investigation of Kleagle Clarke.

The state's attorney's office decided yesterday that Edward Young Clarke ex-kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, had gone far enough in his organization of Esskaye, Inc., to warrant an official investigation.



E. Y. CLARKE.

Assistant State's Attorney Louis P. Holt of the racket bureau, in announcing the investigation, said his purpose was to determine whether Kleagle Clark was violating the blue sky law in selling Esskaye memberships at $100, $25, and $10 each, and to learn, if possible, just who stands to reap the benefits of the movement, which Clarke has described as a cure for all the country's economic ills.

"If Esskaye can accomplish all the things Clarke claims for it, the movement deserves official indorsement," said Mr. Holt. "On the other hand, if Esskaye proves to be a scheme of the sort Mr. Clarke has been promoting for years, the investors had better beware. You can't restore prosperity by going bankrupt."

Former Projects in Bankruptcy.

Dispatches from Indianapolis, Tulsa, Okla., and Atlanta, Ga., yesterday revealed that the kleagle has been untiring in his efforts to "uplift the great middle classes" ever since 1922, when he quit the klan. The dispatches said that each of his enterprises, the Twentieth Century Motion Picture company, Knights of the Mystic Kingdom, Knights of the Supreme Kingdom, and Twentieth Century Land company, are now in bankruptcy.

Clarke incorporated the motion picture company in Indianapolis in 1926, dispatches said. He offered life memberships in the concern at $500 each, promising each investor a $5,000 profit within two years. He projected the erection of a magnificent studio in Hollywood and the employment of Hollywood stars to produce pictures calculated "to purify the industry and uplift the American home."

Seeks 1,500,000 Members.

To get support from the hinterland Clarke proposed selling 1,500,000 auxiliary memberships at $16 each. With himself as conductor, the movie stars were to tour the country in buses.

Plans for the Supreme Kingdom were even more ambitious, the Tulsa dispatches indicated. Pioneer investors were to be the counselors and directors of this "great fellowship of 2,000,000 men and women."

The Supreme Kingdom planned the erection of a $200,000 "sovereign fortress" at Tulsa, a $250,000 "mystic castle" at Chattanooga, a $315,000 "sovereign shrine" in Washington, and a $500,000 sovereign temple" in the Supreme Kingdom's Holy of Holies, a city to be designated by the sovereign pioneers.

● This interesting letter from Mr. Hetterly is one of many hundreds in our files. It was entirely voluntary—sent to us without solicitation. Nothing was paid for it. It is a genuine expression of gratitude for meritorious service.

McLaughlin, S. D.

Montgomery Ward & Co.
Chicago, Illinois
Gentlemen:
A few lines about my luck with Riverside tires now more than 4 years on a car on the go most all the time, used by everybody on the ranch, for everything, and for going any place regardless of roads. We are wintering 225 head of cattle. We follow cow trails if there is no road. We chase horses, cows, and coyotes all through the brakes, washouts, rocks and cactus. Two years ago I went out to chase wild horses; came back with two broken springs, but no flats or blowouts. We use this car to open the roads after snow storms; load the back down with rocks, and buck the snow drifts. I have hauled 1,776 pounds, and that is a big load for tires on a Dodge. We think no more about these Riversides than of the tires on a wagon. I am for Riversides as long as I use cars. Am more than satisfied. I have given them test enough, and I know.

Yours truly,
Earl Hetterly

PICKING THE CANDIDATES.

Speaker John Garner's success in California is regarded as another distinct setback for the manifest destiny of Gov. Franklin Roosevelt of New York. It may not do Garner half as much good as it does Roosevelt harm. California is another state which must be counted in the Democratic prospects in November if that party is to take over the national administration.

Roosevelt has lost Massachusetts and did not do in Pennsylvania what his supporters expected of him. The indication of these three primaries is that the New York governor is not the available man for a contest in doubtful states which must be carried by the candidate in the elections if the party is to win.

The two-thirds rule of Democratic conventions as a barrier the leading pre-convention candidate frequently cannot get over. Democratic delegates from states normally Republican may be relied upon to get the candidate most acceptable to them if the party is to make the most of its 1932 opportunities. If it were inspired to make the worst of them it might pick a candidate qualified for a campaign in the southern states and worthless in the doubtful ones. Without the two-thirds rule such a selection might be possible. It might even be probable, but with the rule the men from the critical states can make their fight for what they want.

Gov. Roosevelt makes headway in states which will not be so important in November, but he takes losses and setbacks in the debatable territory. These results do not encourage his following to believe that he is the destiny of the convention.

The Democratic party has a chance to present what its convention delegates are persuaded is the best ticket for vote getting in the Republican states. The Republicans are denied the opportunity of selecting the man they might regard most highly for vote getting qualifications. They are virtually sealed to Mr. Hoover. They must defend their administrative record in Hoover's first term. They cannot very well defend the record and cast away the President. The only safe way in which that could be done hasn't been taken.

In Taft's term a rebellion started early in the Republican party. The most aggressive elements in the party did not want him and they had organized against him. Roosevelt could have been nominated in the convention which renominated Taft, and would have been if the Rooseveltians could have obtained control of the convention. They did not intend to defend Taft's administration. They intended to repudiate it and offer a new deal. There has been no preparation for such proceedings in the convention of this year. The Republicans are standing pat and will have to take the consequences. If Mr. Hoover's health were a reason for his retirement they could reconcile the nomination of another man to a defense of Republican administration.

The best qualified candidate is unquestionably Mr. Coolidge. He stepped out before things went wrong. His prestige is not affected by what happened after his retirement and his reputation for administrative canniness and good sense is not impaired. Many Republicans sitting in the convention will wish they were as free as the Democrats will be after them to make the selection which would give them most confidence in a year when they are on the defensive.

FOR A NEW BUILDING CODE.

Among the stated purposes of the Chicago Construction council, recently organized under the auspices of the Association of Commerce, is a prompt completion of the new building code. This is an essential preliminary to any general revival in the building industry in Chicago and deserves the full coöperation of public officials.

Chicago's building code as it stands today is out of date. In its time it was the model building code of the United States, but since it was written many new materials have been introduced and new construction methods have been adopted. The code is full of contradictions and for that reason has served in the past as a useful weapon in the hands of unscrupulous officials bent upon shaking down owners, contractors, and architects. Officials could refuse to grant permits unless their palms were crossed and when that detail had been attended to could issue permits; and both in the refusal and in the issuance could cite chapter and verse of the building code as adequate justification.

Now that there is little construction in hand, little in prospect, and widespread confidence in the integrity of the building commissioner, the political advantages which were found in an obsolete code are not present. This is the moment to modernize the law. If the city council waits until times improve it may be too late, because then the racketeering possibilities of the code will again be obvious, and if an unscrupulous building commissioner happens to be in office every effort will be concentrated on preserving the obsolete and ambiguous code for its tribute-levying values.

The new code should permit the use of new materials which can pass tests of safety. There should be no relaxation of standards of safety, but the knowledge gained in twenty years of construction engineering may lead to considerable modification of present requirements, some of which are now generally conceded to be excessive.

There is also room for improvement in matters which concern the outward appearance of buildings. There is no excuse for the wooden back porches which are commonly used in three story apartment buildings in Chicago. They are unsightly and offer no adequate protection against fire. Likewise there is no excuse for the hideous iron fire escapes which mar the appearance of many of the taller buildings in Chicago. These fire escapes are risky things to use in a city frequented by high winds and particularly hazardous in winter when coated with ice. Inclosed fire stairs are far safer and, of course, far more sightly.

CHICAGO IN THE LEAD.

The Kelly committee has recommended a decrease of 43 million dollars in the 1931 tax levy. If the committee's setup is adopted by the various governments the next tax bills, broadly speaking, should be less by 17 per cent than the last ones.

The Chicago city council, under the leadership of Mayor Cermak, has taken action in substantial conformity with the committee's recommendations. Other public officials no doubt will accept the Kelly retrenchment program. Still others will make every effort to continue spending at the old pace, although the fact is self-evident that the taxpayers cannot meet the exactions and that the end of that road is bankruptcy and disgrace. Against the tax wasters of this school only coercion will avail and, fortunately, the Kelly committee is not without weapons in its arsenal.

There is, in the first place, the pressure of public opinion, which is overwhelmingly on the side of economy and solvency. In addition, the Kelly committee was organized for the purpose of finding a market for tax warrants. That was and is its function. So far ahead as we can now see, the banks and others with large funds to invest in tax warrants are not going to invest in the warrants of governments which budget beyond the limitations set up by the committee. The power of the purse is in the hands of the committee. As long as it holds that power it can laugh at the wastrels of politics and make them like it.

The evidences are accumulating that Chicago is on the way up and the way out. The replacement of two unfit members of the school board by two competent men has not yet created a reliable majority on the board, but has already led to a reconsideration of the budget recently passed. The figures compiled by the Kelly committee are proof that the preliminary studies of the local governments' financial problems have been completed. Other cities are just awakening to the fact that their finances are in a state of almost hopeless confusion. Chicago, which faced its difficulties first, is now in a position to obtain the necessary economies and in Mayor Cermak it has a man who has shown courage and resourcefulness in reducing expenditures.

Chicago had much to be ashamed of in recent years; more, no doubt, than many other cities. But today no Chicagoan need hide his head in shame. There is no other comparable city in the country which has made as great progress toward honest government and municipal solvency in the last year as has been made here.

RED-HANDED.

The arrest of one of four terrorists who were about to set fire to a west side garage is the opening for which the Chicago police have long been waiting. The four had entered the place, overawed the attendants at the pistol point and had then poured gasoline on more than a hundred automobiles. The hoodlums were about to fire the garage when they were routed by a pistol shot and fled. A police squad which took up the pursuit overtook one of the fugitives, Sopkin, who has a long police record. The automobile used by the vandals belonged to a restaurant owner who admitted he had lent it to Sopkin.

Sopkin knows who hired him. He knows who his companions were. He probably knows why he was hired to destroy property. There is enough evidence against him as matters stand to lock him in the penitentiary until he is an old man. With that leverage the police and the state's attorney ought to be able to extract from Sopkin the information which will lead to the punishment of the more important conspirators, the racketeers who levy tribute through terrorism.

Capone is gone, but his system remains behind. The law enforcing officials of Chicago never had a better opportunity than has now been presented them to crush that system. At last the trail has opened, wide and clear. If it is not followed to the end the mayor will be fully justified in disciplining every policeman, from the chief down, who is assigned to the case.

Editorial of the Day

VANCOUVER VIEW OF WALL STREET.

[Vancouver Sun.]

Can Wall street forget its predatory instincts and answer the call for a newer capitalism that will effect a compromise between the tooth and claw competition of the older capitalism and the radical demand for collectivism? In the answer to this rests a reply as to whether or not Wall street is through.

This newspaper's opinion is that Wall street has had its day; its mind is set, it must run its course. We believe that the newer capitalism, working along coöperative lines with farm and other coöperative groups, will establish its new theme and its new center somewhere out in the west, probably Chicago.

From Chicago that newer capitalism will operate not upon those who in that great agricultural district produce the millions of tons of soil products that fill America's bread basket, but the newer capitalism will work for the benefit of those farmers.

The newer capitalism will endeavor to serve the industries and the soil producers surrounding Chicago, just as the newer capitalism out in California is trying to adjust its rates and its service to the great body of citrus producers in that state.

The United States senate may not realize what it is doing in holding the present post-mortem on Wall street's international loans and short selling of stocks.

What the senate is doing is pulling the fangs and teeth of an old manipulative exploitive capitalism that had its lair in Wall street. It is just as necessary a job as the one which confronted the farmer who years ago went out with a gun and ran down to earth the predatory animal that was periodically raiding his flocks.

When the senate's job is ended we believe that Wall street will be just about through.

SOME TRAINING TABLE RULES.

DR. RUBNER, the German authority on nutrition, thinks men in training for sports need not live on a diet that differs greatly from that of other people, according to a Berlin news letter in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The diet on which he reports is as follows:

Breakfast, a large cup of coffee with a liberal amount of hot milk, 2 slices of bread with butter or marmalade.

Lunch, 3 to 5 ounces meat, 5 or 6 potatoes, a vegetable or salad, fruit.

Supper, 3 slices bread with cold meat and fruit.

This supplies something over 3,000 calories and is enough for a man weighing 154 pounds and engaging in reasonable physical exercises.

Another investigator, Dr. Pickert of Hamburg, had a group of 24 young policemen in training for a month. They were given a diet of substantially the same sort. It consisted of meat, bread, fresh vegetables, and salads, and yielded 4,300 calories. The men gained in weight, kept in excellent health, were always in fine physical condition, and performed their training tasks well.

These experiences indicate that men in training commonly overeat. If we are to accept the reports that come from the training camps of prize fighters, the prospective contestants not only eat far more meat than they need, but they also overeat in general.

These German reports indicate that a training table should not differ materially from the ordinary dinner table. The outstanding characteristic is that the foods served are simple in kind and in preparation. They are the ordinary foods that everyday people find wholesome. There are no heavy meals and no appetite-inviting cooking.

There are many office workers who regard one cup of coffee and two slices of bread as a light breakfast. Three to five ounces of meat is about one-fifth to one-third of a pound. I have seen an alderman eat two double porterhouse steaks at a single sitting. Five or six potatoes, however, would prove formidable. One cup of coffee a day would be regarded as a deprivation by some.

STARCH AS A FOOD.

H. J. B. writes:

1. Is starch a necessity in the human diet?
2. Could a man thrive on proteins, greens, and starchless fruits?
3. Do lions get any starch?

REPLY.

1. Carbohydrate is. It is the cheapest food material and is also a good, easily digested, easily assimilated source of energy and heat. Starch is one of the carbohydrates and the one most used. Possibly we could get our carbohydrates wholly as sugars, but that would be troublesome, expensive, and otherwise unsatisfactory.
2. Each of the foods mentioned contains some carbohydrates. Vegetables and fruits always contain some starch. In very ripe fruits much of the starch has been changed to sugar. In coarser foods, including peels and stringy fibers, some of it has been changed to another kinsman, cellulose.

RUPTURED APPENDIX.

S. B. writes: Several months ago I was operated on for ruptured appendix. It burst three days before operation. There is still a drainage of pus. I am 18 years old.

1. Does what I eat form pus?
2. Does a great deal of walking harm it in any way?
3. How can I hasten its healing?

REPLY.

1. No. After operation on an appendicial abscess such as you had, continued discharge of pus is almost the rule. These are infected tissues within your body. Your diet is not an important factor.
2. It is not probable that walking is harming you.
3. Take proper care of the wound. That is the best way to promote healing. You may need some further surgical treatment.

ADMINISTRATOR'S FEE.

Chicago, May 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Will you please advise me whether or not an administrator is entitled to a fee for such service? 2. If so, should such a bill be filed in Probate court to be deducted from money due the beneficiaries? 3. Can the beneficiaries direct the court to pay a stipulated amount to such administrator? 4. Would the laws of Minnesota allow such an agreement? E. Z.

1. The statute authorizes a fee of not over 6 per cent of the personal property.
2. Yes.
3. Ordinarily the administrator submits a final account allowing to himself what he considers a fair fee. If no objections are filed the court is likely to approve such account.
4. Yes, in the ordinary case.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROSECUTION NECESSARY.

Chicago, May 1.—[Friend of the People.]—What can be done to demolish some of the hazardous buildings, both wooden and brick, to be found on Van Buren street east of Racine? Not only are they unsightly but dangerous to public safety. H. C. K.

The three two story frame buildings referred to are in a dilapidated and unsafe condition and the owner has been notified to demolish them. As the order has not been complied with, the matter has been placed in the hands of the law department for prosecution. JOHN E. ERICSSON, Deputy, Department of Buildings.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, May 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If I have a judgment against Smith or judgment note in Cook county for work done on his house in southern Illinois, and Smith sells his house to Jones, can I fall back on Jones for the amount of the note? 2. I have not filed my judgment note in that county, only in Cook county, as Smith lives here.

3. Is there any way for me to now file a lien or judgment against the house after Jones has bought it? W. R.

1. If it is a Cook county judgment and the real estate is in Cook county then the judgment would be a lien which would follow the property into the hands of the purchaser.
2. If you are asking as to the effect of a Cook county judgment on property in southern Illinois, the answer is that the lien would not follow the property into the hands of the purchaser. You should have filed a transcript there.
3. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A RACE HOSS AND MEMORIES.

If we had any money we could afford to bet with we would like to place a small wager on Burgoo King. Not that we ever saw Burgoo King or know his record or that we've been given a hot tip by a man who has a cousin who waters the horses that are going to run in the Kentucky Derby tomorrow. But one dark night years ago we were whisked away from a hotel in Cincinnati and told to ask no questions and keep silent. We went across the turgid, somber Ohio and up and over the Kentucky hills until finally we stopped. Strange beings were moving mysteriously around an open fire over which a great caldron bubbled. "Them thyare niggahs have been a cooking that there burgoo for forty-eight hours and now it's ready." Cups and plates and hot biscuit were passed around, and then the savory burgoo was poured into the cups and then——

Years have passed since that night, but the memory of that delectable mess called burgoo lingers yet. Burgoo! There is nothing like it in all the great wide world. There is no use trying to describe it. As the country correspondent said when the opera house burned down, "it was something that baffles description." We never had any heavenly manna, but we imagine burgoo is like that. Anyhow, the very mention of the word today makes us grow sentimental. And so we would like to bet on Burgoo King merely because of the sweet and tender association of his name with that wonderful liquid brewed down in the hills of old Kentucky.

Burgoo! Oh, if Burgoo King can run as sweetly as burgoo tastes he'll win in a walk.

A RONDEAU OF RODOMONTADE

All the pronouns are vertical now: "It is I."
"It is we!"
"The primaries prove that the people have sought one like me."
"If the nation salvation would win, let them put me in power."
"My party and I are the country's own heaven-sent dower, Proper cits will agree
And no patriot he
Who disputes it." By Zeus, it is certainly lovely, this plea.
Such competence modestly rising to flourish and flower!
All the pronouns are vertical now.

Well, they've lately remodeled a Washington tomb that is free—
Free of name, party, promise; eternally destined to be
As a rock and a refuge: a world-mark and sanctified tower
And the soldier beneath, like his service, is nameless this hour.
Perhaps 'tis as well that he sleeps, that he walks not to see
All the pronouns are vertical now.

THE SOLICITOR.

TWO, THREE, FOUR, FIVE, and more pages were given by the newspapers all over this broad land to Mr. Capone upon his trip from Chicago to his future residence in Atlanta. It's a good thing Al went away when he did instead of after the presidential election in November. If he had gone after the ballots were counted and the result announced the President elect would have got only seven lines on page thirteen.

AND AS THE GREAT NEWS echoes and echoes around the world how are we to persuade the denizens of China and Europe and far off Sumatra and those that dwell upon the other side of the equator that Mister Capone was merely being taken from one jail to another and not being crowned king of America?

MUSSOLINI is going to send a statue of Chris Columbus to our World's Fair next year. Which was mighty nice of Mussolini, and those captious individuals who say the Duce claims to be the discoverer of America ought to be ashamed of themselves.

"INVENTS MACHINE to Enable Blind Persons to See."—The Trib. However, we are a bit skeptical over the report that all of our statesmen in Washington have ordered one of the new inventions.

AND GREATLY TO THE SURPRISE of one and all, George Bernard Shaw honored the opening of the new Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon by being present in person. A spirit message from the far side of the Styx last night said that when Mr. Shakespeare looked across the void and saw George Bernard paying him a little attention he broke down and cried like a child.

TODAY IS THE ONE HUNDREDTH anniversary of the death of the great poet Goethe. One hundred years! And on the north side where there is a street named in honor of the poet half the population pronounce it Goaty street and the other half call it Go-easy street. Ah, fame, fame, how hollow thou art!

PERSONAL EPITAPH.

I may sometimes have written rather rank verse,
But I have never written free nor blank verse.

EOLUS.

AN AMERICAN who is walking backward around the world has been put in jail in Turkey because the Turks don't understand why a man should walk backward around the world. But over here Hooey P. Long and lots of our most eminent thinkers and fluent talkers walk backward and nobody thinks anything of it. We're used to it.

A CHICAGO ALDERMAN suggests Christmas savings clubs for taxpayers. It is very cheering to the taxpayers to remind them that after all there will come another Christmas and that there is—there is—oh, there is indeed a Santa Claus.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor, Arthur Pearson Scott, associate professor of history.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What did the Greeks contribute to western civilization?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

How were the Egyptian hieroglyphics deciphered?

ANSWER:

The Egyptian system of writing, after being forgotten for over fifteen hundred years, was rediscovered by scholars in the nineteenth century. The chief key was the Rosetta stone, found by the French when Napoleon invaded Egypt. This contained an inscription written in the old Egyptian characters and also in Greek. Patient study showed which Egyptian signs corresponded with the known Greek letters in certain proper names. From this the sound of some of the Egyptian words was revealed. Then it was found that Coptic, a language still understood by the Christian Egyptians, was a direct descendant of the ancient Egyptian tongue, and thus the meanings of many words could be guessed. Since then progress has been steady.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 6, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Danger of an immediate break with Germany over submarine warfare controversy has been averted by Berlin's reply to the President's ultimatum, according to the prevailing official opinion. Whether diplomatic relations shall be severed eventually depends on the future conduct of the German submarine warfare. If Germany resumes the sinking of merchantmen without warning or without providing for the safety of noncombatants on such vessels, the President, according to his closest advisers, will not hesitate to dismiss Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and recall Ambassador Gerard from Berlin. The general official opinion is that the German reply complies with the letter, if not the spirit, of Wilson's ultimatum.

LONDON.—The Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily News says that Holland deduces from Germany's reply to the United States an anxiety on the part of Germany for negotiations with Great Britain, through the United States, for the resumption of conditions of contraband existing prior to December, 1914, leading to negotiations of a wider nature and embracing even peace conditions.

EL PASO, Tex.—Sudden intervention of Gen. Carranza has caused a hitch in border negotiations regarding the bandit campaign in Mexico, according to information received from an apparently reliable source. Gen. Carranza, the information said, has refused to ratify the agreement effected by Gen. Scott and Gen. Obregon. Carranza insists, it is said, that Gen. Obregon induce the American government at least to fix a date for the withdrawal of its troops.

DUBLIN.—Four more rebel prisoners were sentenced to death by court martial and shot by British soldiers today. They were Joseph Plunkett, Edward Daly, Michael O'Hanrahan, and William Pearse.

PARIS.—A statement issued this afternoon asserts that the recent progress of the French near Dead Man hill to the northwest of Verdun has been one of the most successful operations on the western front in months. The statement claims that the French have regained all of the trenches which had been taken by the Germans near Dead Man hill in the last three months and says the enemy has been driven back to positions which he held at the start of March.

CHICAGO.—The milk wagon drivers for ten of the Bowman Dairy company stations went on strike at midnight and three hours later the strike was settled by the company granting the strikers' demands in full. Other milk dealers are expected to follow the Bowman lead. Nine cent milk to the public is forecast. Thus far the Bowman company has held to 8 cents.

THEY TRIED IT.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 30.—In looking over THE DAILY TRIBUNE that comes to us each day I noted the "Back to the Farm" editorial.

Last October we left Chicago, driving east. En route we saw many vacant farms and most abject poverty, but, being optimistic, we chose one in Virginia that had been idle four years.

Slowly, very slowly, it is evolving into a home. The neighbors are fine, but do not understand city ways.

We have a pig, fowls, and are prospecting for a cow. These and seeds, with the cost of plowing, getting the place in shape, etc., have eaten into an unbelievable amount of money.

Do not go expecting dairy and vegetables along with poultry and eggs to be waiting to be garnered. It means a hard day's work every day this summer. Make due allowance for drought and storms. The latter nearly finished us. Fuel must be obtained.

Look well to your neighbors and do not abuse any kindness shown you. "You cannot eat your cake and have it" is trite, but it applies to selling produce. Prices are shamefully low, but if one has courage to weather the disappointments the end will justify the means. MRS. W. A. PLEES.

CERTAIN FAILURE.

Chicago, April 27.—Your editorial "A Way Out for the Unemployed" in this morning's paper is, based on the facts contained in the editorial itself, absolutely silly. Trained farmers who have given their lives to farming have been unable to make a living on this land that can be had almost for the asking—lands which, as you say, "have reverted to the state for taxes or reverted to the mortgage owner through foreclosure."

Doesn't that mean anything to you? Then you wish to send untrained factory workers to do something like that?

How many farmers will be allowed to remain on their land, except through sufferance, after this fall?

If this condition continues for two more years not one per cent of the farmers will be allowed to stay on their land. JOHN B. OKIE.

TAX RATES AND DEPRESSION.

Chicago, May 3.—The idea that high taxes have been the chief cause of depression is no doubt perfectly acceptable to that type of mind which contends that if tax rates had been lower during the recent boom period more money would have been available for stock market and real estate speculation, thus precluding the possibility of a slump.

If there is any question as to the fundamental cause of our troubles the foregoing specimen of general opinion on economic matters contains the answer.

GEORGE F. MCMAHON.

A DEPOSITOR.

Chicago, April 29.—I am just a laundress with a husband who has been paralyzed for 20 years. It took me 18 years to save $1,000, we have no life insurance, and I wonder if some kind intelligent person would tell me if there will ever be any money paid back out of the Sheridan Trust bank, or what they would do in case of death in the family with your life savings gone? G. L.

A VISITOR IN CHICAGO.

Dallas, Tex., April 28.—As a recent visitor in Chicago I had an experience which compels me to sincerely praise your much maligned police department.

While parked on West Adams street about one month ago my car was broken into and robbed of $350 worth of contents, all valuable electrical laboratory equipment. I reported the loss to the Des Plaines street police station, where I was shown every courtesy and attention, but was not much impressed with the chances of recovery.

Before leaving Chicago I notified the police to contact with Mr. Boal of the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company in case of developments and returned to Texas with the feeling that it was all merely a matter of form and no results need be expected. Imagine my surprise today when I received an express shipment containing about 85 per cent of the stolen instruments, all in first class condition.

Inasmuch as lurid headlines and crime fiction have given us outlanders a derogatory opinion of a really efficient detective organization, I hope that you will see fit to publish this incident in a way which will reflect credit on the boys and help assure prospective visitors that it will not be necessary to bring a bodyguard when they attend the coming exposition. L. E. ADLER.

THE IRISH OATH.

Oak Park, Ill., April 30.—Thank you for your editorial "The Irish Oath to the King." In every generation men have died for Ireland. Irishmen of this generation have set themselves the task of ending this age old conflict. If they succeed, it will be a glorious thing. If they don't, the struggle will go on.

I have known De Valera since we were both children in the same little Irish village. My brothers were his first teachers. He is no idle dreamer nor fiery radical, as his opponents like to paint him, but a man who knows his cause is just and has the courage to fight for it. He has a strong will, great heart and great mind. He is a poor man and the office of president should mean much to him; but I know he would sacrifice it tomorrow if keeping it would interfere with the interests of Ireland. TESSIE FARRELL.

STATE IS DEALT BLOW AT TRIAL OF SERRITELLA

Ruling by Judge Excludes Most of Evidence.

The state was dealt a blow in the Serritella-Hochstein conspiracy trial yesterday when Judge James J. Kelly indicated he would withdraw from the jury's consideration much of the testimony which has been presented by the prosecution.

JUDGE J. J. KELLY. [Wallinger Photo.]

Daniel A. Serritella, state senator and Capone henchman, who was city sealer under the former city administration, and Harry Hochstein, 20th ward politician and former deputy sealer under Serritella, are expected today to take the witness stand to defend themselves on the charge that they conspired to cheat Chicago housewives of millions of dollars through allowing merchants to short weight their patrons.

Rules as State Closes.

The ruling of Judge Kelly came after Assistant State's Attorneys Harold Keele and Henry Seyfarth had closed the state's case.

Chief Defense Attorney Benedict J. Short and his associates, Michael Ahern and Miles Devine, presented motions to direct a verdict of not guilty, and to strike portions of the evidence. The first was overruled.

Judge Kelly joined actively in the arguments over the motion to strike all evidence relating to acts committed prior to Oct. 17, 1930, the date of Hochstein's appointment to office. The state had shown that previous to this date, running back to 1929, a lawyer for the National Tea company, named Mintz, had fixed many short weight complaints against the company's stores through Serritella.

Fixing Continues.

Mintz' secretary testified that after the lawyer died in September, 1929, she had continued to take the complaints to Serritella, who continued to fix them. This witness said Serritella repeatedly asked for money, and that he told her Mintz had given him $6,000 for fixing complaints.

Judge Kelly said that although a conspiracy might have existed between Mintz and Serritella, it had ended with Mintz' death. The state sought to show that the secretary was also a conspirator, and continued as one, but Judge Kelly held she was "no more than an A. D. T. messenger would have been." Prosecutor Keele then said a new witness had been discovered yesterday who might testify that the National Tea company had donated provisions to Serritella's basket fund in 1929, and Judge Kelly said he would hear this witness today, reserving decision meanwhile.

DOCTOR SUCCESSFULLY DETERMINES SEX OF CHILD BEFORE BIRTH

Pasadena, Cal., May 5.—[Special.]—Success in an extended series of biological tests seeking to determine sex of unborn babies, was announced by Dr. John H. Dorn of San Francisco today at sessions of the California State Medical association convention. Associated with Dr. Dorn were Dr. Edward I. Sugarman and Dr. Frank Lynch, the latter of the University of California medical school.

According to the disclosures Dr. Dorn believes it possible to foretell sex of a child after the fifth month. He said that the biological tests were conducted by injecting fluid from the body of an expectant mother into the vital organs of rabbits, after which it was found that fluids from the mother of a daughter produced great stimulation and some changes in the rabbit's vital organs, while no such reactions were observed in cases of mothers who bore boys.

He said that of 43 women the sex was positively determined prior to birth, 20 boys and 23 girls babies being foretold without error.

WALKER LINKED TO NEW YORK BUS GRAFT PLOT

Banker Tells of Mayor's Plan to Raise Cash.

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—Mayor James J. Walker, whom the backers of the Equitable Coach company called "the boy friend," once contemplated asking public financing for the company, Charles Mitchell of the National City bank disclosed today in testimony before the Hofstadter legislative committee.

This was in January, 1928, some six months after the mayor had swung a hostile board of estimate into line to approve the granting of a franchise to the bus company in which his friend, State Senator John A. Hastings, had been promised a third interest.

At that time, it was indicated in a series of cryptic telegrams introduced in evidence by Samuel Seabury, chief counsel to the investigating committee, Tammany Hall had served notice upon Mr. Walker that he could have until April 15 to get the Equitable going or look elsewhere for a company to carry out his campaign pledges in 1925.

Discussed Raising Cash.

Frank R. Fageol, president of the Twin Coach company, one of the Equitable's original backers, declared he would have been "damnably surprised" if the mayor had not exerted himself to end the "financial paralysis," of which the company finally died.

Even before the franchise was granted in July, 1927, Mayor Walker discussed the prospects of financing the company with William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry company at city hall, and referred him to Senator Hastings as one familiar with all the details.

Mr. Woodin took the witness stand himself to tell of his conversations at the city hall and he declared that he looked upon Senator Hastings as "the representative of the mayor."

Mr. Mitchell's appearance as a witness came at the end of a tempestuous hearing.

Banker Testifies.

Mr. Mitchell said he went to city hall in response to a telephone request from Mayor Walker. Describing his visit the banker said:

"He asked if I would study the situation or have it studied either with the idea of our company doing some public financing for the Equitable Coach company, or if we were not prepared to do that, if I would give him a sufficiently favorable report thereon as to enable him to go before the public of the city of New York and ask for subscriptions to stock from such private persons, "and expressed the opinion that this was a favorable opportunity, that it was in the interests of the city, and that the citizens of New York, would, upon his call, purchase the necessary securities to finance it."

46 ARE SEIZED IN RAIDS ON THREE GAMBLING JOINTS

Detectives from the state's attorney's office yesterday took 46 prisoners in raids on three alleged gambling houses. Louis Glaser, keeper, and 13 inmates were arrested at 641 West Madison street, a cigar store which has been raided four times in the last two weeks.

The prisoners will be arraigned today before Judge Thomas A. Green in the jury court, who granted discharges in two of the three previous cases because detectives had no search warrants. Judge James F. Fardy discharged prisoners on the same ground in the other case. The cigar store is said by police to belong to J. B. Drell, once kidnaped and alleged to have paid $25,000 for his release.

Detectives forced their way into a second floor apartment at 1447 Madison street and arrested John Fisher as keeper and 15 customers. One man leaped from the second floor window to get away. Harry Dean, keeper, and 15 customers were arrested in a cigar store at 2322 Madison street. Bet and racing sheets were seized in all three raids.

LITHUANIAN RULE TOTTERS AFTER MEMEL ELECTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEMEL, May 5. Final returns totaled today for yesterday's Memel parliamentary election give the German parties a decisive victory over the Lithuanians, who were attempting to increase their control in this "international" state. It is considered possible that the Memel directorate under Richard Simmet, Lithuanian, will resign as a result of the election. A record vote was cast, 62,883, or 97 per cent of the qualified voters, going to the polls.

The Germans reflected eighteen delegates and may gain an additional seat. The Lithuanian parties reelected only five delegates. The remaining six seats are split, as before, between the Socialists and communists.

Memel became of international importance last February when Germany protested to the league of nations after Lithuanian orders had removed the German president of the Memel parliament on a charge of dealing illegally with Germany.

COMMONS GOES WILD WHEN IRISH QUESTION POPS

Judicial Court Suggested for Oath Dispute.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 5.—The house of commons ran amuck today when Geoffrey Mander, a National Liberal, asked J. H. Thomas, dominions secretary, whether he is willing to submit the Irish oath of allegiance controversy to a specially constituted court of appeal or to The Hague court.

J. H. THOMAS. [A. P. Photo.]

The question was answered not by Thomas but by a burst of howls of "No, no, no!" from the Tory benches. Intense excitement prevailed as shouts and retorts filled the air. Finally Thomas managed to get out that President Eamon de Valera deliberately had chosen to propose abolition of the oath by unilateral action. That did not satisfy, however, so Mander put his question again. Once more he was drowned out by Tory crises of "No."

All Try to Speak.

D. Kirkwood, a Clydesider, Neil MacLean, a Laborite, and George Lansbury, Labor leader, all were on their feet trying to get a word in. Finally Lansbury got a chance to ask whether, if a member asked a question, it was in order for him to be shouted down.

The speaker replied, "I haven't said it is in order to shout down anybody, but I don't see how I'm going to stop it."

Lansbury pointed out that it is in the speaker's power to adjourn the house if it is in a state of disorder. G. Buchanan, Laborite, mentioned that when one or two members made interjections they were suspended, but when a large number interrupted they got away with it.

Baldwin Pours Oil.

Stanley Baldwin, president of the council, who is acting leader in Prime Minister MacDonald's absence, then tried to pour oil on the troubled waters by saying that he was sure that Thomas would be willing to answer the question if given a chance. Buchanan wanted to know if Baldwin or the speaker was running the house.

Speaker Capt. E. A. FitzRoy replied that he did not know what all the trouble was about, and called for the question again. Mander repeated it and Thomas replied:

"The matter in dispute is a treaty agreement between two parties. It is customary when there is a difference of opinion for one or the other to ask for a consultation to discuss the differences.

Attention Should Be Called.

"In this particular case President de Valera, without consultation or intimation of any kind, proposes to break the Irish side of the treaty. It is not for us as the government, being the other party to the treaty, to do other than to draw attention to the fact that he is breaking the treaty."

After a little more back chat the matter was allowed to drop. It is considered significant that this is the first time that the treaty with Ireland has been acknowledged in the British parliament as a full fledged treaty.

WANT TO SPLIT AN ATOM? HERE'S WAY TO DO IT

Man Who Divided One Explains Process.

Two youthful Englishmen have just stirred the scientific world with their atom splitting experiments. They have shown how energy may be obtained by annihilating mass without employing radioactive substances. One of them, Dr. J. D. Cockroft, explains in the following article just how it was done.

CAMBRIDGE, England, May 5.—(AP)—Dr. J. D. Cockroft discussed today his new method of disintegrating atoms, the chief feature of which is the use of an electrical apparatus. Hitherto the disintegration of atoms has been accomplished only with the assistance of radioactive substances and cosmic rays.

Dr. Cockroft and his colleague, Dr. E. T. S. Walton, have shown that atoms of lithium, boron, and fluorine may be disintegrated by protons shot at them with a sort of electrical gun.

Principle Is Simple.

Their achievement rests on the development of an electrical discharge tube which shoots particles with a violence comparable to the violence of a particle shot out of a radium atom when it explodes.

The principle of the apparatus is simple. A stream of hydrogen atomic nuclei (protons) is projected down a long tube. The ends of the tube are connected to the terminals of a source of direct current at high voltage.

Under electrical pressure due to the high voltage, the protons are accelerated and made to rush down the tube with enormously increased speed. At the bottom of the tube specimens of lithium and other elements are placed in the way of the swiftly moving protons. Some of the protons hit the nucleus of the lithium atom.

Disintegrate If Struck.

Dr. Cockroft and Dr. Walton found that if the protons are moving under a pressure of 125,000 volts the lithium atoms may be disintegrated if struck and caused to emit particles.

Preliminary observations show that these particles probably are the nuclei of helium atoms, of 8 million electron volts energy.

As the lithium atomic nucleus contains seven protons, Dr. Cockroft supposes the impinging proton is captured, making eight protons and four electrons. This group immediately splits into two nuclei, each containing four protons and two electrons, which are helium atomic nuclei.

The pair of helium nuclei are not quite so heavy or massive as the lithium atom and proton which produced them. The loss in mass represents the liberation of energy, and the great energy of the ejected helium nuclei comes from this transformation of mass into energy.

No Energy Is Created.

Thus Dr. Cockroft has discovered how energy may be obtained by annihilating mass without employing radioactive substances.

It must be understood this does not mean that energy is being created, but it does mean that scientists now know how to obtain, by an electrical machine, energy from mass.

The present amounts of energy so obtained are quite negligible for practical purposes.

In these experiments the protons act somewhat as the trigger of an atomic gun. When the trigger is pulled it disturbs the atom, which then explodes and lets forth much more energy than was required to detonate.

In the future, perhaps, scientists will discover, on the lines of Dr. Cockroft's experiments, how to extract energy in practicable quantities from atoms, for atoms are nothing more than packets of energy made by nature during the evolution of the universe.

But this practical problem may be unsolved for a hundred years or more despite these brilliant beginnings.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT DEMANDS A. B. FALL BE RELEASED ON SUNDAY

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—After years of trying to get Albert B. Fall in prison, the department of justice today found itself trying to get him out—by Sunday.

An order from the department directing Warden Swope of the New Mexico state penitentiary to release the former cabinet officer probably will go forward tomorrow. Swope has said he would not release the 71 year old prisoner on less authority than that of President Hoover or the federal parole board.

Fall's sentence of a year and a day, taking time off for good behavior, expires Sunday. A fine of $100,000 still is unpaid. Swope said today the commitment specifically directed that Fall be kept until the fine was paid.

As the warden sees it, there are three things which might bring Fall's release—the President, the parole board, or a pauper's oath from the prisoner.

This is the department of justice view: The parole board had nothing to do with the case; the year and a day sentence made no mention of holding him for the $100,000; he was committed to the New Mexico prison on orders of the prison bureau of the department and must be released on its orders.

Dr. O'Brien, injured in an automobile accident, was brought from a Detroit hospital and carried into the operating room, where a hastily constructed sling held him in place while he worked. U. S. ARMS ENVOY CALLS SUBMARINE "ASSASSIN OF SEA"

Swanson Condemns Craft at Geneva.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 5.—Senator Claude A. Swanson, American disarmament conference delegate, starred again today as the naval commission concluded its discussions on the burning question of whether offensive weapons are those "you have or those we have."

Every one deems the capital ship an offensive weapon except those that have them—the United States, Great Britain, and Japan. Every one deems the aircraft carrier offensive except the United States and Great Britain. Nobody deems the submarine offensive except Germany, to whom they are forbidden for this reason, Russia, the United States, and Great Britain.

Condemns Undersea Craft.

Senator Swanson made the last of his three appearances before this commission with an eloquent condemnation of undersea craft and an intimation, which the Japanese seemed to think was directed at them, to the effect that if the American and British pleas for a ban on submarines are not realized, all nations should be allowed to use them. He called the submarine "the assassin of the sea."

The senator ended by formally reserving the right of the United States to decide for itself the size of submarines. Nations with overseas possessions, he said, if forced to retain their submarines, would feel obliged to determine freely their most efficient size from a standpoint of defense. The senator did not mention the Philippines, but when he spoke of the nations whose freedom to develop naval bases is limited by treaties, the Japanese seemed to hear it before any of the others.

The Italians said that if capital ships are abolished there will be no need for submarines, but that in the meantime they must be retained. The French, Japanese, and a flock of small powers also developed arguments in favor of economical weapons.

Japanese Want Diving Boats.

The Japanese thought them particularly useful. They objected to the British proposal for submarines of small tonnage, arguing that they are of small practical value.

Senator Swanson then arose and said:

"How quickly the horrors of war fade from the human mind! I can remember when all responsible statesmen and the press of the world pilloried the submarine as an assassin of the seas. Now it is the most valued defender of the home."

10,000 SEE PARADE OF THE CHILDREN AT BLOSSOM FESTIVAL

St. Joseph, Mich., May 5.—[Special.]—The third annual St. Joseph children's parade, outstanding spectacle of the tenth annual Blossom week, took place this afternoon. The parade was witnessed by 10,000 spectators, lining every inch of parking space for six blocks.

The St. Joseph school's blossom queen, 7 year old Jean Vincent Bestar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bestar, rode in a dazzling pink and green butterfly, drawn by a black and white pony driven by Orlow Richard Johnston of Benton Harbor, garbed in white. Two footmen, Richard Barlow and Robert Gersonde, were in black and white. Queen Jean, in white satin, with sparkling crown, held an immense sweet pea bouquet.

Three thousand gayly costumed children from four St. Joseph schools and Berrien county's rural schools were in line with every sort of decorated float and pet. Many appeared as blossoms.

A dance was given for the children tonight. Leontine Renner, "Miss St. Joseph," also gave a dinner for Queen Margery Crampton of Grand Rapids and the blossom court.

ELMHURST FIRE AND BLAST CAUSE $35,000 DAMAGE

Damage estimated at $35,000 was caused last night and early today by a spectacular fire in a two story building at 112-114 York avenue, Elmhurst, occupied by the upholstery shop of Robert Rullman and the restaurant of Mrs. Ada Campbell. The interior of the structure was destroyed.

The fire started in the basement and Elmhurst firemen were hopeful for about an hour that it could be confined there. At about 10:30 p. m., however, a terrific explosion, believed to have been caused by gas released when pipes in the basement were melted, occurred, and Fire Chief Gus Weber and four of his men were burned and cut by flying glass.

Expectant Mother Flees Hospital; Tries Suicide

Mrs. Elizabeth Sikutski, 21 years old, 1731 Sheffield avenue, fled last night from St. Elizabeth's hospital at 1433 North Claremont avenue, where she had been taken to await the birth of a baby. At North avenue and the Milwaukee railroad tracks she threw herself in front of a switch engine in an effort to kill herself. The engineer saw her and stopped the locomotive.

NEAR FIST FIGHT ENLIVENS GUILTY DRIVER'S HEARING

A near fist fight betwen attorneys yesterday enlivened the argument for a new trial in behalf of Joseph Focht in the Criminal court of Judge Walter T. Stanton. Focht, 19 years old, of 1615 West 37th street, was found guilty of manslaughter Wednesday by a jury of auto owners. His car struck and killed Miss Eleanor Ruvene, 23 years old, 1906 North Karlov avenue, last Aug. 2.

Attorney Joseph Powers presented the new trial motion for Focht. His argument was termed unintelligible by Assistant State's Attorney John Leonard Murphy. During a recess Powers strode to Murphy's side and they exchanged words. Both launched blows, but neither landed, and they were pulled apart by bailiffs.

Judge Stanton announced that he would take the motion for a new trial under advisement and give his decision on May 13. The car which killed Miss Ruvene was an antiquated machine, 12 years, Focht admitted. It was virtually without brakes, according to testimony. Miss Ruvene was struck as she was leaving a Western avenue street car at 79th street.

Chicago's First Drawbridge

Spanning the River

The north and south sides of Chicago were permanently connected by a drawbridge, erected in 1834. Spanning the main river at Dearborn Street, the bridge, about 300 feet long, had a draw of 60 feet, hoisted for the passage of vessels by a gallows frame at either end. While traffic was sometimes interrupted by its failure to work properly, the drawbridge was an important step in Chicago's phenomenal progress.

WETS WIN ALL RACES BUT ONE IN LAKE COUNTY, IND.

Final Figures Show Liberal Gains Over State.

Final figures on the Tuesday primary vote in Lake county, Indiana, show that liberal forces, with a single exception, obtained control of all the nominations for congress and the legislature in the county.

The nominees for congress from the new First Indiana district are Oscar A. Ahlgren, Whiting war veteran, who had an 8,314 to 5,505 plurality over Mayor R. O. Johnson of Gary, for the Republican nomination, and William T. Schulte, Hammond labor leader, who won a close race for the Democratic nomination from Frank R. Martin of Hammond, 6,858 to 6,531.

Dry Runs Seventh in Race.

All of these candidates were wet. The Anti-Saloon league and the Better Government association, concentrated their efforts in the campaign behind the Rev. Fred B. Osborne of Gary, Democrat, and Miss Ora Riggs of Griffith, Republican. The minister got 1,065 votes, only 3.5 per cent of the Democratic total, to land in seventh place in a field of ten seeking the congressional nomination, and Miss Riggs got 2,589 votes, 10 per cent of the Republican poll, and finished in fourth place.

The only dry candidate to win was L. L. Huffman of Hammond, treasurer of the Better Government association. He landed in fifth place, with five to be chosen, in the Republican race for state representative. All of the Democratic candidates for the state senate and house, and all the rest of the Republican nominees are wet.

Negro Leads G. O. P. Slate.

The Democratic nominees are Fred A. Egan, Gary, and Harold L. Strickland, Hammond, for the senate; and C. T. Lassen, Cedar Lake; John F. Cory, Hammond; Martin J. Downey, Hammond; Robert L. Stanton, East Chicago, and J. C. Ellyson, Hammond, for the house. The Republicans nominated Frank L. Greenwald, Gary, and James J. Nejdl, Whiting, for the senate, and Milo C. Murray, Gary; William B. Van Horne, Gary, a reformed dry; William J. Burns, East Chicago; Bert R. Kuss, Gary, and Huffman for the house. Murray, who led the Republican poll, and Stanton are Negroes.

Dr. Andrew Hoffman of Hammond, the present coroner, was renominated by the Democrats. Frank Borman won a close race for the Democratic nomination for recorder from Miss Katherine Pattor.

August A. Bremer of Crown Point, former prosecuting attorney, won the Republican nomination for that office by 600 votes from William A. Thomas of Gary.

Wets Continue to Gain.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 5.—[Special.]—The counting of ballots continued slowly tonight throughout Indiana, with some results of the Tuesday primary still in doubt. Wet gains continued to be the feature of the largest field of candidates ever to seek party nominations in Indiana.

Mrs. Virginia Jenckes, Terre Haute, won the sixth district Democratic nomination for congress by running as a wet against Courtland C. Gillen, Greencastle, present congressman from the old fifth district who voted against the Beck-Linthicum resolution and was classed as a dry.

Congressional candidates leading in the latest returns by districts are:

First—Oscar Ahlgren, Whiting, wet Rep.; William T. Schulte, Hammond, wet Dem.

Second—Will R. Wood, Rep.; George R. Durgan, Lafayette, wet Dem.

Third—Andrew J. Hickey, Laporte, Rep.; Samuel Pettingill, wet, South Bend, Dem.; both unopposed.

Fourth—David Hogg, Fort Wayne, Rep.; James I. Farley, Auburn, wet Dem.

Fifth—J. Haymond Schuts, North Manchester, Rep.; Glenn Griswold, Peru, wet Dem.

Sixth—Fred S. Purnell, Attica, Rep.; Mrs. Virginia Jenckes, Terre Haute, wet Dem.

Seventh—George W. Henley, Bloomington, Rep.; Arthur H. Greenwood, Washington, Dem., unopposed.

Eighth—French Clements of Evansville, "moist" Rep.; John W. Boehne Jr., Evansville, wet Dem., unopposed.

Ninth—Chester A. Davis, Bedford, Rep.; E. B. Crowe, Bedford, Dem.

Tenth—Ephriam F. Bowen, Lynn, Rep.; Finley H. Gray, Connersville, Dem.

Eleventh—Dale B. Spencer, Greenfield, Rep.; Willis S. Ellis, Anderson, wet Dem [doubtful nomination].

Twelfth—William H. Harrison, Indianapolis, Rep.; Louis Ludlow, Indianapolis, Dem. [both favor dry referendum].

"Bone Dry" Author Beaten.

As conclusive results began to be tabulated regarding composition of the 1933 legislature, it became apparent that the wet trend held in the legislative elections also. Frank Wright, author of the state bone dry law enacted by the 1925 legislature, dominated by the Anti-Saloon league and the Ku Klux Klan, was defeated as one of the eleven Republican nominees here for the 1933 Indiana lower house. Similar wet or liberal victories were recorded throughout the state, especially in industrial and urban districts.

DIES AFTER FALL IN STREET.

James Finn, 68 years old, of the Salvation Army shelter, 1426 Newberry avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries suffered when he fell in the street.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

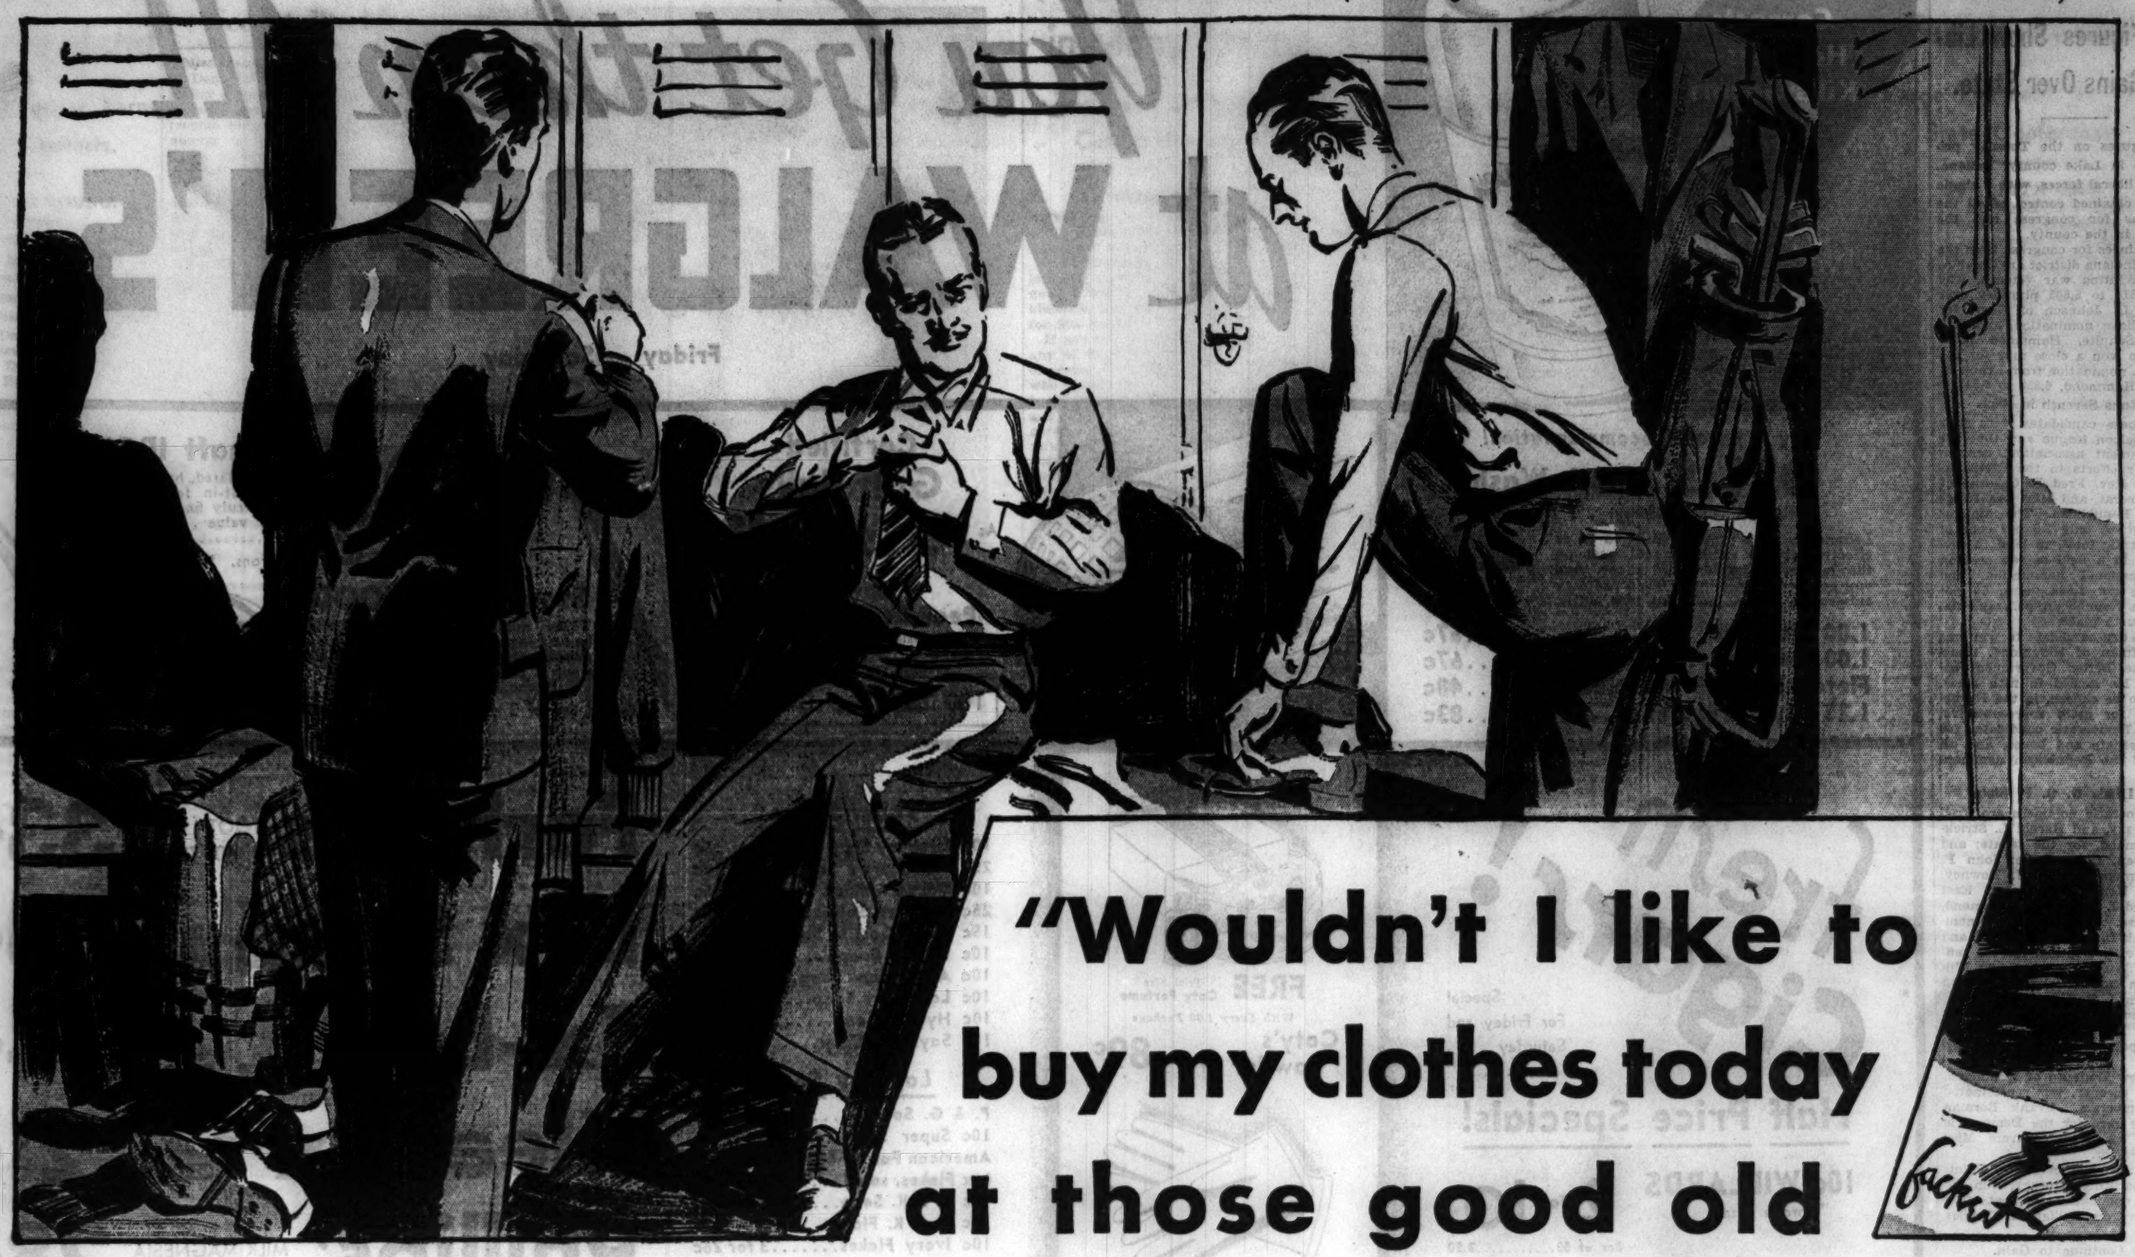
"LOOKING BACK TO 1932"

(No. 4 of a Series—Conversations in the Future)



"Wouldn't I like to buy my clothes today at those good old 1932 PRICES!"

"Have you ever thought, fellows, how little we appreciated the prices of men's apparel in 1932? Prices on clothes tumbled down to the point where a man could thriftily boast that he owned a dozen suits! When you stop to figure the economy of daily changes . . . and the prestige of plenty of clothes . . . it's a wonder we didn't 'cash in' on those low prices to a greater extent.

"Frankly — I did lay in a fine supply of shirts. I still have a few of some excellent values that I picked up for a fraction of today's prices. I've discovered that no man can possess too many shirts.

"Shoes, too, you'll recall were tremendous bargains. Men's oxfords in 1932 reached a 'low' that certainly encouraged the buying of many pair. There is no argument against the economy of daily changes in shoes.

"I filled a couple of drawers in my dresser with underwear that I bought in 1932. Wish I had bought more. I can't duplicate those values today . . . no matter how hard I try.

"Remember what a good hat cost in 1932? Amazing when we think back . . . and wonder why we didn't own more of them when they were priced so low!

"Men's hosiery, too, represented one of the outstanding values of that low-priced era. It's remarkable that we all didn't invest a few dollars in a supply of hosiery large enough to last us for a long, long time.

"Back in 1932— if you will remember, golf clubs and all sporting goods were marvelously low-priced . . . in fact, there was scarcely an item that a fellow needed that wasn't priced so low but what the buying of it represented a grand opportunity."

Buy! A word to the wise!

Derby Is Gift of Race Lovers of Old England

History Tells Many Yarns of Early Contests.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Derby day, tomorrow!

You've seen the list of probable starters, you've heard all about the swanky fashion gadgets that will dress up the grand stands, and you've read who is to be on hand—the Stuyvesant Peabodys, the Darrow Fultons, the William A. Yagers, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Eleanor Wheeler, and Edith Behr among others.

But what about the forerunners of this 58th Blue Grass Classic? It's not the oldest race in America—five others have the edge, including the Travers, established in 1864 and the Belmont in 1867—but by tradition and association with the turf in this country and England it continues America's most widely discussed sporting event.

There are a few Chicagoans—veterans of half a century when it comes to the Kentucky Derby—who remember the meetings at Churchill Downs in the '80s and '90s, gala as today but how different! They were local events in which the "scions of the blue grass vied with the scions of the Pennyrile." Each was a neighborly gathering—the southern belle and colonel came in horse drawn vehicles and home bred horses competed exclusively.

Back of this, however—back of the first race at Churchill Downs May 17, 1875, when H. P. McGrath's Aristides won the purse—are the real beginnings of the Derby—across the water in the land of the prince of Wales. For it was in 1779 that the 12th earl of Derby originated the Oaks stakes named after his seat at Woodmansterne and just a year later that the famous Epsom Derby was established. One of the big moments in American racing came two years ago, you may remember, when the 17th earl of Derby attended the Kentucky race declaring afterwards it surpassed even his highest expectations.

Derby day in England is the second and greatest in three days of racing at Epsom Downs beginning on Tuesday after Trinity Sunday. Hence it always falls on Wednesday. Before the earl of Derby, in the reign of George III., gave his name to the event, there was racing at Epsom—even in the time of Charles I., for Clarendon's "History of the Rebellion" speaks of "a meeting of the Royalists [1648] held on Banstead Downs under pretense of a horse race when 600 horses were collected and sent to Reigate." Banstead Downs then included much of what is now Epsom Downs.

To the first Derby, May 6, 1780, there were 36 subscribers and for 50 guineas Diomed, the winner, was purchased by Col. John Hoomes of Virginia and brought to America. By way of contrast the duke of Westminster received 37,500 guineas for the winner, Flying Fox, in 1900—evidence, certainly, that the turf has grown in importance, although a large amount of consideration has always been bestowed upon it.

Even in 1633 Pepys in his diary records: "Having intended this day to go to Banstead Downs to see a famous race, I sent Will to get himself ready to go with me but I hear it is put off because the lords do sit in parliament today." Years later the tables were turned when parliament adjourned because the Derby was being run.

Iroquois, ridden by Fred Archer, was the first American horse to capture the English purse. This was in 1881 and here's the verse that Punch produced the following day:

"The Yankee came down with Long Fred on his back,
And his colors were gleaming with cherry and black,
He flashed to the front and the British star paled
As the field died away and the favorite failed."

John I. Dennehy, Nancy Poole in Secret Wedding

Miss Nancy Hanks Poole and John I. Dennehy dispensed with the formality of having their engagement announced and of having any fuss and trouble about a wedding by going quietly to the rectory of the Holy Name cathedral yesterday and being married by Father Morrison, and then telling their respective parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Woods George of 4846 Kimbark avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy of Hubbard Woods.

Miss Jane Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Martin of Highland Park, and her fiancé, Luman B. Wing Jr. of Evanston, whose engagement was announced the middle of March, attended the bridal couple. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy just returned yesterday from having spent the winter in Pasadena, where their daughter, Josephine, was married to Prince Nicholas Galitzine on April 2.

Mr. Dennehy and his bride left last night to motor to the Derby and from Louisville they will go south for a short wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Rockcastle of Kenilworth announce the marriage last Monday of their sister, Katherine Rockcastle, to Harlan W. Bird. After June 1 the couple will reside at 1722 Thome avenue.

'Tis with our judgments as our watches, none
Go just alike, yet each believes his own.—Pope.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

If you like your melodrama fast and as full of a number of things as a Christmas fruit cake, you'll go for "The Trial of Vivienne Ware" in a big way.

From opening till closing moment surprise after surprise is sprung. You are excitingly transported from palatial home to night club, to courtroom. And what a litter of events IS born in that courtroom!

Miss Vivienne Ware is a wide-eyed maiden, presumably of the upper crust, who is engaged to a roue. The latter gets bumped off, as we say in ganglandese, and Vivienne, who is known to have resented her fiancé's attentions to a certain cabaret dancer, is accused of the crime. She's defended by a rising young lawyer who had expected to marry the delectable bit of blondness before his time was beaten by the trifler who trifled once too often. . . . And so on.

Comedy is introduced by a high-powered radio announcer describing the sensational trial and a newspaper sob sister who, through the microphone, paints feeling word pictures of the defendant's actions and clothes and describes to the last polka dot what the feminine witnesses are wearing. Zasu Pitts impersonates this fluent lady and she's as funny as Hoover economy.

Other noteworthy performances are those of Allan Dinehart as prosecuting attorney and Herbert Mundlin as the valet of the deceased. Joan Bennett does very nicely, but the rôle seemed a bit too much for her. As a whole the film is well cast and it has been directed with zestful intelligence.

If you buy movie seats to sleep in, don't be getting them at the Chicago this week—because "The Trial of Vivienne Ware" is the sort of movie that keeps you awake.

See you tomorrow!

Children at St. Vincent's Baby Week Party Guests

St. Vincent's orphanage took special note of National Baby week yesterday, when forty children were entertained at a party given by Julius Tannen, master of ceremonies at the College Inn, Hotel Sherman. Remembering that he had been brought up in an orphanage, Tannen visited St. Vincent's with everything he could think of to give his guests, all under 5 years old, a good time. There were games, in which the host took part, and finally ice cream and cake for every one. Tannen spent ten years in a New York orphanage.

Garb for Idle Hours Offered in Many Styles

In Tea Gown or Pajamas—Color's the Thing.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THERE have been hundreds of heated arguments during the last year concerning the superiority, fashionable and otherwise, of lounging pajamas over new hotess tea gowns, trailing negligees, Japanese kimonos, and what have you to wear for idle hours!

If you are an ardent enthusiast for any of them you'll give up the task of trying to convert the languid lady who gets a big bang out of trafling back and forth through doorways, up and down the stairs and around dangerous corners full of snatching furniture—and, likewise, the same languishing soul that clings to her tea gowns and such recognizes the futility of even trying to change the freedom feasting female that climbs into smart lounging pajamas as soon as she gets off the street.

Tea gown makers and pajama planners have pacifically designed for both parties—you can buy plentifully of all sorts, colors, combinations, fabrics, and styles, whether you are an unconverted pajama collector or a gal gone romantic, with definite yearnings for frills and tripperies that only hostess gowns will satisfy.

No appreciative shopper will deny the very alluring fascination of the newest hostess gowns—if you are one of the lucky company who dawdle through breakfast, linger indoors till noon, spend the afternoon as unhurriedly as the morning, and lounge informally at home during the evening, then tea gowns or hostess gowns, or anything that trails and makes a picture out of you, is what you must have.

And the newest ones are as devastatingly perfect as anything you have seen in the movies lately;

But pajama buyers are still buying. There are no passive and don't careish sort of people who go in for lounging in pajamas; once a pajama collector, always a good, consistent buyer of new and unusual models. Real pajama hoarders bring them home [new ones, of course] as regularly as a small boy brings in stray pups.

This year new pajamas are almost screaming with stripes—stripes on the trousers like seam stripes on West Point dress uniforms; stripes on the jackets, going up and down as well as back and forth.

When you fail to fall for stripes you can be fashionably interested in triangles in an intricate geometric array. Clever new models use triangles of three and four colors to contrast a solid dark color as background. You can shrug your shoulders into pajama coats of many colors—and then turn these same coats wrong side out and wear them for better and gaudier contrast with the same original trousers and blouse combination.

Tell Program of Needlework Guild Meeting

Large Luncheon to Mark State Conference.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. RICHARDSON DUNHAM is sending out invitations for a large luncheon on Wednesday, May 25, at 1 o'clock at the Ambassador East, the guests to be those who have contributed to the Chicago branch of the Needlework Guild of America and members of the boards of the organizations to which the guild in turn has contributed.

This will be the first Illinois state conference of the guild and Mrs. Dunham is hoping that so much interest will be aroused in the work of the guild by the conference that the number of garments made by guild members will jump from 18,285 [this last year's total] to at least 40,000, Detroit's total for last year.

Mrs. Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, honorary vice president of the national guild and for ten years president of the organization, is to be the speaker at Mrs. Dunham's luncheon.

The guild, as you may or may not know, exists for no other purpose than to clothe the needy. "The charity that helps all charities" is the way the women interested in it describe this organization which collects new and appropriate garments, bedding, shoes, and household linen, to be distributed by responsible organizations, such as hospitals, day nurseries, settlement houses, etc. Last year the Chicago branch gave to 92 such institutions.

Mrs. William S. Monroe is honorary president of the Chicago branch, which was organized in 1892; Mrs. Dunham is president, Mrs. Shailer Mathews and Mrs. Kinney Smith, vice presidents; Mrs. Donald Ryerson, secretary, and Mrs. William E. Casselberry, treasurer.

Among the active workers are Mrs. Moses Wentworth, Miss Elizabeth Faulkner, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Miss Sue Corwith, Mrs. Francis C. Farwell, Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. Louis E. Laflin, Mrs. J. Alexander Waller, Mrs. Henry N. Tuttle, Mrs. Harry B. Clow Jr., Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Thomas E. Wells, Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, Mrs. Britton I. Budd, Mrs. Wilbur F. Goodspeed, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. Thomas Dennehy, Mrs. Chalkley J. Hambleton, Mrs. James W. Thorne, and Miss Marie C. Smith. Representatives from the 18 branches in Illinois will come to Chicago to attend the luncheon and conference.

3,500 MEALS PER DAY DON'T MAKE CHEF BUTT HEAD

Culinary Expert Scoffs at Temperament.

BY WILLIAM IRVIN.

"You are 100 per cent wrong when you say that a chef is 90 per cent temper. Chefs operate kitchens more efficiently than does the army operate its activities. We need no barking sergeants to move our cooks and bus boys. Our work is done smoothly and silently.

"If you would really like to learn something about modern chefs and modern kitchens I would be delighted to have you visit the world's largest restaurant and see how it is operated without the chef butting his head against the wall. And a French chef, too!"

So writes Pierre Berard, eminent chef de cuisine and culinary artist.

Pierre is the chef whom Paul Poiret, French fashion authority, called the "greatest cook in the world," and to whom President Hoover inscribed a menu card: "To Pierre, for the best meal I have ever eaten."

Calls Chef True Artist.

He is also the chef who has three times won first prize at the Exposition Culinaire in New York in competition with the world's best chefs, a medal from the French government for excellence in cookery, the Charles Gehring prize for American cooking, and the grand prize of the Chef de Cuisine Association of America.

To Pierre cuisine is an art, a great form of self-expression, and chefs are true artists.

"Temperamental? Yes, probably, but not the temperamental prima donnas that they are pictured," said the affable Pierre with a broad smile, as he led the way through an immaculate kitchen with its green tiled wall and terra cotta floor.

"You see none of my assistant chefs butting their heads against the wall," he laughed. "And I know of only one chef in Chicago who sings when he gets wrought up, probably because he is an excitable little Frenchman. He comes as near fitting the popular conception of chefs as any I know. Maybe it's temperament, maybe just his excitability. Temperament, though, really has no place in the modern kitchen nor in the modern chef. Efficiency and intelligence are the important factors in the preparation of food in large quantities."

Almost Was Architect.

Pierre supervises the preparation of the 3,500 to 4,000 meals served daily in the world's largest coffee shop.

"You see, nothing really can go wrong where there is efficiency such as we have here," he observed. "Everything in its place, everything modern. Everything running smoothly and silently. It's like this all day."

Pierre hails from Nice in the south of France, near the home of the famous Escoffier, dean of all chefs. His father, a builder, had his future mapped out for him as an architect, and an architect he would have been save for a twist of fate. A tallow horse, to be used as an ornament at a party being prepared by his uncle, chef to Prince Radziwill, was broken and there was no time to mold another one, so Pierre carved one.

"You shall be a chef!" his uncle decided. "You have the creative spark. Architects starve anyway!"

Americans Want Simple Fare.

Americans traveling in Europe may fancy foreign food and foreign cooking with an elaborate name, but at home they prefer plain light food, according to Pierre.

"When they order beef stew they want just that and not beef stew with an umpty-dumpty name," he remarked. "Occasionally some of our customers ask why we don't have French or German or some other kind of foreign dishes, and occasionally we do, but Americans as a class want light simple food."

He cited his Delight sandwich as an example. Into it go three slices of toast, three slices of tomato grilled, four slices of bacon, and American cheese, and it is baked over a hot flame. Or, as another example, plain asparagus with creamed chicken.

"Pot Likker Terrible."

"None of these is a classical dish, and by classical I mean dishes belonging to the school of cookery we had study in Europe," said Pierre. "Americans like all kinds of food, and as a result we have a distinct American cookery, which, because of our heterogeneous population, is a mixture of nearly everything. I know it exists, but it isn't something you can find in an encyclopedia of cookery."

Here Pierre brought out his scrapbook filled with clippings, famous recipes and mementoes, among which were letters of praise from Mary Pickford and others. Turning the pages he came upon a recipe for pot likker and corn pone which he had recently obtained.

"Pot likker! It is atrocious!" he exclaimed. "For a state as noted for its cookery as Louisiana to produce anything like pot likker, why it's cannibalism, that's all. I'd like to pick a good hot argument with Senator Huey P. Long about his pot likker and corn pone.

"Just listen to what this recipe calls for: A boiled mixture of turnip greens and fat pork. Think of it! Turnip greens and fat pork! And this is how the corn pone is made: Corn meal mixed with hot water and salt and cooked in a greasy skillet—imagine, a greasy skillet—until it is hard enough to knock down a yearling! I'd like a good hot argument with Senator Long."

START PLOWING 3,000 ACRES FOR RELIEF GARDENS

Land, Tools and Seeds to Be Furnished Needy.

Ground will be broken today on the 3,000 acres of idle county forest preserve land which has been made available for Cook county's unemployed to produce gardens this summer, it was announced yesterday by W. G. Baird, chairman of the Joint Emergency Relief fund's garden campaign.

A committee which includes a soils specialist of the International Harvester company; Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the forest preserves, and a representative of the relief fund, expects to make soil tests during the day and start four tractors and gangs of plows to work.

Plows, Tractors Loaned.

The harvester company has agreed to take complete charge of one 150 acre plot for the county, from testing soil and plowing to supervising the seeding, cultivating and harvesting of vegetables. Three tractors and plows have been loaned by Mr. Sauers, and additional equipment is being gathered to rush the planting, Mr. Baird said.

Yesterday heads of all the local relief stations and welfare agencies in the county met at the garden campaign offices, 10 South La Salle street. They were supplied with application blanks to enroll heads of worthy families to whom garden plots and needed equipment will be supplied.

Arrange for Seed Bids.

At the same time arrangements were completed for getting bids from wholesale seedmen on seed supplies. The seed will be sorted into packets by unemployed persons under direction of the Good Will Industries. Each packet will contain enough seed for one family's garden plot.

"As we are able to ascertain the needs of our unemployed, from the reports and applications turned in by relief agencies, additional land and equipment will be made available," said Walter H. Hoyt, assistant to Mr. Baird. "Because of the lateness of starting the project and the large numbers of unemployed we can only hope to provide garden space for those families already depending upon the county for subsistence."

SOME STORES OFFER HONEY FOR SALE IN TUBS

Cultured? Psychoanalyze Your Cheese Taste and See

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

Market indications seem to show that the taste of the American people for cheese is changing from the mild to a more snappy variety. People who know, and who can point to historical fact to prove what they say, declare that the sharper the cheese the more advanced the civilization. Whoever would have guessed that cheese appetites were an expression of our degree of culture?

Cheese Sharpens Appetite.

A bite of piquant cheese with a crunchy cracker will adapt itself as an appetizer, as an accompaniment to the salad course or as the after dinner favorite. It lends accent to the meal. To make it even a little tastier and a little more choice, spread the cheese on soda crackers or crisp water biscuits and toast them delicately in the oven.

Do you like apple pie and cheese? Creamed old English cheese will give just the proper tang. Or incorporate it in the pastry itself, substituting the cheese for a portion of the shortening. Use 6 ounces creamed old English cheese, ½ cup shortening, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ to ½ cup cold water. Cream the cheese with the shortening, then combine with the other ingredients just as you do plain pastry. Fill the pastry shell with your favorite apple filling.

Because the cheese melts so easily and smoothly, it combines well with other foods in cooking. There is, for instance, Welsh rarebit, spinach souffles, macaroni and cheese timbales, pastry squares, cheese straws, and cheese sauces.

Try It with Beans.

Green beans are delicious served with cheese sauce. For six servings string, wash, and cook 1½ quarts green beans until tender in boiling salted water. Drain. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in a saucepan, add ¼ pound creamed old English cheese cut in pieces, and heat slowly until melted. Then add 1 cup milk and continue heating until well blended. Pour over hot beans and sprinkle with paprika.

BROCCOLI AU GRATIN.

1 cup grated creamed old English cheese.
1½ cups milk.
1½ tbps. butter.
1½ tbsp. flour.
Dash of pepper.
½ tsp. salt.

Boil broccoli in salted water in an uncovered kettle until just tender. Drain and place in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with cheese. Make a white sauce of the milk, butter, flour, and seasoning and pour it over the broccoli. Bake until the cheese melts.

MAKE FUDGE TO KEEP THE FOLKS STICKING 'ROUND

Here's a Recipe You Might Try.

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Fudge, after several years of forced retirement in favor of chocolate creams, bonbons, English toffee, butter creams, cocoanut and almond centers, and other fancy sweets, has regained its old time popularity.

The important ingredient in making fudge is cane sugar. Beet sugar is not successful in any form of confection such as frostings, candy, and preparations which should harden. If the sugar, chocolate, and milk are well mixed and placed over a medium fire and allowed to cool without boiling a smooth fudge will not result. Stirring should be done when the fudge is taken from the fire, not before. The fudge should be cut while warm. And to obtain a smooth glistening surface to the candy don't move the fudge while it is hardening.

What Is Needed.

One needs to make fudge a buttered platter, pan, tablespoon, cup, and two teaspoons. The ingredients for about a pound of fudge:

Three cups sugar.
Four heaping tablespoons cocoa or 2½ to 3 squares of bitter chocolate.
One heaping tablespoon of butter.
One and a half cups of milk.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.

If bitter chocolate is used slice very thin and add to the boiling sugar and milk. If cocoa is used mix the sugar and cocoa, add the milk, and place over fire. Butter the platter while the liquid is boiling, and after the preparation has boiled for four minutes test it by dropping half a tablespoon, skimmed from the top, into a half cup of cold water. When the fudge forms a soft ball in the bottom of the cup it is ready to beat.

Beat the fudge for five minutes, whipping in the butter and vanilla. As soon as the candy begins to feel heavy and sticky pour into the platter and set in cool place to harden. Cut while soft, remove and place on plate. For those who prefer a fancy fudge, walnuts, pecans, cherries may be added to the concoction just before it is poured in the platter. Marshmallow slices may be whipped in with the butter. If sweet butter is used in the candy a pinch of salt should be added, as it brings out the flavor.

Sugar Plays Important Part.

Sugar plays an important part in every one's diet. It is a body builder, supplying heat and fuel, and is not harmful if eaten judicially. Fudge and chocolate played a vital part in the world war, for it was one of the favorite rations of the soldiers. A box of homemade fudge taken to a baseball game, matinée, or what have you, is certain to be received with appreciation and gusto by one's guests.

RUSSIAN EASTER REPAST IS TRULY FEAST OF FEASTS

Baba, Paska Make This Spread Best of Year.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

"Feast of feasts," Russians of the Orthodox church call their Easter Sunday repast—and that in a calendar which numbers feast days by the score. Down through the centuries with the sacred rites which herald the day have been handed the formulæ for those prodigies of the culinary art —paska, baba, kolachi, koolich— which indeed mark the Easter dinner as a meal apart.

Here in Chicago last Sunday at hundreds of tables the Easter bread was broken and Easter eggs exchanged among friends as the faithful of the Orthodox church observed the day. And whenever callers came, "Christ is risen" was the greeting and "He is risen indeed" the reply. After the fashion of their ancestors the Easter kiss was given and gayly hued Easter eggs were exchanged.

Seven Weeks of Fasting.

Seven weeks of fasting traditionally precede the Easter festival. Meat, milk, butter, and eggs are banned; only fish is permitted on the menu, and vegetable oils are used exclusively in cooking.

During Holy week intensive preparations are under way at home as in the church. Housewives set to work to bake the towering paska, the baba, the long kolachi. So many dozen eggs must be painted in fanciful designs and dipped to brilliant hues that grandparents and children are recruited to help get them ready.

On Saturday night, shortly before midnight, Easter service begins. The adoration of the dead Christ proceeds for an interval, while the choir intones in ancient Slavonic to the rear of the basilica and the priest prays.

Then the painting of Christ and the Bible are shut in the sanctuary and the priest leads his flock out of the church. Deacons and bearers of the holy banners and deacons swinging censers of holy water go before him and after him streams the congregation bearing lighted candles.

Three times around the church, while a slow bell tolls overhead, they march, searching for the dead Christ as did the women in the garden of Gethsemane. Then at the threshold of the church the procession halts and the priest announces the tidings, "Christ is risen!" The congregation answers in unison, "He is risen indeed."

Bless Easter Food at Dawn.

Back into the church surges the throng with its gleaming candles and the resurrection service follows with reiterations of "Christ is risen." Until dawn the services continue; then comes the blessing of the Easter food.

Husbands have brought the paska, wives the meats and cheeses. Neat baskets are placed in rows on the lawn outside the church and the priest passes between them, blessing them as he goes.

Now the congregation scatters; in every home the holy food is placed on the table with dishes of colored eggs, fried eggs, and baked ham garnished with grated raw roots of horseradish, long thick kolbassa, sausages, and bowls of fruit. A holy ikon, a Bible, and flowers also adorn the table.

Dominating the board, the conical baba stands two feet high, a species of dark brown fruit cake trimmed with sugar scrolls, bearing the inscription, "Christos Woskrese" (Christ Is Risen). Baba, incidentally, means little old woman, little grandmother. Nearby is koolich, sweet bread, also conical, about six inches in diameter and a foot high.

Paska, white bread with a rich brown crust adorned with a braided brown crust cross, stands about 12 inches high and from one to two feet across. Cheese paska, great cones of cottage cheese with crosses cut out on the sides, are next to long, strudel-like kolachi.

After the Easter feast comes the Easter revelry, which lasts traditionally a week. Visitors come and go, and Easter eggs change hands countless times.

Gives Easter Recipes.

Recipes for the making of Easter delicacies have been provided by Mrs. Semkoff, wife of the Very Rev. Peter N. Semkoff, rector of St. Peter and St. Paul Carpatho Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic church, 53d street and Western avenue.

Mrs. Semkoff makes kolachi of dough rolled out flat and cut in thin strips. She alternates four fillings: Cottage cheese mixed with cream, eggs, and a little sugar; ground poppy seed cooked in milk; fried sweet cabbage chopped fine and mixed with cooked apple, raisins and nuts; fried sauerkraut.

How to Make Baba.

Baba is made with one cup flour, half a cake of yeast, a quarter cup of sugar, a quarter cup of seedless raisins, three eggs, one ounce of currants, half an ounce of citrons, and three-fourths of a cup of butter combined as for an ordinary cake.

Koolich is made with 3 cups of milk, 7 cups of flour, 2½ yeast cakes, 10 eggs, 2 cups of sugar, half a pound of ground almonds, a quarter pound of raisins, and a pound and a half of unsalted butter. A dough is made of the flour, yeast, and milk, and left to rise, then kneaded for half an hour, an hour or even five hours—the longer the more Russian the result. Put into cylindrical forms, filling half full, let rise three-fourths of the way, then cover top with white of egg whipped and bake.

Cheese Paska Recipe.

Cheese paska is made of five pounds of cottage cheese, a pound of unsalted butter, four yolks of eggs, two cups of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, two cups of sweet almonds split lengthwise, a cup of dried cut lemon, orange or melon peels or maraschino cherries, and a vanilla stick. The cheese is under a press over night, then put through a sieve and mixed with butter, eggs and other ingredients. The combination is then put in a mold similar to a flower pot and left to drain with something heavy on top.

Blessing Precedes Russian Easter Feast

Paska, Russian Easter cake on which the lettering appears, is the principal holiday food of this display being blessed by the Very Rev. Archpriest Peter N. Semkoff, pastor of the Ss. Peter and St. Paul Carpatho Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic church. On the rector's table at 5210 South Western avenue are baked ham, several kinds of cheese and sausages, fresh horseradish to serve with bacon and eggs, Easter eggs painted by Mrs. Semkoff with the aid of Anna, age 9, and Nickolas, age 15. The resurrection picture of Christ and the gospel and cross backed by roses complete the festive board. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SOME RECIPES FOR DELIGHTFUL CHILEAN DISHES

Sweet Corn Is Principal Feature.

BY NORMAN A. INGREY.

VALPARAISO, Chile, May 5.—Chilean dishes are popular in American households in this country, especially those in which sweet corn is the principal feature. One of the most favored is "humitas con dulce."

This is a favorite Chilean entrée and may be eaten hot or cold. Six ripe ears of corn are required with the additions of a pinch of salt and tablespoonful of sugar, and a little chopped chile.

Take the leaves off the corn and put them to one side. Grate the corn and to the pulp add a pinch of salt, sugar to taste, chopped chile, and a little boiling fat. Mix together.

Select the largest of the leaves and after washing deposit a little of the mixture into each one, to form little oblong parcels. Tie them up with strands of the same leaves and then place in boiling water. After five minutes they will be ready.

"Maiz con Nata" [Cream of Corn].

This is a hot entrée. Cook the whole ear, allowing one to each person. When tender cut off the grains and place in saucepan with cream, a little butter, salt, and an egg. Mix well and cook slightly over the fire. Serve and garnish with parsley.

"Pastel de Choclo" [Corn Pie].

This is undoubtedly the favorite dish when corn is in season. It is eaten daily in Chilean homes and is equally popular among resident Americans.

Required: Six ripe ears of corn, half a pound of beef rump [lean beef], one onion, a hard boiled egg, herb seasoning, sugar, and a quarter of a pint of milk.

Mince beef and chop onion fine, place in frying pan with salt and pepper, and cook till tender. Take raw corn and grate, add to pulp milk, sugar, and herb seasoning. Place corn pulp in pan or saucepan and cook till creamy substance is formed. Have ready a pie dish. At the bottom place the fried mince meat. On that place the chopped hard boiled egg, and then fill to top with corn mixture. Place a few nobs of butter on top and brown in moderate oven.

Cooked chopped chicken is often a substitute for the meat.

"Cazuela a la Chilena."

No midday meal in Chile is complete without this soup and it makes a frequent appearance at the United States embassy in Santiago.

Required: One pound of mutton with bone, one egg, square chunks of raw pumpkin, one quart of water, one carrot and one whole potato per person, one ear of corn cut in chunks, one onion cut in quarters, a few shelled peas, a handful of chopped green beans, one cut carrot, a handful of rice, and a few leaves of thyme and parsley.

Fry the mutton a golden brown and then put it into a large saucepan with the water and the above mentioned vegetables and rice. Allow to stew slowly until vegetables are tender, placing pumpkin last. When ready to serve break the egg, depositing the white into the soup and the yolk into the soup tureen. Then serve the soup in the tureen.

When serving allow one potato, one piece of corn, and pumpkin to each person.

APPLES PROVE TASTY AS SUBSTITUTES TO SERVE WITH MEATS

Apples provide an acceptable substitute at times for vegetables to serve with meats. Supplies of good quality apples in storage indicate they will be low in price until another summer harvest.

Hot baked apples, slightly sweetened, go well with almost any kind of meat. Scalloped apples served hot from a baking dish are easy to prepare. Pare and slice as for a pie and arrange in alternate layers with buttered crumbs and sprinkle lightly with sugar. Then bake until the top crumbs are brown and crisp.

CONSUMPTION OF COFFEE IN U. S. GAINS 9% IN YEAR

The average American citizen is drinking more coffee today than at any time in the history of the United States.

This fact is disclosed in statistics just released, which reveal that coffee imports into this country in 1931 amounted to the record breaking total of 1,742,521,000 pounds, an increase of 142,000,000 pounds, or 9 per cent, over the preceding year. Per capita consumption last year was 14.2 pounds, which is also a record, the highest previous figure being 13.3 pounds in 1902.

Practically all of the coffee consumed in this country is grown in South America.

For many years this country has led all other nations in the quantity of its coffee imports, but its per capita consumption during the last decade has ranked fifth, being exceeded by Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Cuba. Per capita consumption in this country, however, is steadily increasing and it now almost equals that of the other countries mentioned, in which it has shown very little change during the last 20 years. From this it is evident that the United States soon will become the leading per capita coffee consuming nation in the world.

Improved methods of coffee preparation and distribution in this country, as well as the greater care taken in the growing and harvesting of the product in some of the leading producing countries, are the chief contributing factors to the extraordinary increase in per capita consumption in the United States, according to trade authorities.

CANADIANS PLAN TO GROW THEIR CRANBERRIES

Canadians are becoming interested in producing their own cranberries instead of buying them from the growers located in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Wisconsin, and Washington and Oregon. Areas in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward island have been examined and suitable soil has been found for cranberry culture, according to agricultural authorities in Canada.

Laboratory discoveries prove value of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here's why ALL-BRAN belongs on your table

IN THE past few months, many new scientific findings indicate that ALL-BRAN is a valuable addition to the daily diet. These laboratory investigations show that ALL-BRAN is an important source of two things needed to overcome constipation. "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. (You will be interested in reading some of the results of these tests in the panel on the right.)

"Bulk" and vitamin B will help protect you from constipation and its effects—the headaches, the loss of energy, the poor appetite, the sleeplessness, the backaches, the wrinkles that so frequently result.

Now, in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you have both "bulk" and vitamin B in one delicious cereal. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Moreover, ALL-BRAN furnishes iron for the blood. Tests prove that this famous health-cereal provides twice as much assimilable iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Isn't it much pleasanter to enjoy this appetizing cereal than to risk taking pills and drugs—so often harmful and habit-forming?

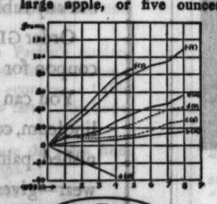
Try two tablespoonfuls daily—usually sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If you suffer from a severe intestinal trouble, we suggest you consult your physician.

Special cooking and flavoring processes make ALL-BRAN particularly healthful. Tempting recipes on the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Here are some of the results of recent laboratory investigations on bran

The Bulk in Bran
Laboratory tests show the "bulk" in bran is much like that in lettuce, spinach, and other leafy vegetables. It may be eaten by most persons who can eat these vegetables.

Vitamin B in Bran
One ounce of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains 45 vitamin B units, as much as that in one very large apple, or five ounces of orange juice.



This chart* shows the effects of daily additions to the vitamin B-free basal diet of laboratory rats: (a) none, (b) 0.6 gm. prepared bran, (f) 1.6 gm. prepared bran.

Iron in Bran
Tests show bran provides twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.
In addition: Bran furnishes valuable proteins and other mineral salts, which promote health.

A WISDOM TOOTH SUFFERER OFFERS SOME FOOD HINTS

He Wishes Some One Had Done the Same for Him.

BY ROE FOWLER.

What to eat while expecting the wisdom tooth—that is indeed a serious problem. To all prospective parents of wisdom teeth, therefore, this food message is addressed.

When I was having my own wisdom teeth, alas, there was no one to tell me how to go about it. These rules on eating, therefore, are the result of my own painful experience.

Once, for instance, I had two wisdom teeth coming through at once, an upper and a lower, on the same side. I went around for several days perpetually agape, with a continual expression of astonishment that amused my friends very much. It didn't amuse me nearly so much, but it did introduce me to liquid diets.

Expounding the Liquid Diet.

Liquid diets, as they are generally understood, are weak excuses for eating, being designed for invalids or people who are reducing. Your wisdom tooth sufferer needs more nourishment than they provide, since he is neither an invalid [though somewhat crippled] nor anxious to reduce. Incidentally, liquid diets should be resorted to only after a soft diet has become too painful.

But, above all, you must keep your strength, for you will want the little newcomers to be strong and healthy. They must have their chance in life.

My advice as a not-too-hardened wisdom tooth cutter is to go onto a liquid diet as soon as the first swelling apprises you that your wisdom teeth are about to arrive. Once, in youthful ignorance, I tried to cut a wisdom tooth by stern measures. I thought that a combination of Spartan fortitude and toast crusts might serve to bring out the best [dentally speaking] that was in me.

Fortitude and Crusts Depart.

Long before the new tooth hove into view, which was some two years later, the fortitude and the crusts were all gone, and I was a pitiable spectacle, resembling a cross between a mumps patient and an eating tobacco consumer. Nor was this a silent picture.

The ways of wisdom teeth are peculiar. They grow awhile, and then they stop—maybe for months—and then they grow some more.

If this growing continues for only two or three days, as it sometimes does, you might get by with a soft diet. Here are some suggestions: Spaghetti, macaroni [but not the top part that forms a crust], gelatin desserts, tapioca, soft bread pudding, custard and similar puddings [without cocoanut, nuts, or raisins], milk toast [shorn of its crusts], and mush or boiled cereals without husks. Also sundaes, such as butterscotch, fudge [and other nonsolid coverings; beware of fruit sirups and nuts], and soft fillings out of pie.

Beware of Chewy Foods.

Don't eat anything that crumbles, or has to be chewed, or that can get between the teeth and under the gums. Honest, you will regret it.

When worst comes to worst, however, and you feel as though even the air is too heavy on your tortured gums, you'll have to go on liquids. Some of the better liquids, in that case, are malted milks, eggnogs, soups [especially thick soups, which contain more nourishment than thin ones, and do not make your throat raw], toddies, melted ice cream, tom and jerry [try and get it], orange juice, lemonade, other fruit juices, plain milk or cream [a soothing drink in case your throat rebels], coffee, cocoa, ice cream sodas, and other fountain preparations.

As for the soups, you have to be careful not to season them too much, as both salt and pepper have a tendency to irritate the throat. Similarly, they should not be drunk too hot nor the cold drinks too cold.

Pork Loin Roasts, Hams Sell at Lower Levels

In its regular weekly report, issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

"Pork loin roasts and fresh hams are recommended as economical meat buys for the Chicago housewife over the coming week-end. Wholesale prices of fresh pork are unusually low and bargains in these cuts are available in lowest retail meat stores. Pot roast of beef and shoulder roast of veal also are selling at very low price levels."

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

BY MARY MEADE.

Dates on first sight have nothing especially exciting to recommend them. They are good—delicious, say most of us. And we are certainly coming increasingly to drop them into children's lunches and chop them up for salads, desserts, and scores of other delicacies. But aside from a few hazy memories of camels and palm trees tenaciously hanging on from grade school geography classes, these sweet meaty brown fellows would hardly be thought of as harboring a "past."

Yet, strange to say, dates have not only an eventful past but a colorful present. These brown luscious fellows we buy at the corner grocery, have—a great share of them at least—come from the small kingdom of Iraq, otherwise known as Mesopotamia. Each fall the huge clusters of dried fruit are harvested by the natives and shipped to all parts of the world. Those coming to America are raced here by competing date companies, each ship's captain and native crew striving to win the glory [and the bonus] for delivering the first new crop of dates to American markets. Last fall I witnessed the winning of such a race in the New York harbor and can vouch for the plump, chewy goodness of the fruit as it came out of the hold where it had been packed by Arab workers—months before—under the hot sun of Iraq.

Dates are one of man's oldest foods, but it has been only in recent years that we Americans have come to appreciate their value as a rich source of natural sugar and blood building mineral. Now that we do realize it, however, we are whole heartedly making up for lost time. And dates are discovering themselves playing all sorts of interesting new rôles at our tables. They've always given an especially pleasant texture and flavor when we've added them to muffins and puddings. But how about dates in baking powder biscuits, waffles, pancakes, omelets, souffles, and a score of other foods which have some way worried along without them all these years?

And there are always sandwiches—thanks to the earl of S. and his propensity for hunting—to supply uses for dates. Here are some hurry up sandwich fillings which I find make excellent eating: Chopped dates and finely diced celery mixed in proportions to suit your taste and made spreadable with tart salad dressing; ground dates and cottage cheese blended thoroughly and moistened with cream and a little butter; a date and peanut butter spread to go between whole wheat or Boston brown bread slices.

DATE BRAMBLES.

1 cup sliced dates
½ cup chopped pecans [or other nuts]
3 tbspns. orange juice
1 tspn. lemon juice
1 recipe flaky pastry

Blend the dates, nuts, and fruit juices. Then roll out the chilled pastry to one-eighth inch thickness. With a floured three inch cutter cut it into rounds and dampen the edge of each circle with cold water. Place a generous teaspoon of the date filling on one-half of each round and fold over the other half, pressing the edges together firmly. Arrange the turnovers on a floured baking sheet and bake in a hot oven [975 degrees F.] for about fifteen minutes.

DATE SOUFFLE.

4 eggs
2 tbspns. butter
3 tbspns. flour
1 cup milk
½ tspn. salt
¼ tspn. pepper
2-3 cup dates, ground

Make a smooth white sauce in the top of the double boiler with the butter, flour, milk, and seasoning, and cook until thick. Stir in the dates, beating hard to blend them thoroughly with the sauce. Now remove from the fire and beat in the egg yolks, one at a time. Finally fold in the egg whites, which have been beaten very stiff and dry. Turn the mixture into a well buttered baking dish, place in a pan of hot water, and bake thirty to forty minutes in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.]. Serve immediately, plain or with parsley white sauce. This serves four generously.

SURE FIRE TEST FOR FRESH EGG; TRY POACHING IT

For the best test of an egg, poach it. So say poultry specialists who have studied the egg quality question from points of color of shell to the final test of eating. When two or three eggs are broken into a flat plate, the white should be thick enough to stand up around the yolks like a layer of clear and firm jelly.

Off odor is a reliable indication of off flavor. The color of the yolk depends on the feed the hens received and has little bearing on quality, tests reveal.

High quality eggs are credited with making lighter sponge cakes and omelets. For making custards or a dish of scrambled eggs, slightly watery whites have little effect on looks or taste.

Household Hints

If soup is too salty, a piece of raw potato put into the pot will absorb enough of the salt in a few minutes to make the soup palatable.

String beads on fine, good quality fishline and avoid broken necklaces.

Meat loaf bakes quickly in patty tins, and is attractive and easy to serve.

EGGS AT TODAY'S LOW PRICES GIVE BIG FOOD VALUE

Nutrition Expert Tells Recipes for Their Use.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Fresh eggs at 11 to 25 cents a dozen are a bargain in food value and are giving prominence to National Egg week, which ends tomorrow night. Whether you fry, boil, scramble or poach them or use them in devious ways, the bargain is apparent to Chicago's housewives.

In studies of diet and meal costs experts in the past have often recommended that eggs can be used as substitutes for meats, cheese and fish. The problem of price has been pushed to the background with a general reduction in food prices, but eggs still remain a suitable substitution as a matter of variety in the diet.

Uses Are Many.

In cookery their uses include the following functions: to thicken liquids such as a custard, provide structure for cakes, make croquettes crisp, make souffles light, improve batter mixtures, emulsify salad dressing, and give color and flavor, in general, to many types of foods.

A tip on proper temperatures to use in preparing eggs is offered by Miss Dorothy Muehl, extension nutrition expert of Purdue university.

Low Heat Recommended.

"Success in egg cookery depends on long, slow cooking at a low even heat. It is recommended that a temperature of 250 degrees Fahrenheit be used when they are baked, and below boiling for cooking in water. Eggs are easily and quickly digested if they are properly cooked. Including eggs in each day's menu helps insure an adequate diet."

Miss Muehl gives the following recipes calling for the use of eggs:

COOKED FRUIT SALAD DRESSING.

2 whole eggs [or 4 yolks]
1 cup sour cream
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoonful sugar
¼ teaspoonful mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoonful paprika

Beat eggs until light, add other ingredients and mix thoroughly. Cook in a double boiler and stir constantly until mixture thickens.

SCALLOPED EGGS AND MACARONI.

6 hard cooked eggs
2 cups cooked macaroni
2 cups thin white sauce
½ cup buttered bread crumbs
Salt and pepper to taste

Slice hard cooked eggs. Fill in buttered baking dish with alternate layers of buttered bread crumbs, macaroni and sliced eggs. Pour on white sauce and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes or until crumbs are brown.

RUDDY TOMATO IS WHEELHORSE OF HEALTHY DIET

Pulls for You All Year Round at Low Cost.

No other vegetable gives so many kinds of value for the money nor is more readily available in all parts of the country at all times of the year as the tomato, which occupies a peculiarly important place in food planning, according to Dorothea Muehl of the Purdue university home economics department.

She points out that the tomato is used as a vegetable, but is really a fruit, and serves the same purpose in the balanced diet as the citrus fruits. Tomato juice can be fed to babies and small children to make sure they will get enough vitamins, especially vitamin C. It also furnishes some vitamin A, which is difficult to provide in sufficient quantity in a low cost diet, either for children or adults.

Suggested recipes for the use of tomatoes follow:

TOMATOES, CORN, AND CHEESE ON TOAST.

2 tablespoons flour.
2 tablespoons melted butter or other fat.
1 onion, sliced.
¼ pound sharp cheese, shaved thin.
3 cups tomatoes, canned or fresh.
2 cups canned corn.
2 teaspoons salt.

Brown the flour in a heavy skillet, remove the flour from the skillet and blend with 2 tablespoons of the fat. Brown the onion in the remaining fat, add the other ingredients except the cheese, and cook for about 10 minutes. Stir in the cheese and when melted serve on thin crisp toast.

TOMATO JELLY SALAD.

2 tablespoons gelatin.
½ cup cold water.
1 quart tomatoes, canned or fresh.
2 or 3 slices onion.
1½ teaspoons salt.
1 teaspoon sugar.
1 tablespoon green pepper, chopped.
2 tablespoons celery, chopped.
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped.
1 cup cabbage, shredded.

Soak the gelatin in the cold water for five minutes. Boil the tomatoes and onion for five minutes, strain through a fine sieve, pour the hot tomato juice over the softened gelatin, and stir until it is dissolved. Add the salt and sugar, and chill. When the gelatin mixture is partly set, add the finely chopped vegetables, and mix well. Add more salt if needed. If the mixture is not tart enough, add a little lemon juice or vinegar. Pour into wet custard cups and place in a cold place until set, turn out on crisp lettuce leaves, and serve with salad dressing.

TOMATO COCKTAIL.

1 quart tomatoes, canned or fresh.
2 stalks celery, chopped.
½ green pepper, chopped.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons tomato catsup.
1 teaspoon onion pulp.
1 teaspoon horse radish.

Boil the tomatoes, celery, pepper, and salt for about five minutes, and rub through a sieve that is fine enough to keep back the seeds. To the tomato juice and pulp add the catsup, onion, and horse radish. [A little lemon juice is a good addition if the tomatoes are not very acid.] Stir the mixture well, and put in a cold place to chill. Beat before serving and pour into small glasses. Finely chopped parsley sprinkled on top adds attractiveness. Thinly sliced cucumber may be used in place of the parsley.

Writer Talks of Ills; Hazy on Remedies

Glenway Wescott Author of Essays.

"Fear and Trembling," by Glenway Wescott. [Harpers.] Published May 4.

GLENWAY WESCOTT, the author of "The Grandmother," which was the Harper prize novel 1927-'28, and "Good-Bye, Wisconsin," a book of short stories, has turned his attention to an examination of the plight of the western world in "Fear and Trembling."

GLENWAY WESCOTT.

With this introductory statement: ". . . my own private hopes seem at a given moment to be tending toward disappointment or at least disorder," Glenway Wescott reveals his personal attitude toward moral and social problems of today and he adds that since the first person plural is the conventional and the expected form for the expression of opinions, he must comply with the custom. He concludes disarmingly, "So, lest I bore as well as mislead the reader, I generalize in fear and trembling."

This book of essays falls into three general divisions. The first deals with what the author thinks to be contemporary literature's evasion of the problems that confront humanity. The second section contains a comparison and an evaluation of American and European cultures. The last part examines the plight of modern morals, religion, economics and various other vital phases of life.

Hazy on His Own Remedies.

The attitude of the author is one of pervading pessimism and discontent. He suggests rather vaguely and not constructively a new beginning and a beginning that does not know the meaning of the word "war." Where to start and what to do exactly, even what consistent and logical interpretation of life to hold are not revealed. "Fear and Trembling" furthermore is not so stimulating intellectually that the reader feels any urge to sit down immediately and find out just what is wrong with himself and the world he lives in.

Each subdivision (there are 51 altogether) in each section is never more than six pages long and averages around three. Some of the topics are "The Thinker's Task," "The Martial Instinct," "Essential Injustice," "Bach," "The Realist's Task," "The Duty of the Intellect," and "What Is God?" Glenway Wescott does not think that the solution of the world's dilemma lies in Europe but in young fierce bedazzled America. He despairs of the emancipated woman and democracy and communism he considers equally impossible. Christianity, he concludes, is obsolete. Somewhere in that dim gray half world between the ideal and the real lies the only possible salvation of the world, the salvation, rather obscurely and vaguely, that is truth and beauty and faith, simplicity and intelligent, self-conscious living.

After 368 pages of a rather melancholy and despairing comment on current life, Glenway Wescott has the humor to poke his observations rather ironically in the ribs in the "Envoi." He tells this story about Tolstoi. Tolstoi asked a Russian peasant what he would do if he knew the world was coming to an end the next day. The peasant thought for some time, probably scratched his head quizzically and finally answered, "I would plough."

"Fear and Trembling" is an interesting, informal, personal book, though its importance as a philosophic comment on life is not so convincing as its value as an artistic work. What Wescott says is less interesting than how he says it. The style of "Fear and Trembling" is curiously alive; it has a precious, subtle, evasive quality that intrigues the reader. Sometimes obscure and difficult, glancing away from the point taken up, it is suggestive, tenuous, and rather beautiful, and the study of it, which the reader cannot avoid, distracts his attention from the not too brilliantly assimilated social and philosophic opinions of the author. The book is thoughtful and well worth reading if only for the vivid description of the fight of a mongoose and a cobra and the many other lovely accounts of sights seen throughout Europe.

Other Books Out Today.

Among the books published today are:

"Memoirs of Prince Von Bülow (Little Brown), the third of these famous volumes. The book begins after the author's dismissal in 1909 and traces with astuteness the course of Germany prior to the war. Von Bülow says it was stupidity and not malevolence on the part of the German emperor and chancellor that threw the world into upheaval. He cites the giving of carte blanche to Austria in regard to Servia as the fatal and stupendous blunder of the kaiser.

The author vividly and disinterestedly pictures the events of the war, making it clear that he knew long before the end, the consequences, the inevitable failure and revolution. At the end of the volume whose subtitle is "The World War and Germany's Collapse, 1909-1919," Von Bülow writes of contemporary events in Germany and presents a brilliant picture of her probable future.

"The Financial Aftermath of War," by Sir Josiah Stamp (Scribners) clearly and simply, in terms to be understood by the average man, describes international finance and its place in the world since the war.—M. D.

Mme. Claire Dux Recital Tuesday.

Mme. Claire Dux [Mrs. Charles H. Swift] will give her annual concert for members of the University of Chicago community next Tuesday evening at Mandel hall on the campus. Nearly a thousand acceptances have been received for the invitations sent out by President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins to faculty members and friends of the institution.

The annual meeting of the Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago will be held Sunday, May 15, following a buffet supper. After the meeting Carl E. Bricken of the new department of music of the university will give an address after which he will give a piano program.

Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, the former Betty Borden, telephoned yesterday to ask for some notice regarding a rummage sale to be held on Saturday, May 14, in Marshall Field's old building at Deerpath and Bank lanes in Lake Forest for the benefit of the Ridge Farm Preventorium. Mrs. Pirie pointed out that the sale would be exceptional, for which so many people moving and spring house cleaning going on in most households at this time of year the young women in charge of the sale have been able to make quite a remarkable collection of "white elephants." Mrs. Charles Dennehy is chairman of the junior board of the preventorium which is managing the sale.

Mildred Blair Wedding Plans.

The wedding of Mrs. Mildred Marshall Blair and John Hayward, whose engagement was announced late last month, will take place early in June with only the family present, so a telegram from Mrs. Blair announced yesterday. Whether it is to be in New York, where Mrs. Blair has been living, or in Philadelphia, from where the wire was sent, was not stated, but we presume it is to be in New York, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Marshall, formerly of Chicago, are residing.

Mrs. Blair adds that she and Mr. Hayward, who is of New York and Boston, will leave immediately after the wedding to spend the summer at his summer place at Centerville on Cape Cod.

Miss Frieda Foltz, Mr. and Mrs. George Artamonoff, and George Sensensey have taken a little house on the river in Geneva, where they expect to spend week-ends during the summer.

The house probably will become a popular week-end rendezvous with the colony of attractive young Russian refugees who are such friends of these four young people, and that it will be the scene of many informal and interesting parties during the season goes without saying.

Speaking of the Russian colony here reminds us of the charming visitors who are here now, staying with Prince and Princess Rostislav at 1311 Astor street. They are Prince Rostislav's brother and his bride, Prince and Princess Vassili, who are making a motor tour of the country in the interest of the business in which he is engaged.

Princess Vassili, formerly Natacha Galitzine, is a distant relative of Prince Nicholas Galitzine and the former Aleka Galitzine, now Princess Rostislav. Prince Vassili and Prince Rostislav are the sons of the Grand Duchess Zenia and the Grand Duke Alexander and nephews of the late Czar Nicholas.

Vassili and Rostislav are their first names, so it is departing from custom for their wives to be called by those names, but since the young princes do not use their family name in this country there seems to be no other way of providing last names for the young women unless they use their husbands' first names as surnames.

Two May Be Presented at Court.

Although Chicago appeared to have been left out when the lists of Americans to be presented at the Court of St. James this season was made public it appears that at least one and perhaps two Chicagoans will be presented by Mrs. David Bruce, daughter of Ambassador Mellon.

Miss Louise Dewey, the second daughter of the Charles S. Deweys, has received from Ambassador Mellon a copy of the dress regulations for the presentation, although her formal engraved invitation has not been received as yet. She will be following in the footsteps of her mother, presented in 1927, and her elder sister, Suzette, now Mrs. Frederick M. Alger Jr. of Detroit, who was presented the year before. Mr. Mellon, you will remember, was Mr. Dewey's chief when the latter was assistant secretary of the treasury.

The other Chicagoan who it is reported will be presented is Mrs. Trevor D. Stamp, the former Frances Bosworth, whose marriage on April 5 in Evanston was of international interest.

Some uncertainty as to the presentation of Mrs. Stamp arises as a result of a change in the date for the wedding. Names of those to be presented must be submitted by Jan. 1 each year. Since the Bosworth-Stamp wedding was originally set for June, Lady Stamp did not submit the name of her new daughter-in-law because it was not expected that she would be in England in time. The earlier wedding date has taken the bride to London in time but relatives here have not learned whether a special dispensation has been asked or granted.

Children's Memorial Hospital Makes Special Plea for Funds

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Amateur economy experts singing about their exploits in conserving the pennies were asked yesterday to compare their savings with the drastic economies being enforced at the Children's Memorial hospital at Fullerton parkway and Burling street.

When the half dollars and quarters saved on operating expenses in this hard pressed institution are translated into terms of braces for sagging young shoulders, spectacles for eyes that must be treated or be forever sightless, splints for fractured limbs that must grow strong and straight again, and medicines jobless fathers cannot possibly buy, the real importance of the struggle can better be understood. It is a gallant fight, but it looks like a losing one.

A deficit of $15,000 faces the hospital this year, because this haven for ailing juveniles is all but swamped by the overflow from paying hospitals as far north as Winnetka and Highland Park. Its capacity of 264 beds has been sorely taxed during recent months, in spite of the fact that only the most urgent cases are being admitted. Others who under ordinary circumstances would be bed patients are receiving ambulatory treatment or care in their own homes. No child more than twelve years of age is admitted and 98 per cent of the youngsters are charity patients.

Funds have to be found somewhere to handle the overflow. That is why women board members spent several days recently addressing by hand 6,000 personal appeals for financial aid. That is why the saving of coal by means of the new power plant means so much. This plant also heats a seven story nurses' home. And the man in charge of the incinerator is inordinately proud of his system of burning the dry materials first and then consuming the damp ones, which uses up practically no gas.

Menus for child patients are carefully checked to find the favorite foods, that buying may be done most efficiently within the standard of service. Even what is left on the trays is weighed and there is intense rivalry between wards to keep this waste to a minimum. When it was found that checking the linens for the laundry occupied the time of one nurse that duty was relegated to laundry employés, and thus the services of another trained nurse were added to the staff.

These are but a few of the methods employed to offset the steadily increasing burden of expenditures in the outpatient department. The increase in the total cases handled here, from 47,465 in 1930 to 62,557 in 1931, indicates there is a corresponding increase in demands put on the hospital finances.

Free drugs for these children jumped 56 per cent in 1931 over the 1930 figure. Forty-three per cent more braces and surgical aids were needed and 26 per cent more optical aids—glasses and such.

The hospital board, the outpatient department and the staff will be grateful for contributions sent the institution to help this situation.

Fifty boys and girls from the outpatient department will be among 1,800 to be entertained by Sears-Roebuck tomorrow afternoon at a matinée performance of the "Breadline Frolics" at the Majestic theater.

A New Chorus Pleases with First Concert

Metropolitan Singers Are Well Received.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Metropolitan Singers of Chicago, a new choral organization, gave its first public concert at Kimball hall last night under the direction of Tudor Williams. The chorus was organized last January in the twofold belief that many people enjoy singing together and that many others enjoy listening to song whose purpose is melody and entertainment. Judging by the performance last night and the crowd that filled Kimball hall the organizers were quite correct in both their aims.

At present the chorus numbers about fifty members. The program paid tribute to a number of the better known composers in their lighter moods, Dvorak in the choral arrangement of his symphonic movement now called "Goin' Home," another choral arrangement of the Beethoven minuet, as well as works for the men's and women's sections and the whole chorus.

Frederick Newell Wood, tenor, was the assisting artist, appearing in two song groups and also in the solo part of the Gounod "Sanctus," and in all cases to the liberally expressed satisfaction of the audience.

Ruth Napier, pianist, closed the season of the Young American Artists' series at Curtiss hall last night. She has a marked talent for the piano and has been well taught. In fact her performance was marked with considerably more maturity than those of a number of her predecessors in the series in this and in past seasons. Bach's French suite in G was played alertly and with much charm, and in the Chopin B minor sonata she played not only like a well trained pupil but with a distinct and personal point of view. Later parts of her program contained works by Debussy, Rachmaninoff, Scriabin, Liszt and Rudolph Ganz.

Richard Harrison Players to Present Shaw Work

The play, "Androcles and the Lion," by George Bernard Shaw, will be presented tonight by an all-Negro cast of the Richard B. Harrison Players at the Wendell Phillips High school. The players have created their own interpretations of the characters and the first century Christians in the play will sing a number of Negro spirituals at appropriate times during the action. All scenery and costumes used in the play have been made by the players themselves.

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorised for months. Numerous wealthy persons have been kidnaped and held for ransom. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set by means of which the "Whisperer" speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere because death results for the captive if directions are not carried out.

Joyce Morrow, engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist, is taken captive. Roland is forced to steal jewels which are in his keeping for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone fond speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is sent to collect ransom from Lord Whiddon, and is involved in the killing of Lady Whiddon when her husband fails to meet the Whisperer's demands. Roland finds the Whisperer's hideout. He sees Sir Henry leaving and is faced with the staggering truth that the Whisperer is Sir Henry. Prowling through the house Roland becomes locked in the room used to imprison the captives. The Whisperer's next victim is the young daughter of Rembold Harner, minister of development in Australia, who is in London with special credit from his government to place orders for British made farm machinery. Harner refuses to use his government's money for ransom. Miss Harner is thrust into the room where Roland is also a captive. Roland fires at one of the Whisperer's men who opens the door and escapes with Miss Harner. Roland returns to Connie's and is taken captive. Joyce Merrow calls at Connie's.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

FACING DEATH.

Lying on the floor near the sofa was Roland's engraved match box Joyce had given him. She picked it up and, without comment, held it in her open palm.

"O, very well!" Connie shrugged her shoulders. "You must forgive me for lying—one generally does lie on these occasions to save other people's feelings. He is living here. You can't see him now because he's out. But I admit he is living with me."

"As your lover? . . . O, no!"

The girl was utterly certain about Roland—insultingly certain, thought Connie. For a moment she forgot her peril. She saw in Joyce Merrow all that she herself might have been—saw the girl despising her for what she was. She must strike or go mad.

The two others promptly fell upon Roland and there followed a free fight against heavy odds.

"You're very sure of him, aren't you? Well, let me tell you, you'll never see him again." She laughed wildly. "Nor shall I, if you want to know. He has played the double-cross on the Whisperer and he's gone to his death."

The double-cross! So that was what it meant. Joyce knew that Connie had been lying when she said that Roland was her lover. She knew with equal certainty that Connie was now telling the truth.

Five minutes later the telephone rang in Chief Inspector Larpent's room at Scotland Yard. He guessed that it was Joyce Merrow, whom he had chosen as the only means of communicating with Roland Blatch.

He heard her voice trembling as she told him of her interview.

"That's all right, Miss Merrow, that was only bluff!" he assured her.

But he did not believe his own assurance. Mentally he made a note that in all probability Roland Blatch was already dead.

. . . . . .

Roland had no means of checking time after the gangsters had put him blindfolded in the saloon. It seemed a very long drive, but for all he knew it might have taken anything between one and three hours.

Eventually the car stopped and he was lifted out, carried in the open air about a hundred yards, then into some building where he was dumped in an armchair.

The eye bandage was taken off and Roland saw that he was in a long, low ceilinged room, sparsely but adequately furnished. The walls were of paneled oak. The armchair in which he sat was at the end of the room—at the opposite end was a long sideboard on which was a profusion of fruit on glass stands. Electric bulbs at three points in the ceiling.

While he was taking stock of the room and its odd equipment his captors had partly removed his bonds. The gag had gone and his arms were free, but his legs were still constricted. Acute fear of immediate death had given place to a dull wonder.

"Well, you fellows, what's the next move?" he asked.

Number Two opened a long wooden box, like a cricket chest, took out a pair of headphones and put them on. Next he picked up a mouthpiece on a cylinder—looking like a large electric torch, a replica of the one Roland had used that fateful night on the Great West road.

"Number Two. Number Two." He spoke into the mouthpiece. "All present and correct, Chief! . . . Right!"

Number Two took out a second pair of headphones, wired to the apparatus in the box, and signed to Roland to put them on. When he had done so Roland was handed the torchlike transmitter.

Then came the voice of the Whisperer.

"Roland Blatch, late Number Six! You are accused of spying upon this organization, of defeating my plans and of murdering your comrade, Number Four. Have you anything to say?"

"Yes. I'm sorry about Number Four. I shot him by mistake."

There was a moment's silence and then:

"I have not grasped the nature of your defense. What do you mean by mistake?"

"I mistook him for you," said Roland curtly.

"You plead guilty then to using arms against this organization?"

"Look here, chief!" exclaimed Roland. "As a murderer you're the biggest thing that has ever happened. As a judge you are simply a pompous ass and I'm not going to play the silly game of holding a trial. You can tell these poor devils to shoot. I'm quite ready."

"Come, Mr. Blatch. Personal insult is surely unnecessary! It is not my intention to have you shot—nor even hanged. You will realize that I have to preserve discipline in my tiny army. Every day we all risk being shot or hanged. So I am afraid you will have to die by torture."

"Are you fool enough to think you can get these men to obey an order to torture me?"

"No—I am not such a fool, Mr. Blatch. I shall simply give them the order to say good evening to you and leave you. They will obey that."

Roland was puzzled and the voice went on:

"Would you like to know how you are going to die?"

Roland did not answer. The Whisperer was playing with him—enjoying himself.

"You are indifferent? You prefer to find out for yourself? That is true courage. I must warn you it will take you a very long time to find out."

That was a little too much for Roland.

"Let's have it, then!" he demanded.

"Certainly, Mr. Blatch. Do you remember the old myth of Tantalus, who lived forever with a raging thirst—in the middle of a stream that he could not reach with his lips? Probably you do! The English word 'tantalize' is derived from this myth. . . . Well, you will share the fate of Tantalus, Mr. Blatch. But, of course, you will not live forever. You will live possibly for a fortnight or so—when you will die of thirst. Before that, as you know, you will become a raving lunatic."

Roland could not bring himself to take the words seriously. He was wondering what the Whisperer really meant when the voice spoke again.

"Number Two. You will now leave Mr. Blatch. Remember to take the wireless apparatus with you. You must leave his hands unbound. If he offers any resistance—overpower him but do not shoot."

Number Two took the transmitter from Roland and put it back in the long box. Roland removed the headpiece.

"I say, you fellows! Suppose you join forces with me—and we'll get that cold-blooded, murdering devil between us?"

"Huh! If it was anybody else we'd chance it. But a damn fine chum you'd make! What price Number Four?"

Roland was fired to anger by the retort. With a quick movement he levered himself from the armchair and struck Number Two a crashing blow between the eyes.

The two others promptly fell upon Roland and there followed a free fight against heavy odds. While he was lashing out, butting, using every possible offensive trick, Roland shouted at the top of his voice.

The fight lasted a surprisingly long time before it came to its inevitable end. With his thighs and ankles bound, Roland had no hope of ultimate victory. But the three men were all bleeding and badly marked before they had him on the floor.

"Get that door open—it doesn't matter him yelling!" panted Number Two.

One of them rushed to obey, releasing Roland's right arm, with which he promptly jabbed Number Two in the stomach. . . . The fight was in danger of beginning all over again.

"Now, as soon as I give the word—all together through that door!" said Number Two when they had again got Roland under control. . . . "Now!"

Simultaneously the three of them leaped away from him. Before Roland had struggled to a sitting position they were through the door and had slammed and bolted it behind them.

While he was getting his breath back Roland unfastened the canvas bands. Then he tore off the stage property bandages.

"By Jove, I believe the minx knew all the time, and was playing Delilah! Phew! I enjoyed that fight! Now let's have a look at this jolly old hookum!"

He paid little attention to the door. It was too obvious a point of attack. What about the windows and the paneling? He tried the latter first.

He felt it, then put his shoulder against it. True that it was of wood, but it might have been of steel for all the impression he could make on it.

Then he realized with something of a shock that the room had no windows. There remained the ceiling. It was low for the length of the room, but just too high to be reached by standing on the armchair. He set an upright chair on the armchair.

All-Star Cast Being Used in 2 New Movies

Follows Success Achieved by "Grand Hotel."

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 5.—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was so successful with its "Everybody in the cast a star" idea in making "Grand Hotel" that the studio is continuing to cast all principal rôles with starred players both in "Strange Interlude," now practically completed, and "Red Headed Woman," just going into production.

Jean Harlow who plays the provocative red head in "Red Headed Woman," is cast with the following all of them starred and featured in the past: Chester Morris, Lewis Stone, Una Merkel, Leila Hyams and May Robson.

Miss Hyams plays the wife, rival of the colorful vamp for love of Morris and Stone plays Chester's worried father. Una Merkel plays the beauty parlor blond who is the chum of the red headed vamp. Jack Conway, who directed "Arsene Lupin," directs.

Will Rogers' description of movies at the present and three years ago is "things are not like the old days. Now Producers Sam Goldwyn, Joe Schenck and Sid Grauman won't raise each other 100 marks on anything. In the old days they could play poker and it was nothing for them to raise each other two pictures on a pot."

Kubec Glasmon, the Chicago druggist who in the last two years has become one of Hollywood's most prolific and successful screen writers [in collaboration with John Bright of Chicago], is dividing his time at present between work on another film story for Warners and a novel dealing with the Chicago colored belt.

"Millionaire Dollar Legs" is the new name of "On Your Marks," the Olympic games comedy which Paramount is shortly to put out with Jack Oakie, Bill Fields, Ben Turpin, Harry Langdon, Hank Mann and others in the cast. The title doesn't refer wholly to Lyda Roberti, the leading lady, the studio says, but partly to the male track men.

At the annual convention of the Paramount Film corporation forces held here today it was announced that the studio will film 65 feature productions during the ensuing 12 months, giving increased employment to studio workers over the last year. Among the features will be film versions of "A Farewell to Arms," with Frederic March and Claudette Colbert; "The Lusitania's Secret," a mystery story written about the actual salvaging of the famous torpedoed liner, with Miss Colbert and Randolph Scott; "The Song of Songs," with Miriam Hopkins and Herbert Marshall; "The Lone Cowboy," Will James' noval, presenting Scott and Frances Dee of Chicago, and "Mirrors of Washington," with Tallulah Bankhead and Gary Cooper.

Here's a Grand Beauty Cocktail to Precede Your Heavy Date

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's more than possible one of these evenings five-thirty is going to find you with a date ahead of you to which your dragging spirits respond disheartenedly. You wish you didn't have to go. You wish you felt more like going. You wish—anyway, you waste some precious moments wishing.

Get home as fast as you can! Shed the working clothes and hop into a tub of hot water, after you've pinned your hair back tidily and smothered your face in cream. The heat of the water opens the pores and gives the cream a chance to penetrate thoroughly. Wipe off the cream and then let cold water run into the tub until the water is quite cool, splashing yourself with it.

Then, for a few minutes in bed, thinking of nothing, least of all of the brief time you have before the escort is due. Let the gentleman cool his heels in the front room for a few minutes, if necessary. It's better that he wait while you get your pick-me-up than to have him be met by a frayed and frazzled sweety.

Try to get in ten minutes absolute relaxation; fifteen, if possible. Then arise and splash cold water on face and neck again—and then proceed with the makeup preparations.

You will find that this treatment, which may be performed readily in a half hour, relieves those fatigue lines that spring seems to take a vicious delight in creating. Women who come home from a shopping afternoon—spring or any other season—know that discouraged reflection thrown back at them in the hall mirror. For such, the half hour pick-me-up is recommended.

There is nothing particularly brilliant about the above freshening hint. Only women overlook the advantages of the cold water addition recommended here. Preparing for the dinner frock, they take a hot tubbing, as a rule, and more often than not feel weak and shaky, flushed and flustered; not at all as they feel with the cold water [cool, anyway] feature. This adding cold water to the warm already in the tub is substitute for a shower, which often isn't desirable on account of the wave.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

TOM: I NEVER HEARD OF GOING hatless converting straight hair into curly. I'm afraid that's one of those fairy tails that get around about hair.

MINNIE S.: FOR THE PIMPLES under the flesh which you describe I think you should consult a skin specialist. Local treatment is not the answer to your problem.

Events on the Stage

"Clowns in Clover," a revue to be staged by Lew Leslie, will figure on the Chicago playbills during the period of the national political conventions. Its première will occur about the middle of June, or possibly a week earlier. Miss Verree Teasdale and Walter Woolf, recently seen here as the stars of "Experience Unnecessary," have been engaged for important rôles. The authors of the entertainment are Dorothy Fields, Jimmy McHugh, and Nat N. Dorfman.

This will be the first of a series of four musical shows on Mr. Leslie's program. The others will be an intimate revue called "Satires," which will be scheduled for a Broadway engagement next December, and two all-Negro entertainments—a second edition of "Rhapsody in Black," with Ethel Waters as star, and a second edition of "Blackbirds."

Maude Adams and Otis Skinner will end their successful tour in "The Merchant of Venice" in Lansing, Mich., tomorrow night. They started in Cleveland Nov. 3, and have traveled from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, carefully omitting New York. It is considered unlikely that the co-stars will take their Shakespearean production to Broadway next season. It is known, however, that Miss Adams is searching for another play, which she hopes to submit to New York audiences in the fall.

Sinclair Lewis' novel "Dodsworth," published in 1929, will be dramatized by Sidney Howard and staged next season under the auspices of Gilbert Miller. The story deals with the reactions of an American manufacturer and his wife to contacts with European life. Lewis' most famous novel, "Main Street," was staged in 1921 without success. His "Arrowsmith" is now in service as a talking picture.

Ethel Barrymore will be starred next season under the management of Arthur Hopkins in "Encore," a play by Victor Wittgenstein and Sheridan Gibney. Siegfried Rumann, who has the rôle of Von Presying in the stage version of "Grand Hotel," has been engaged in Miss Barrymore's support.

Next week's premières on Broadway will include "Mourning Becomes Electra," with the Chicago cast; "A Thousand Summers," a play by Merrill Rogers, with Jane Cowl as star, and "The Lady Remembers," a farce of anonymous authorship. C. C.

Dr. Hutchins Will Present Scout Key to Engineer

Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, will present the scoutmaster's key, national Boy Scout award, to S. R. Jenson, chief engineer of the university, this afternoon in recognition of his long period of volunteer scouting service. Mr. Hutchins will be assisted by Philip P. Sachs, chairman of the leadership training committee of the Chicago scout council. The award is made to men who have spent five or more years as scoutmasters and who have attended successive training courses.

Columbia Damen Club Will Plant Tree Today

The Columbia Damen club will plant a tree today near the Goethe monument in Lincoln park in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the German poet. Mrs. Hugo F. Simon, wife of Dr. Hugo Simon, German consul general in Chicago, will officiate in the planting ceremony.

Right Training Obviates Need for Punishment

Leaflets Deal with Behavior and Other Problems.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Three varied questions appear today.

Question: "My young son is much interested in the why and wherefore of our new baby. Does your Sex Education booklet deal with that?"

Answer: Yes, it contains several references to interesting short pamphlets that are helpful.

Question: "Have you any booklet dealing with the punishment of children from 4 to 8?"

Answer: No, as I do not believe in any imposed punishments. Those that are the logical results of actions or behavior serve with intelligently reared children. But we have a number of leaflets which deal with behavior and child management, which many mothers write they have found helpful. Good management takes the place of punishment.

Question: "I have two youngsters in second year high school and two in the grades. The two in high school are having to arrange their curriculum to conform to college requirements and they are thereby missing some of the subjects in which they are most interested. I can see that the colleges must have certain standards for entrance—but what to do?"

Answer: I'm afraid my answer to your last question must be discouraging. There isn't much parents can do under these circumstances if their children are nearing college entrance. The best we can do is to make their education in the grades as free and rich as possible.

The only thing you can do now is to see if your older children cannot follow some of their special interests outside of school, if it does not involve strain. For the rest, if parents come to demand live education hard enough the schools will have to conform. The new education is already on its way.

There is a change taking place in high or prep schools. More of them are becoming progressive in their methods and the colleges are already looking toward the fact that they will be compelled to meet this condition, and change certain cut and dried academic requirements for entrance.

New Waistline Jacket of Redfern Suit May Be Worn Open or Closed

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—As this column has been proclaiming ever since the February fashion collections, the suit ensemble should be the mainspring, body and soul, or what you will, of your new wardrobe. Your suit may have a wrap of any length—from a three-quarter coat all the way up to a jacket that gets no farther than the waistline. It all depends upon the occasion.

Nothing could be more appropriate than Molyneux's three-quarter length suit coats, with tunics of equal length, for almost any afternoon affair that is not formal. There are suits with jackets that come just to the top of the hips and those that come just below that are appropriate for both sports and town wear. But if you want a suit that is smart, jaunty, not too dressy nor too tailored, you will want one with a waist length jacket, like the one in the drawing.

Redfern is the creator of the suit shown today with its jacket the length of a bellhop's, but the comparison stops there. The double breasted jacket, which is just as smart worn either open or closed, has a narrow roll collar and leg-o'-mutton sleeves whose puff ends just below the elbow.

There is, of course, the new high top skirt—this one is normal in back, but comes up into two points above the waistline in front. It, like its jacket, is in a smooth woolen, in an orange red, which is one of the colors that loom large on the colorscape this spring. This skirt has an inverted plait which is stitched half way down the center front. The tucked-in blouse, which is white peau d'ange jersey, has and which also tucks in under the points of the skirt.

Ravinia "Varieties."

"The Ravinia Village Varieties," an amateur revue, will be given tonight and tomorrow night at the Ravinia village house. Proceeds will go to the maintenance fund for the village house.

Art Exhibition of Ropp School to Open Today

Work of Students Win High Praise.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Hubert Ropp School of Art of Lake Forest and Chicago is the latest adventure into the conscious development of a Chicago art. Back of it are various persons known for their knowledge and love of painting and sculpture.

Among the sponsors of the school are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr., Mrs. Clay Judson, Robert P. Bates, Walter S. Brewster, and Mrs. Tiffany Blake.

With this background of enthusiastic promoters, it is not strange that an air of eagerness pervades the school whose first annual exhibit of students' work opens this afternoon with a tea in the school galleries, 100 East Chicago avenue.

The exhibition will remain on view over Saturday and Sunday. It is an interesting affair. Two or three students of exceptional brilliancy give the last necessary impetus to a keen appreciation of what Mr. Ropp is accomplishing.

Among the children of the Saturday morning class is a remarkable 14 year old boy, Le Roy Ratchett, to whom already several scholarships have been awarded for the unusual power and promise of his drawing. Little Kay Goodman, with her love of horses, paints imaginative pastures galore, all inhabited by fiery steeds. Lorraine Logan has a whimsical touch. Boys outnumber girls in this class and John and David Baldwin and the rest are runners-up for favor in their part of the school show.

Among the older students John Wally is unusually forceful in his manner of work; William O'Reilly accomplishes sensitive and clever portraits; Rowena Fry is a person to reckon with, and so are Aleen Gallagher, Dorothy Keene, Elisabeth Wing, Nellie Snitzer, Mrs. Arthur Aldis, and Mrs. William Burry Jr. It is remarkable what Mrs. Burry has done in only her second canvas.

Robert P. Bates, long head of the Chicago Latin school, with Miss Mabel S. Vickery, shows some excellent things, among them a splendid line drawing in red chalk of a "Rodeo Hero." Rowena Fry has made a quick portrait-sketch of Mr. Bates that is capital and should by hook or crook be hung in the Latin school now.

Mrs. Clarence Fisher of Kenosha shows an amusing and well done fish in sculpture and a sensitive and beautifully executed torso of a woman in wood. Mrs. Randolph Simpson shows a clever owl in wood.

Richard Jacobson offers in sculpture the head of an old woman and the fiery head and thick neck of an idealized horse. Another student with unusual talent in both sculpture and painting is Babs Burton.

Among the better known women who are students in the school are Mrs. Philip Maher, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Walter Paepke, Mrs. Duncan Hodges (Sarah Brewster), Miss Eleanor Holden, and Mrs. Lloyd Laflin. Mrs. Arthur Aldis has been mentioned before and the decorative quality and brilliance of her dramatic flower studies make her a force to be reckoned with.

The exhibit is of interest and the reputation of the school is firmly established through the excellence of this student show.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover had guests dining with them this evening. Dr. and Mrs. Bernard R. Smith of North Carolina arrived today at the White House for a short visit.

Mrs. Hoover attended the dedication service of the great choir and sanctuary of the Episcopal cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul this morning. At 5:30 this afternoon she received the state chairmen of the women's committee for the cathedral, of which Mrs. William Adams Brown is chairman.

President Hoover received the French ambassador, Paul Claudel, at noon, who presented Michel Clemenceau, son of the late "Lion of France," famous wartime premier of that republic. M. and Mme. Clemenceau are guests of the Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, on their way to the latter's home in California.

Yesterday Mrs. Hoover was hostess at tea, having as her guest Mme. May, wife of the Belgian ambassador, and Mme. Lippens, wife of Senator Maurice Lippens of Belgium.

Solicitor General and Mrs. William D. Thacher entertained at tea this afternoon in their Georgetown home in honor of the members of the American Law institute, who are attending the sessions of the institute this week. Mrs. George L. Storm of New York, daughter of the hosts, acted as hostess for her mother, who is ill and unable to be present.

Chap Wants a Wife and His Jilted Gal, Too

Some Men Are Like That, Says Doris.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There is a phase of male psychology that women are at a complete loss to understand. It is their touching assurance that they can make friends of two women rivals. Also their simple faith that a discarded girl must see, as the man does, the beauties of her successor.

Bound up with this sweet and innocent faith in woman's great big heartedness is the further illusion men hold about their rights to the continued friendship of the girl encouraged for a time to believe she was the favorite but who found through a wedding announcement that she was not.

Maybe the ideal thing would be to accept men on their preferred terms; that is, admire the rival enthusiastically, accept the friendship proffered. But few women are so generous as that. When men write finis to a girl's hopes with a wedding announcement in which another girl has a leading rôle, women usually write finis to the whole episode. And it is a healthier state for all concerned that they do.

The problem is inspired by a communication from a young woman who, for a year and a half, had reason to believe one day hers might be the wedding honors. Then, a letter arrived revealing that the home town girl was voted the place of distinction. Is to be voted it, that is, as the wedding is to take place in a couple of months. But the main trend of the letter was an appeal to the first girl not to let the intended marriage interfere with a charming friendship.

"He wants to keep in touch with me always," my correspondent unfolds. "I must let him know very soon, as he says it means a lot to him. I feel as if I have wasted two years on him already."

The years need not be thought of in terms of waste. Experience gathering, rather! But it is just as well to be off with the old hopes and on with new ones while the years are still ripe with opportunity. Women, being what they are, are sometimes inclined to hang on to these old "friendships," dimming other possibilities by the very depression of spirit they cause.

No, we're all for women being a little hardboiled and calculating about furthering their own chances in the dismissal of a prospect that fate has ruled out. No need for bitterness or regret about it. No need of going sour on men over it. It's all in the game. Nevertheless, one needn't prolong her agony more than the time it takes to recover from the blow to pride.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

When to Kiss?

"Dear Miss Blake: Is it wrong to kiss before you are engaged?

"WAITING."

I wouldn't say wrong, but it's wise for a girl to be decidedly cautious.

Stays Too Late.

"Dear Miss Blake: When my friend calls he never seems to leave. What can I do? BABY FACE."

BROOKLYN WINS, 2 TO 1, ON CUBS' 2 ERRORS

INJURY FORCES UNIVERSE OUT OF KENTUCKY DERBY

MORE SUPPORT FOR TICK ON AND BRADLEY ENTRY

Long Shot Players Debate Best Bet.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—Kentucky Derby sharpshooters, convinced the fifty-eighth annual blue grass classic is more open than at any time in recent years, are studying charts and workouts to ferret out a horse which might drop from the skies with accompanying succulent odds.

Since all real workouts have ended and only light exercise gallops are on the card for tomorrow, conversation and then more conversation is the order until the field, probably numbering about 15, is called to the post Saturday at the equivalent of 6 o'clock Chicago daylight time. The field of probable starters was reduced today when Universe, which was hurt in a workout yesterday, was withdrawn by his owner, T. M. Cassidy. Universe, which won the Wood Memoral Saturday, has a sprain of the coffin joint, where small bones meet just above the heel.

Two Called Class of Field.

From the seeking for a long shot are eliminated, of course, Tick On and the Bradley entry, first and second choices in the advance wagering. Seldom has consensus been so strong that Tick On and Burgoo King are the class of those remaining eligible. That estimate is based on 2 year old form.

Old trainers may wisely shake their heads and deliver the trite adage, "It's not what they did last year, it's what they'll do this year," but one always finds them basing their estimates on the 2 year olds of the year before, whether colts and fillies, and calling "no account," with an inflection cadence which only an old trainer can utter, those which failed to measure up to juvenile standards.

How About Whitney Pair?

Despite the fact that Tick On and Burgoo King were not champions and their present eminence is due to mishaps to Top Flight, Universe, Morfair, Burning Blaze, and others, it's still somewhat of a task to figure a long-shot in this field. One must call upon the law of average—favorites and second choices have been successful in recent years—and have, in addition, pronounced partisanship, to like anything on a 2-year-old form.

Among the outsiders most likely to cash in are the Mrs. John Hay Whitney pair of Stepenfetchit and Over Time, Liberty Limited from the Three D's Stock farm; Cold Check, Adobe Post, and Prince Hotspur. These are named simply because less is known about them than some of the others of consequence, and scored one victory. He has shown route going possibilities this spring. Over Time will attract a following if only because Earl Sande is astride him. Over Time ran among the good ones in 1931, but usually in the second flight.

Here's a Mystery Horse.

Liberty Limited is something of a puzzle. He is fashionably bred. His training has been shrouded in a certain amount of mystery. His own opinions are expressed in the Wake of the News. He might prove formidable.

Cold Check is included because so little is known about him. Despite indifferent showings, he still is included among the probable starters. He ran one good race at Hawthorne which may upset the dope on Saturday.

Stepenfetchit and Over Time finished second and third to Evening in the Chesapeake last Saturday. Finishing thus to a filly is hardly a Derby recommendation, no matter how good Evening, which was not nominated for the Derby, may be. Stepenfetchit started only four times last year, met nothing and another at Latonia last year, but was not asked to go beyond six fur-

Here's How Daily Double Betting System Works

This is how the daily double system of race track betting on which Jerry Hallisey won $3,132.24 at Aurora yesterday, works:

The player picks one horse to win the second race and picks another to win the third. He buys a $2 ticket calling for that combination. Both horses must win or the better is out of luck. All money bet in the daily double is kept in a pool separate from the regular mutuels.

The daily double payoff does not depend on what each winner pays in the mutuels. The payoff is determined by dividing the amount of money in the daily double pool, minus the track's percentage, by the number of tickets sold on the winning combination. It is not a case of the winnings off the first horse, plus the original wager, going back on the second.

If no player picks the two winners the pool is split into two parts. Those who are holding tickets that contain the number of the winner in the second race and those naming the horse that won in the third, divide the money.

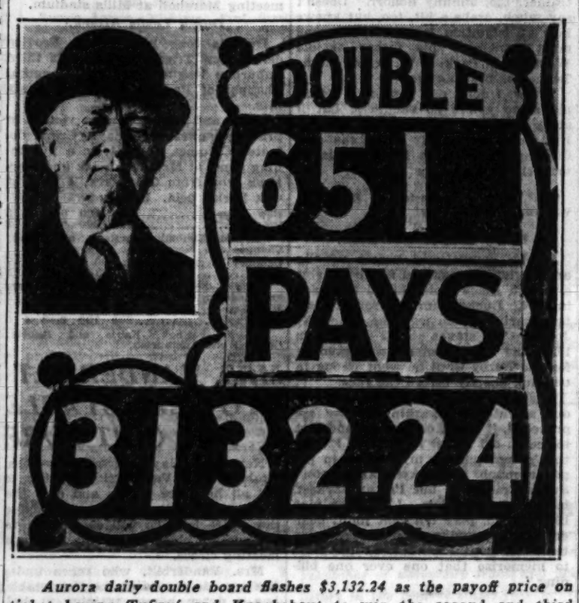
ONCE IN A LIFETIME



Aurora daily double board flashes $3,132.24 as the payoff price on ticket having Tufinuf and Knockabout to win the second and third races. Most of the crowd received a thrill when the record figures went up, but Jerry Hallisey (inset) was the most excited, for he was the only one who picked the two longshots. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

You Must Bark and Bray to Be Successful Wrestler

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—It was Jack Curley who first thought of having a herd of wrestlers wired for sound. Mr. Curley had noticed that the customers were pleased when one large, dumb mass of meat, hair and bone, threshing about the mat in the grip of another, emitted some involuntary grunt, gurgle, or squeak.

He therefore decided to give the customers all they wanted of what they wanted, and wrestling—with sound effects—under his management reached the highest financial peak in the entire history of the art during a period of deep depression. His wrestlers also achieved amazing artistic effects.

Now it appears the champion of his herd, Jim Londos, has deserted Mr. Curley's tent and gone over to the opposition herd, which is controlled by somebody by the name of Paul Bowser. The wrestling business is divided up into territorial rights and concessions. Mr. Curley's herd always has dominated the New York field and Mr. Bowser's field of operations includes the city of Boston, where wrestling has always been a thriving business.

He's a Tenor.

Unfortunately, I never have heard Mr. Bowser's sound effects, but I am told they are only an imitation of the original Curley noises and, like all imitations, inferior. It is conceded, for instance, that Jack Sherry, the champion of the Bowser herd, is a better wrestler than Londos, but even his best friends would not have the nerve to tell him that he can whinny with the same conviction and musical charm. Therefore, it seems but natural that Mr. Bowser should wish to lure away Mr. Londos, who whinnies tenor.

Undoubtedly the loss of the Londos whinny will be a serious misfortune to the Curley herd, but one baboon does not make a menagerie, nor one whinny a barnyard, and the Bowser herd will not be complete, even with Londos. When Mr. Curley went in for sounds, he went in for a great variety of bird calls, wild animal cries and sundry effects never before emitted by man, fowl or beast.

It's Not Howling, It's Art.

It is my understanding that he imported from Hollywood as vocal instructors for his herd, a number of off-stage artists who have been working for years emitting weird sounds for the animated cartoons. It is easy to believe this is so because Mr. Curley's wrestlers on a gala night in Madison Square Garden will utter a variety of outcries which bespeak diligent practice and expert instruction. This is not mere howling. This is art.

Mr. Serge Kalmakoff, the fur bearing Russian, for instance, who came into the ring wearing a beard not unlike an old fashioned feather boa, had a distinctive yelp that was a compromise between a low, plaintive moo and an indignant cackle. You try uttering a cry that is a combination of the moo and the cackle, combining the best elements of both, and you will understand what a remarkable effect Mr. Kalmakoff produced.

If you will then try uttering this cry with a mouthful of hair or moss or some other commodity simulating the Kalmakoff whiskers you will appreciate Mr. Kalmakoff's characteristic cry still better. I do not think the Bowser herd will come up with an imitation of that one in a hurry.

What? No Bray?

Then there is Mr. Leon Pinetzki. Although he is called the Polish gorilla man, Mr. Pinetzski's battle cry is more suggestive of the sea than of the jungle. There is something of the jungle in it, to be sure. I cannot quite place the sound, but I should guess that this jungle quality is adapted from the hysterical squawk of a laughing jackass being positively slain by a new joke.

I understand Mr. Bowser's wrestlers are pretty good wrestlers, but on the few occasions when they have tried to invade the Curley territorial concession they have failed dismally. The reason is, of course, that the customers have only a nominal interest in the wrestling, but go to hear the noises.

Mr. Curley tells me he tried very patiently to make an attraction of Ference [Neckless] Holuban, the mute Magyar, but had to give him up.

They tried him with small, simple sounds such as the bleat, the squeal, and the bray, but the best he could do was something on the order of a twitter. This did not interest the customers, so Mr. Holuban has not been a success, although Mr. Curley says he would be a champion if he could only learn to quack, bark, or meow.

They'll Never Succeed.

Business is business, and I do not blame Mr. Londos, the champion of the Curley herd, for deserting to the Bowser troupe if he believs his whinny will bring him new customers and fresh money in a territory where he has never been heard before and where, up to now, the sounds have been comparatively crude. But I do not think he will be happy in his new surroundings, because he will no longer have the assistance of his supporting cast.

The Londos whinny is a remarkable sound effect of itself, but without the support of the remarkable repertoire of squawks, screams, grunts, and the whale sounds which Mr. Curley contributed to wrestling through the members of his herd, the customers may become bored.

WINS $3,132 ON DAILY DOUBLE; HE'LL RECOVER

Aurora Combination Bet Pays Record Return.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jerry Hallisey, an old time horse player who lives at 443 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, finally came to the end of the race track rainbow at Aurora yesterday, and for a $2 bet in the daily doubles collected $3,132.24.

He held the only daily doubles ticket sold which called for Tufinuf to win the second race and Knockabout to capture the third. He watched each of these long shots win by the margin of a head in thrilling finishes.

It must be a dream, thought Jerry, as he gasped and clung to the little oblong piece of green pasteboard which was the evidence that he had picked the parlay which had shattered a world record for a pari-mutuel betting payoff.

It's True! It's True!

Still Mr. Hallisey, unknown to most of the regulars on the lawn, wasn't sure whether it was a dream or not. He pinched himself and yelled "Ouch!" Now he knew it wasn't a fantasy of any kind, so he made his way to the payoff window.

Mr. Hallisey didn't want his money in cash. He would take a check. And before the auditing department could deliver the check to him a crowd had gathered around the lucky man.

E. F. Carruthers, general manager of the Aurora track, elbowed his way through the throng and congratulated Hallisey. He invited him into the mutuel money room where the payoff was made by check.

Hallisey is 60 years old and until ten years ago was a salesman for the Sterling Knit Goods company of Boston. He retired, and since then his chief hobby has been trying to pick winners.

"Maybe I've had the success of an average race player during the ten years I've been trying to guess 'em," he said. "But I was loser until this good luck lightning bolt hit me. No, I don't intend to quit playing 'em now, for the relaxation and the fresh air of the race track is just what I think I need."

Gets Clubhouse Badge.

The highest mutuel payoff on one horse came at the Latonia track in Kentucky on June 17, 1912, when Wishing Ring won a race there and rewarded her followers with $1,885.50 for each $2 invested. The highest daily double payoff on record was only slightly more than $2,000 at the Agua Caliente track during the summer meeting last year.

Hallisey said he had paid his way into the track. So along with the check for $3,132.24 he was presented with a season clubhouse badge.

Both Tufinuf and Knockabout were front runners throughout their battles. But each had to withstand determined challenges before pounding past the line of finish with a nose in front.

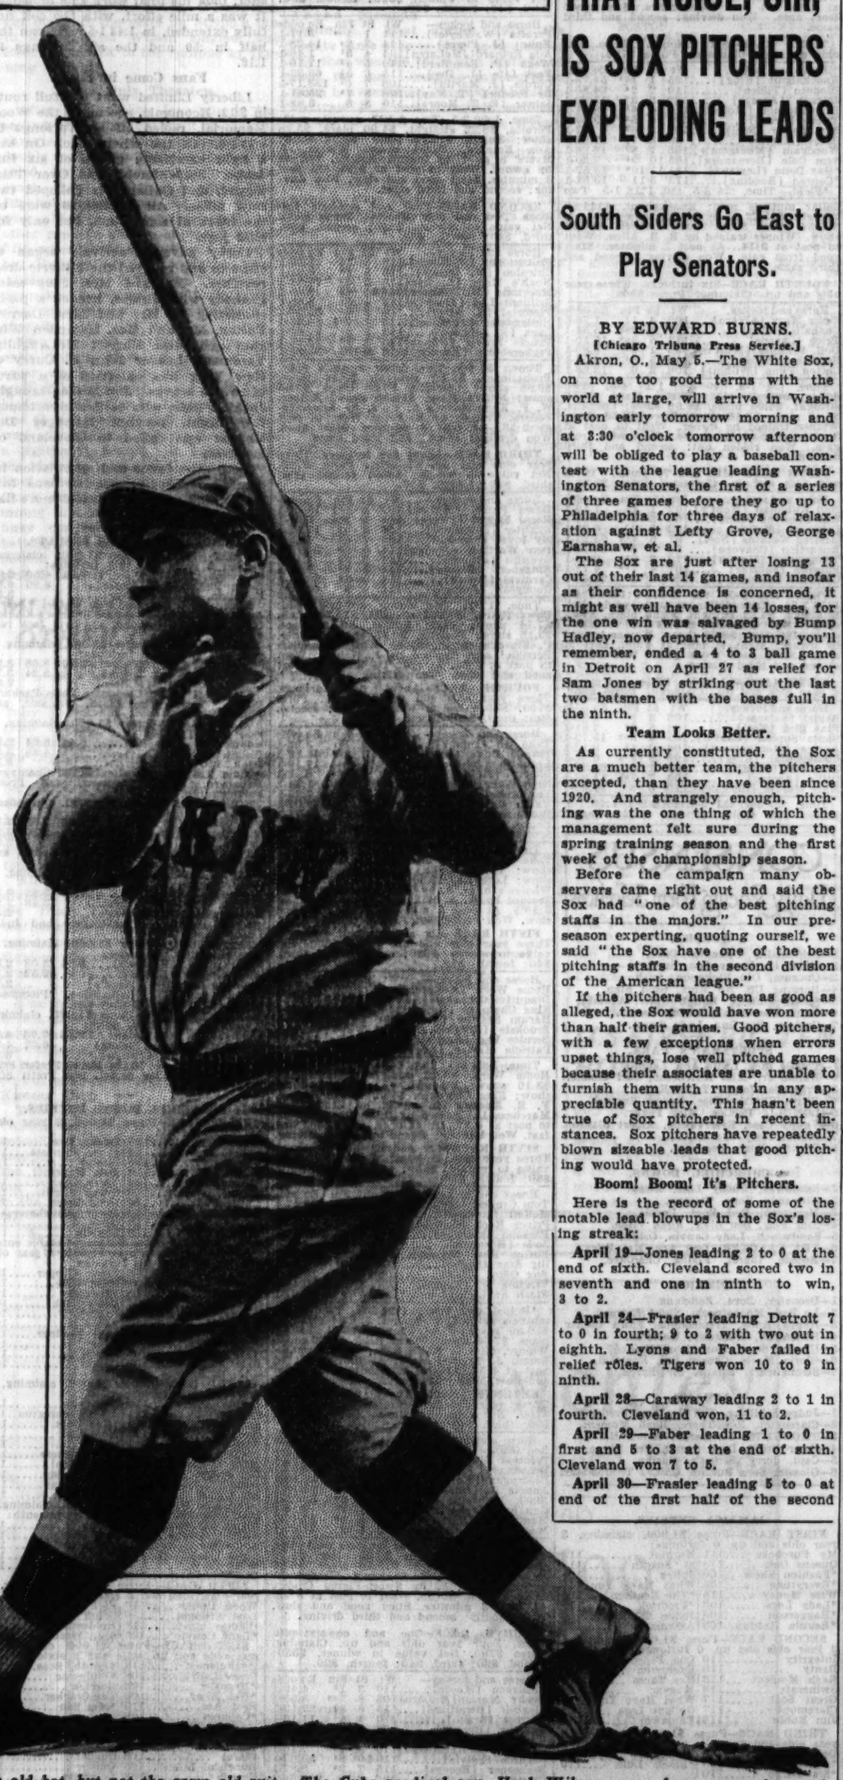
Tufinuf's chief challenger was Tewsenelda, a field horse, and A. Richards gave Tufiniff a rousing ride down the stretch or he would have folded up and quit. Half Day, the favorite, was third. Tufinuf paid $26.50.

Knockabout, which paid $111.52 for a $2 ticket, had even a more serious argument on his hands to fight off the desperate challenges of Diodoro and Irfaneh, each of which tried to nip him time and again.

"How come you picked those two scalawags?" Hallisey was asked.

"Well, I liked Tufinuf and used the old eenie meenie minee mo system on Knockabout," he replied.

AT END OF PERFECT SWING



The same old Hack, the same old bat, but not the same old suit. The Cubs prodigal son, Hack Wilson, came home yesterday with his new playmates, the Brooklyn Dodgers, and was greeted by a shower of lemons. He got only one hit, an unimportant single, struck out once, and, in this picture, flied out to Stephenson. But Brooklyn won. So Hack's happy. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

THAT NOISE, SIR, IS SOX PITCHERS EXPLODING LEADS

South Siders Go East to Play Senators.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Akron, O., May 5.—The White Sox, on none too good terms with the world at large, will arrive in Washington early tomorrow morning and at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon will be obliged to play a baseball contest with the league leading Washington Senators, the first of a series of three games before they go up to Philadelphia for three days of relaxation against Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw, et al.

The Sox are just after losing 13 out of their last 14 games, and insofar as their confidence is concerned, it might as well have been 14 losses, for the one win was salvaged by Bump Hadley, now departed. Bump, you'll remember, ended a 4 to 3 ball game in Detroit on April 27 as relief for Sam Jones by striking out the last two batsmen with the bases full in the ninth.

Team Looks Better.

As currently constituted, the Sox are a much better team, the pitchers excepted, than they have been since 1920. And strangely enough, pitching was the one thing of which the management felt sure during the spring training season and the first week of the championship season.

Before the campaign many observers came right out and said the Sox had "one of the best pitching staffs in the majors." In our preseason experting, quoting ourself, we said "the Sox have one of the best pitching staffs in the second division of the American league."

If the pitchers had been as good as alleged, the Sox would have won more than half their games. Good pitchers, with a few exceptions when errors upset things, lose well pitched games because their associates are unable to furnish them with runs in any appreciable quantity. This hasn't been true of Sox pitchers in recent instances. Sox pitchers have repeatedly blown sizeable leads that good pitching would have protected.

Boom! Boom! It's Pitchers.

Here is the record of some of the notable lead blowups in the Sox's losing streak:

April 19—Jones leading 2 to 0 at the end of sixth. Cleveland scored two in seventh and one in ninth to win, 3 to 2.

April 24—Frasier leading Detroit 7 to 0 in fourth; 9 to 2 with two out in eighth. Lyons and Faber failed in relief rôles. Tigers won 10 to 9 in ninth.

April 28—Caraway leading 2 to 1 in fourth. Cleveland won, 11 to 2.

April 29—Faber leading 1 to 0 in first and 5 to 3 at the end of sixth. Cleveland won 7 to 5.

April 30—Frasier leading 5 to 0 at end of the first half of the second inning. Cleveland scored six runs in second and after a 7 to 7 tie went on to win over Thomas, 10 to 7.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The return of Hack Wilson to the scene of his greatest triumphs yesterday was all right for his new mates, the Brooklyn Dodgers, but for the pudgy one it was just another afternoon. Hack saw a lot of lemons bouncing around his feet, heard a lot of cheers, more than a few raspberries and was the author of a hit. But as these had nothing to do with a 2 to 1 defeat inflicted on the second place Cubs.

It was Charley Root's bad luck to be present on a day when his fellow workers were helping the enemy to a pair of runs. Back after a week of idleness, caused by a cold, Root was in the mood to do things in a big way and he did them by allowing only five hits until relieved by a pinch batter after pitching seven innings. Only one of these hits appeared before the sixth. But in the sixth a couple of them came together and Johnny Moore let go with a bad peg. Then young Stanley Hack gave the Dodgers the other run in the seventh by fumbling.

Wilson Looks no Different.

The famed Mr. Wilson, looking a bit more portly, didn't made his formal appearance at the plate until the second inning, but even before that he was made to feel right at home. The lemons began dropping around him while he was waiting for a chance to bat in the first. When he stepped up in the second he hoisted a lazy fly to Stephenson.

He was back again in the fourth with a mate waiting on base and he didn't see a third strike float over. In the sixth he delivered his harmless single. Then in the eighth, he had to look at Burleigh Grimes making his season's debut. He tapped one only as far as the pitcher. Shortly after that he was withdrawn for a man more agile on defense.

About the only thing the Cubs did well was to collect a respectable total of hits off William Watson Clark, a left handed pitcher. They hit the young man freely, although without tangible results, for two-thirds of the nine innings. But after Willie had shown off by driving in the winning run with a double in the seventh he didn't give the Chicagoans a look in. During the last three innings exactly one Cub reached base. He was Grimm, who arrived on a wild throw by Wright to open the seventh. The next three fellows folded up meekly, among them being English, who fanned in place of Root.

Cubs Grab a Lead.

A double by Stephenson brought the Cubs' one run lead in the second which endured until the sixth. Stevie's offering was a liner into the left field corner to start the inning. He received no assistance from either Hartnett or Grimm, but went to third on Jurges' single which was knocked down by Stripp. This stop was in the nature of a brazen robbery, but Root atoned for it a moment later. He popped a sin-

HOMEWORK SETS TRACK RECORD AT SPORTSMAN'S

Favorite, with McLaren Up, Wins Feature.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Homework, a 3 year old son of Broomstick, and Jockey Johnny McLaren, two newcomers to the Chicago racing scene, who have made themselves known in the current meeting at Sportsman's Park, collaborated to take the Homewood purse yesterday from the best field yet assembled at the new half mile track. And as if that were not enough, they established a new track record while they were doing it, going over the six and one-half furlongs in 1:21 4-5 to chop two-fifths of a second off the time set by Wild Child in winning the inaugural last Monday.

Homework has been a steady performer on the winter and spring circuit, having done pretty well by himself in Florida and Maryland, but Chicagoan's didn't see him in action until last Tuesday, when he scored a four length victory in his initial appearance at Sportsman's Park.

Homework Returns $6.22.

The Homework-McLaren team was the favorite in the betting against a field which included Patricia Marian, Harum Scarum, Diaquiri, and Brookside. McLaren allowed the speedy Diaquiri to set the pace almost throughout the race and when they came by the stands for the first time Homework was going along easily in fourth place. Johnny said, "Let's go, Homework," in the back stretch and his mount pushed King Cherokee and Bernice Van aside and came up alongside Diaquiri. The latter held on well, taking the rail when they went into the stretch, but Homework decided to quit fooling and went on to win by two lengths. King Cherokee took the show end. Homework rewarded his public with $6.22 in the $2 mutuels.

Probationer Beats Young Rivals.

The fans liked the combination of Ada Epinard, a daughter of the famous French sire, and McLaren so well that they made it the favorite in the opening race, but Ada and Johnny were shut off in the back stretch and by the time they were in the clear it was too late to catch Peralta and Kukui, which had been arguing about the lead throughout the race. Kukui held his early lead well into the stretch, but a strong finish by Jockey Wally Taylor brought Peralta home a head in front. Ada Epinard trailed them home by four lengths. Peralta, also well liked in the mutuels, returned $8.22 to win, while place tickets on Kukui brought $13.12.

The Aspirants' purse brought together a goodly crowd of 2 year old maidens and was won by W. F. Knebelkamp's Probationer, making the second start of his life.

Take Off Equals Record.

A track record was equaled in the fourth when Take Off, no stranger to Chicagoans, went out in front at the barrier and stayed there all the way home, turning the five furlongs in 1:00 2-5 to tie the mark set by Justina on Monday.

The crowd at Sportsman's Park continues to hold up, more than five thousand turning out for yesterday's program.

Injury Puts Universe Out of Derby Field

longs as a 2 year old. He is well bred, however.

Adobe Post has been a bad boy. After being out of it on his other races, he won the Derby preparation purse handily. He always was coming from behind as a 2 year old.

Prince Hotspur is a void on form. In the Derby preparation, in which he finished second to Adobe Post, he came from far back. If he's a Derby colt, the writer is a managing editor, but this is called an open race.

Lucky Tom, the winter track long shot, took his final work this morning. It was a mile effort, with the colt not fully extended, in 1:43 1-5. He ran the half in :50 and the six furlongs in 1:16.

Fans Come in Early.

Liberty Limited went the full route in 2:12. Economic, second in the Wood Memorial, reeled off six furlongs in 1:15 1-5. Of the others, Tick On had a light exercising gallop of six furlongs. Stepenfetchit and Over Time jogged, and Gallant Sir galloped two slow miles. All candidates were on the track at some time, but only for mild jogs.

Derby advance arrivals began to come in and relieved the hitherto drab regulars. Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody with Junior, headed a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Darrow Fulton, Mr. and Mrs. Hampden Winston and Miss Harriet McLaughlin. Tammany Leader John F. Curry of New York was chieftain of a party of twelve braves. Jim Mullen brought Jackie Fields, who battles here tomorrow night, because Manager Doc Kearns was called to Cleveland on business.

Both attendance and speculation increased markedly, weather was favorable, and conditions looked more like old Derby times.

Maccabees and Brickies to Play Off Soccer Tie

BY OFFSIDE.

The Bricklayers and the Maccabee All-Stars, who played to a 1 to 1 tie in the finals for the Triner trophy last Sunday, will meet again at the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, Sunday afternoon. The game features the week-end's heavy soccer schedule.

Alfred O'Hare, who formerly played with the Ravenswood club of the International league, will be in the Maccabee lineup. He was signed by the All-Stars yesterday.

Sparta, winner of the National Professional league championship, which has reached the semi-finals for the Peel cup, will meet the Swedes on May 15 instead of Sunday, the Peel cup commission announced after its weekly meeting.

The commission also announced that Mrnka, Sparta full back, has been suspended for one year for kicking Stanley, center forward on the Swedish team.

In the International league the Norwegians will meet the Swedish Americans at 4600 West Fullerton avenue. The Vikings will face the Linnea squad in a curtain raiser.

College Boxers Clash Tonight in Legion Meet

The first intercollegiate amateur boxing tournament ever held in the central states gets under way tonight at 8 o'clock at the Chicago Stadium Boxers from ten universities and colleges will compete in the tournament sponsored by the American Legion.

The revised list of contestants follows:

112 POUNDS.

Elliott A. Draine, Iowa, and Coach Yokochi, Purdue.

118 POUNDS.

Francis Fleischle, Illinois; Frank Diamond, Minnesota, and Warren Sandstrom, Armour Tech.

126 POUNDS.

Joe Oakley, Michigan; Vaness Hall, Wisconsin, and Bud Marcy, Loyola.

135 POUNDS.

Vernon Larson, Michigan; Fred Graeber and Emanuel Gruber, Iowa; Carl Gerold, Wisconsin; Charles Callanan, Loyola, and Robert Huffman, Ohio State.

147 POUNDS.

John Domarad, Lewis Institute; Paul Hummel, Ohio State; Louis Dequine, Wisconsin; Francis Reed, Purdue; Milford Graham and Harvey Goldstein, Minnesota; Alfred Bell, Iowa; Andy Kolonick, Michigan, and Chris Chibucos, Illinois.

160 POUNDS.

Thomas Lynch, Illinois; Harry Pedersen, Michigan; David Elderkin, Iowa, and Dutchy Long, Purdue.

175 POUNDS.

George Bicanich, Illinois; Harvey Bauss, Michigan; George McPartlin, Minnesota, and John Derrig, Loyola.

HEAVYWEIGHTS.

Elmer Apple, Purdue, and Max Knecht, Wisconsin.

With only two entries in each of the flyweight and heavyweight divisions, the championships for these weights probably will be held tomorrow night. Competition is most keen in the welterweight class in which nine boxers will compete. With few exceptions, all of the 33 entries are champions of university tournaments, which, in most instances, are part of intramural sports programs.

There will be 17 bouts tonight in six divisions. Leading judges and referees, sanctioned by the Illinois athletic commission, will conduct the bouts.

Joe Doktor, the Buffalo, N. Y., heavyweight, who unexpectedly defeated Baxter Calmes in one of the supporting cards to the recent Levinsky-Walker fight at the Stadium, has been signed by Matchmaker Nate Lewis for the card May 20 on which Billy Petrolle and Bat Battalino are the principals. Doktor's opponent has not been picked.

Dick Sisk, Chicago junior welterweight, also has been given a spot on the May 20 program, his opponent to be chosen later. Sisk knocked out Ruby Goldstein of New York last week.

The National Boxing association has launched an investigation of amateur boxing, according to announcement yesterday by Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the N. B. A. and chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission. While the Illinois commission does not have control of amateur boxing, yet it can declare amateurs professionals, if circumstances warrant it, Gen. Clinnin pointed out.

"Amateur boxing, conducted by professional promoters, frequently is nothing more than cheap professional show clothed with the sanction from the A. A. U.," Gen. Clinnin's announcement said. "The rules of the A. A. U. are not observed in many cases with regard to award of medals and prizes. On occasion contestants are openly paid in cash, the scale ranging from $5 on up.

"The attention of the A. A. U. officials throughout the country has been repeatedly called to the violation of the ethics of amateur boxing. In most instances no attention has been paid to them. Perhaps some of the associations of the A. A. U. are more concerned in the collection of sanction fees than in the amateur status of contestants."

Mique Malloy has completed his card scheduled for Monday night at the White City arena. Les Marrinei former University of Illinois athlete, and Pete Wistort, South Chicago heavyweight, will fight the ten round windup match. The eight round semi-final contest brings together Henry Lenard, south side featherweight, and Johnny Ryan of Milwaukee. Preliminary encounters are: Jerry Crano vs. Clyde Hull, Meyer Frager vs. Jimmy Peters, and Bobby Allen vs. Servina Fabia.

Badger Athlete Proves It Pays to Try, Try Again

[This is the fifteenth of a series of sketches of university track and field stars in the central states.]

BY WILFRID SMITH.

You've heard the old saw, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again"?

Well, up at the University of Wisconsin there's an athlete who practiced that adage and made good. Back in 1930, his freshman year, George Wright reported for football. He failed to make the squad. Thinking perhaps his lack of weight might not handicap him in basketball, he tried for Dr. Walter Meanwell's yearling quintet. Again, he was disappointed.

GEORGE WRIGHT.

Then one day George walked into Coach Tom Jones' office. He asked to be enrolled in a track class. But Coach Jones found that Wright couldn't report until 4:30 each afternoon. That was the hour reserved for varsity and freshman cross country practice. Jones didn't care to bother with a novice at that stage of the season, but Wright's sincerity impressed and he was given a pair of cotton pants, a sweat jersey, and a pair of spiked shoes and told to come along on the next jaunt over Madison's hills. At the end of three weeks Wright easily was the star of the first year men and he won his first race handily.

In his sophomore year Wright finished fifth in the conference indoor two mile race which was held in Wisconsin's new fieldhouse. He developed rapidly last spring, and a year ago he won the two mile Big Ten title in 9 minutes 21 9-10 seconds, the best time in 31 years of that competition. In that race Henry Brocksmith and J. C. Watson of Indiana university finished behind him, Brocksmith trailing by 15 yards.

Wright is 20 years of age and weighs 154 pounds. He is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity.

Cubs' Errors Give Dodgers 2 to 1 Victory

gle over first base and Stevie scored. A called third strike on Hack ended the session.

The Dodgers began getting tough with one out in the sixth when a line single by Frederick sailed over Herman's head. O'Doul singled to center and Moore threw the ball back in the general direction of the infield, but nobody could capture it until it had rolled to the stand. Root picked it up and tossed to Hartnett, but Frederick already was over the plate. Gabby shot it to Hack at third and O'Doul was nailed, but Hack let the ball roll out of his hands. O'Doul was cut down at the plate on Stripp's tap to Jurges and Wilson singled, but Root put a halt to the rumpus by fanning Wright.

Cubs Only Threaten.

After getting their lone run in the second, the Cubs kept right on making threats, but nothing happened. A double to right by Herman opened the third, but he was caught trying to reach third on Moore's infield tap. Richbourg then filed out and Moore was nabbed in an attempt to steal. Another possible chance appeared in the fifth when Hack singled with one out, but Herman hit into a double play. Another twin killing on Hartnett's grounder blasted an opportunity in the sixth after Moore and Stephenson had singled.

Two were out in the Brooklyn seventh before Hack perpetrated the error which put the Dodgers on the trail of their second run. Hack fumbled an easy roller by Lopez. Clark hit one to right center and there was no way of mistaking it for anything but a legitimate double. It bounced off the bleacher screen and Lopez scored. Root then walked Frederick, but Clark made it possible to bring the inning to a speedy close. He was so busy congratulating himself on his batting prowess that he forget to hug second base. Hartnett's rifelike arm picked him off.

Dodgers Look at Bush's Stuff in Game Today

Guy Bush will attempt to work some of his Mississippi magic on the Dodgers in the second of the series today. Guy's record to date is two victories and two defeats. Van Lingle Mungo, a 20 year old fast ball pitcher, may be Manager Max Carey's pick.

The Cubs finally blossomed out in their fancy new home uniforms. They are of pencil striped white flannel with "Cubs" in black and gold letters across the shirt fronts. The black in the stockings is broken with three gold stripes.

Woody English is just about ready to take back his shortstop job, but unless the team tumbles into a protracted slump Manager Hornsby may be inclined not to break up his present infield combination. Until yesterday English had been out of working order since cracking a bone in his right index finger March 27 at San Francisco.

There were about 16,000 present at Wrigley field yesterday, which should be accepted as a fair indication that the ball fan still has money, depression or no depression.

Moore's return throw which let Frederick score in the sixth was slightly out of line, but either Jurges or Herman should have stopped it. It is little things of that kind that kid players go to sleep over until they've gained experience.

Two of the Cubs' hits were low short flys to right and Wilson didn't hesitate to play both for singles. In his palmy days he'd have dived to get 'em.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY LANCE RICHBOURG.
[As told to Irving Vaughan.]

LANCE RICHBOURG.

High school baseball started me on my way. There was nothing over a grammar school when I lived at Crest View, Fla., so I had to travel back and forth between there and De Funiak Springs, Fla., for my prepping. They had a ball team there, so I worked with the squad and finally won the third base job which I held for three years.

The next step was to the University of Florida at Gainesville and my studies as a third baseman continued. That spring, 1919, the Giants came over to play us in a series and that was the thrill of a lifetime, at least for me. Imagine my surprise when I, a freshman, was asked by John McGraw if I took baseball seriously enough to want a big league tryout. I told him that I sure did and would show up if it didn't interfere with my obligations to Uncle Sam. I was still in the navy, but drew a discharge and went to New York that summer. The Giants carried me around, but I didn't play. Then I went back to school in the fall just as I did in subsequent falls until I had earned my college degree.

In the spring of 1920 McGraw shipped me out to the Grand Rapids, Mich., team of the Central league. I needed seasoning. The following year the Phillies had me in their control, but I never had a chance to prove it. I sat on the bench. The Phillies passed me along to the Charleston, S. C., team in 1922. Understand, I still was trying to become a third baseman. One of the outfielders there that season was a fellow named Hazen Cuyler.

Jimmy Hamilton, who managed at Charleston in 1922, went to Nashville the next season and included me in his luggage. Cuyler also went along. As soon as he sized up the Nashville situation Hamilton told me he figured I had sufficient speed and hitting talent to rate an outfielding job. It was all right with me, so I played that summer along side of Cuyler. I had an average of something like .378, so Washington closed a deal for me. Three days after the sale I broke a leg so the deal was cancelled.

The leg injury put me back in Florida for the remainder of the season, but in 1924 I was going just as well as before the mishap and the Milwaukee club took me off Nashville's hands in midseason. My carrer as a Brewer lasted until the spring of 1927, when I was sold to the Braves and I stayed in that one spot until last winter.

MUSCARELLO, 2 OTHER CHICAGO FIGHTERS WIN

New York, May 5. — [Special.] — Tony Muscarello, featherweight boxer from the Belle Plaine Athletic club of Chicago, tonight won his way to the Olympic trials which will be held at Los Angeles. Muscarello, a member of the 1931 CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves team, achieved this honor by defeating Howard Williamson, New York, as he advanced to the semi-finals of the National A. A. U. tournament.

All four survivors in each weight division today qualified for the Olympic trials. Other victors in the featherweight class were Richard Carter, a member of the 1932 New York Golden Gloves squad; Peter Young, Buffalo, and Holman Williams, Detroit.

Two of Carter's teammates—Louis Salica and Jimmy Martin—also will compete in the Olympic tryouts. Salica knocked out Francis Walsh, Boston, in the first round, while Martin pounded out a decision over Lloyd Weems, Kansas City.

Two other Chicago boxers—Fred Caserio and Max Marek—won in the second round this afternoon. Caserio stopped Clyde Pedersen, Omaha, in the third round and Marek knocked out Chester Schmitz, New Orleans, in the second round.

Lombardi and Reds Upset Braves, 9-6

Cincinnati, O., May 5.—[Special.]—The pre-season trade that brought Catcher Ernest Lombardi to Cincinnati paid big dividends today as the Reds conquered the league leading Boston Braves, 9 to 6, in the opening game of the series.

Cincinnati could gather only nine hits off four Braves pitchers, but two of them were a triple and home run by Lombardi, and both figured prominently in the scoring. He tripled in the second to open a two run outburst and then came through with a home run in the fifth to climax a five run rally. Score:

WOODCOCK PAYS CALL TO CHICAGO WAREHOUSE AREA

Makes Slight Mistake in Feeding Ground Site.

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the canyons of Chicago's loop district prove puzzling to many migrating birds each spring and fall, it remained for a woodcock to put the final touch to the spring atmosphere of East Illinois street a few days ago.

M. J. Hogan, of Barrington, Ill., saw one of the "timber doodles" [as the woodcock sometimes is called] dodging around the warehouses of East Illinois street one noon late in April, although how this highly prized game bird expected to find any soft, mucky feeding grounds in that district is beyond us.

Along Comes a Woodcock.

Mr. Hogan reports the observance of the woodcock as follows: "About 12.30 p. m. on April 27 I was standing in East Illinois street. This is down around the warehouses and being the dinner hour there were few people around. One of the three men I was talking with at the time called out, 'look at the big snipe.'

"To my great surprise a woodcock passed by within 20 feet of us. A few seconds later it returned on its way toward the lake.

"I have shot more than 300 woodcocks and missed that many more, so I do recognize one when I see it. But whatever, was that bird doing among those big warehouses?"

Woodcock around Chicago have been amusing some bird fans by moving into north shore gardens and calmly making themselves at home among the flowers. Undoubtedly on the migration north a few birds must visit the open park areas along Lake Michigan, even including Grant park. If such is the case a lost or confused bird might find himself among the warehouses of Illinois street.

Geese Killed by Lightning.

Mr. Hogan relays another item about birds which also illustrates what troubles, and even tragedies, are involved in the spring migration. It's a news note about wild geese from Elgin, Manitoba, and reads as follows:

"Fifty-two wild geese were killed by a flash of lightning during an electrical storm on April 27, so citizens are anticipating goose dinners. Lightning was seen to strike into a large flock of geese as the birds were passing over the town of Elgin and 52 tumbled to earth. The birds were picked up and distributed among the residents."

This is the first report that we have ever seen involving the death of wild geese from a bolt of lightning while the birds were on the wing.

MUSCLE SHOALS BILL ONCE MORE PASSES HOUSE

Up to Senate to Avert 100 Million Threat.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—This session's edition of the perennial Muscle Shoals legislation was passed by the house of representatives today by a vote of 153 to 132, despite the virtual certainty that it will cost the treasury a hundred million dollars if approved by the senate and the President.

The bill, introduced by Representative Lister Hill [Dem., Ala.] and favorably reported by the military affairs committee, represents the latest attempt to solve the twelve year old problem of what to do with the 140 million dollar plant built by the government just after the war, which has been practically idle ever since.

Ultimately it calls for government operation of the project, although its ostensible purpose is to lease the properties to private interests. A board of three $10,000 a year members would be set up to negotiate for the leasing of the plant. Should no lessee be obtained within eighteen months the government would take over the project and begin the manufacture of fertilizer and nitrogen.

Has Repeatedly Failed.

Since its construction, attempts to lease the property have repeatedly failed, and it was this demonstrated failure to interest private industry in the operation of the project that brought a storm of protest from congressional opponents of any government participation in the field of private business.

In view of this past experience, they pointed out, it will be practically impossible to secure a lessee within eighteen months, and the government in that case is arbitrarily bound by the measure to enter into the manufacture of fertilizer.

They asserted, also, that for the government to operate the project, should no lessee be secured, would cost around 100 million dollars at the outset.

Chiperfield Loses Fight.

Representative Burnett M. Chiperfield [Rep., Ill.] led the fight against the government operation provision, warning that "the people of the country are in a frame of mind that will not view with complacency the appropriation necessary to start government operation of the plant."

But his amendment to strike out the provision was defeated by a vote of 123 to 153, and a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to report it back without the provision was likewise defeated, 149 to 200.

Representatives from Illinois voted as follows on the motion to recommit:

For—Allen, Britten, Chindblom, Chiperfield, De Priest, Dieterich, Hall, M. D. Hull, W. E. Hull, Kelly, Yates.

Against—Adkins, Arnold, Buckbee, Holaday, Karch, Keller, Kunz, Major, Parsons, Rainey.

Not voting—Beam, Igoe, Johnson, Sabath, Schuetz.

Representative Reid was paired for the bill.

U. S. ECONOMIC PLAN PREPARED BY METHODISTS

Five Points Include 5 Day Week.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., May 5.—[Special.]—The Methodist Episcopal church committee on social and industrial relations today completed the development of a five point national program for immediate application to present economic conditions. The program, inspired jointly by a memorial from the Rock river annual conference and the declaration of the board of bishops, was prepared for submission for action by the quadrennial general conference of the church in session here.

The bishops' declaration demanded an immediate and drastic paternalistic program.

The proposal calls for economic planning in industry to equalize production with consumption; advocates unemployment insurance, old age pensions, abolition of child labor, a five day week, and the funds now spent on armaments to be devoted to industrial purposes.

Church Economy Asked.

How to save the missionary, educational, and philanthropic work of the church has been increasingly occupying the minds of the delegates.

In various standing committees of the conference the laity insist on reorganization and "cutting to the bone" of extension activities and the abolition of "topheavy secretarial organizations" of Methodist world service with headquarters at the Chicago and other general agencies.

While clergy appealed for a special call for $1,000,000 to be raised on Sunday, May 15, to save the world service, the laity assert the 36 per cent decrease in benevolent income during the last sixteen months is "a mandate to the general conference to slash budgets and reorganize just as we business men have had to do in our businesses."

Consolidations Planned.

Already plans are under way for various forms of consolidation. In subcommittee an enabling act was passed authorizing the fusion of the Northwest German conference with the Rock River and eight other conferences of Wisconsin and Iowa. The plan was proposed by the Rev. Dr. A. J. Loeppert of Chicago and the Rev. Dr. J. H. Tonjas of Milwaukee. The Rock River and Wisconsin conferences will receive the bulk of the German churches if the consolidation is authorized.

GANDHITES ADOPT NEW FORM OF PICKETING TO PESTER BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, May 5.—A new and curious form of picketing suddenly broke out in Bombay yesterday resulting in the arrest of forty-two Nationalist Congress followers of Mahatma Gandhi before various postoffice branches.

The chief activity was at the central postoffice, where the president and secretary of the twenty-sixth emergency administration of Bombay's Congress party organization were arrested. The president, Jattalal Ramji, had made a speech urging a boycott of the postoffice, particularly of the savings department, in order to reduce the government revenue.

The postoffice arrests yesterday—which was called the fourth Gandhi day, celebrating the fourth monthly anniversary of the mahatma's arrest—provoked repercussions in the rebellious stock exchange, Ramji being a prominent stock broker.

His arrest caused another complete cessation of business in the exchange. Several days ago the board of directors of the exchange resigned because its suspension of one member was followed by a hartal [strike].

DEATH THREAT TO GOLF CHAMPION DEMANDS $25,000

Cleveland, O., May 5.—[Special.]—Ellsworth H. Augustus, prominent Cleveland golfer and business man, has been threatened with death unless he turns over $25,000 to extortionists, it was learned today. A note warning Augustus to leave the money in small bills in the northwest corner of his 80 acre estate Tuesday night was received by the seven time city golf champion, but the extortionists failed to appear at the time specified.

Since that time a husky-voiced man told Augustus' secretary by telephone that the sportsman hadn't kept his word. "He'll get it for this," said the voice. "If that isn't enough, we'll get his children, too."

Detectives have been guarding Augustus, his wife, and their three children since the threat was received.

The extortion note, written in pencil on a piece of paper torn from a bag, was signed "Poor families." The text follows:

"Cant get money onest so we must get it somehow. We want you to place twenty-five thousand dollars in cash paper money in one package on the northwest corner of the rail fence on hobard rd by the little gate between twelve and one oclock Tuesday night, may third. if this is not there you will die. dont advertise cause any trouble or set any traps, if you do it will be bad for your whole home. dont lose any time. poor families."

WATERWAY TO BE FINISHED BY 1933 SAYS ENGINEER

War Department Will Push Work.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The Illinois waterway will be among projects pushed by the war department during the next fiscal year according to testimony given before the house appropriations committee and made public today with the introduction of the war department supply bill.

Of the $60,000,000 carried in the bill for prosecution of work on rivers and harbors, a total of $4,650,000 has been allocated for completing the nine foot channel between the mouth of the Illinois river and the great lakes.

Maj. Gen. Brown, chief of engineers, confirmed earlier statements that the war department hoped to complete the Illinois project during the 1932 calendar year. He said in testifying before the appropriations committee, that the war department had promised to complete the Illinois project in 1933.

"But we are going to do it quicker than that," Maj. Gen. Brown said. "I do not like to promise anything and then fall short of it, but I know we are going to do it by 1933."

Maj. Gen. Brown said that the engineers could expend $75,000,000 on river and harbor improvement work very advantageously if it were available. In view of the demand for economy he said, he would not ask for that figure. In the same connection Maj. Gen. Brown said that the funds spent this year on rivers and harbors work had not resulted in as large an employment of men as had been anticipated.

CONDUCTOR KILLS NEGRO AS GANG WIELDS KNIVES

Eugene Young, colored, 31 years old, 1426 West 111th street, was shot and killed early today by Lyman Hughes, 35 years old, 8807 Lowe avenue, a surface line conductor. The shooting occurred on the rear platform of Hughes' car when Young and three Negro companions attacked him with knives at 111th street and Racine avenue.

According to Hughes, trouble arose between him and Young last Sunday when the latter refused to pay his fare and was put off the car. Since then the conductor had been carrying a pistol because, he said, he had taken the threat of attack seriously.

Hughes said that the Negroes got on and paid their fare and after going into the car retraced their steps and tried to stab him. He then fired, striking Young. The others fled.

G. A. R. VETS REBEL AT PROPOSAL TO RIDE IN PARADE

A proposal that no Grand Army of the Republic veterans be allowed to march in the Memorial day parade, May 30, has brought about a fair sized rebellion in the ranks, it was revealed yesterday.

"We didn't think it right for them to march this year, so many are feeble," James H. Campbell, 2108 West Sixty-ninth place, Illinois department commander division of the G. A. R., explained. "So we arranged for open cars to take all of the veterans in the parade.

"But some of the boys insist on marching, and I don't know what we're going to do now. Of course I'm not too feeble to march. But I can't march here, or they'd all want to.

"I want to march, for one," said Julius Henry Reed, 943 Edgecomb place, who will be 90 years old next month. "But we may have to ride if we want to be in the parade. It's this way. We fellows can't really march. We know that. We walk, and sometimes we stagger along. So we know we're in the way and that won't do, of course. But I hate the thought of riding."

Capt. William P. Wright, who is to be marshal of the parade, said even a one-legged man insists he is going to march.

EYE RELIEVED, MacDONALD TO REST SIX WEEKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 5.—Surgeons today performed successfully an operation to relieve glaucoma of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's right eye. The premier was advised to abstain from his public duties for a period of six weeks for rest and recuperation. A similar operation on his left eye was performed four weeks ago providing satisfactory relief.

Four physicians and surgeons were in attendance when the operation took place at 4 p. m. today. He will remain for a time at the nursing home, then will go to his country home at Lossiemouth. He intends to take up public activities again just prior to the Lausanne conference late in June.

The premier's vision was affected by a hardening condition of the eyeballs which might ultimately have resulted in blindness. After relief of the left eyeball, examination disclosed an increasing diminution of vision of the right eye.

500 COAST GUARD SHOTS KILL ONE ON RUM RUNNER

New London, Conn., May 5.—[U.P.]—Coast guard gunfire, which perforated the rumboat Scipio of Bridgeport in more than 500 places today probably fatally wounded a mysterious rum runner known only as "Charlie."

The Scipio, laden with 400 cases of liquor and carrying a crew of four, surrendered off Fisher's island after a machine gun bullet had pierced "Charlie's" skull. The wounded man regained consciousness at a hospital.

"My name's Charlie—just Charlie," he whispered.

Other members of the Scipio's crew said "Charlie" was the engineer and was struck by a machine gun bullet when he stuck his head up over a hatch to see what was going on during the rum craft's efforts to outspeed the patrol boat.

The officer in charge of the patrol boat reported to his superiors here that he had given the Scipio ample warning of his vessel's identity before he opened fire. The identity of the patrol boat was not announced.

One const guardsman who examined the Scipio said it had been struck more than 500 times and that a dory on its side looked "like a Swiss cheese."

SEUBERT GIVES TERMS ON SALE OF SUBSIDIARY

Standard of Indiana to Get Cash, Stock.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Approximate terms on which the Standard Oil Company of Indiana will dispose of the foreign properties of its subsidiary, the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were explained yesterday by Edward G. Seubert, president of Standard of Indiana. He also said he expected the big deal will be formally completed within the next day or two.

Standard of Indiana will receive its share of approximately $50,000,000 in cash, of which $10,000,000 will be paid immediately and the balance over four years, and stock of Standard of New Jersey worth approximately $65,000,000 and representing about an 8 per cent interest of the latter company's total stock. Minority Pan-American stockholders may sell their holdings to Standard of New Jersey on the same terms received by Standard of Indiana.

For Corporate Uses.

The cash payments received by Stanard of Indiana probably will be used for corporation purposes rather than disbursements to stockholders. The company must retire about $3,350,000 of Pan-American bonds which are convertible into stock. It also is likely Standard of Indiana will apply a considerable portion of the cash payments to reducing its $58,000,000 funded debt.

Mr. Seubert said he does not anticipate any federal objection to the deal as it results from economic conditions and is not an effort to combine any Standard Oil units. Standard of Indiana will not be represented on the Standard of New Jersey directorate and it will have no voice in the management. The deal will not lessen competition, according to Mr. Seubert, but is merely a move to transfer foreign oil properties which the company cannot use profitably in its own domestic business under the proposed oil tariffs to another company which can utilize the properties in its world trade. Foreign properties represent about 65 per cent of the Pan American company's assets.

Stockholders of Standard of Indiana held their annual meeting in Whiting, Ind., yesterday and Mr. Seubert made public his formal annual report. Net earnings for 1931 were $17,596,396, equivalent to $1.04 a share on 16,908,503 capital shares. This compared with 1930 net earnings of $46,371,437, or $2.73 a share on 16,996,595 shares. Dividends last year totaled $25,823,023, which, with surplus adjustments, resulted in reducing earned surplus by $10,373,646. Total earned surplus on Dec. 31, 1931, was $85,837,825, while both capital and earned surplus was $242,316,116.

Declining prices of petroleum products last year resulted in an inventory write off of $6,101,529, which was included in operating expenses. However, Mr. Seubert said the recent advance in oil prices has resulted in inventory appreciation. He estimated that earnings for the first quarter of 1932 were about equal to a year ago, therefore the company is not earning its dividends. Future didivend payments will depend on earnings, he added.

Year of Price Cutting.

Mr. Seubert commented on the fact that competition and price cutting made last year one of the worst in the history of the industry. Standard of Indiana's gasoline gallonage sales declined 9 per cent, although this recession was attributable to a considerable degree to the company's refusal to accept unprofitable business. Then he commented on the tax situation.

"Foreign, federal, state and local taxes paid or accrued in 1931 amounted to $7,583,720," he said. "Gasoline taxes amounted to $46,398,908, compared with $47,651,658 in 1930. The decline in these taxes is not proportional to decrease in volume of gasoline distributed and indicates how increases in the rates of gasoline taxes are building up this burden upon the consumer and the marketer of the product. High gasoline taxes have provided opportunity for unscrupulous persons to earn large profits in gasoline marketing through evasion of payment of all or part of the taxes demanded by law.

Burden from Taxes.

"Any increase in gasoline tax rates will seriously deter consumption of gasoline and place a further heavy handicap on the gasoline business. Diversions of funds collected from gasoline taxes to purposes other than those of building roads and highways will also unfairly affect both the purchasers of motor fuel and the oil industry.

"A computation reveals that 15½ per cent of all gross income of the company was paid out in 1931 in the form of taxes. Comparing this figure with the 5 per cent of the gross earned for stockholders, it is apparent to what extent government is today forcing its ways into business and making of private enterprise an agency for raising public revenues. The strenuous efforts of management to economize on operating costs will be rendered futile if a constantly larger share in the returns of the industrial and commercial process must be turned over to the tax gatherers."

The report shows Standard of Indiana to be in a strong position, with current assets of $243,687,228, including cash and marketable securities totaling $89,163,504, and current liabilities of $28,789,501.

Insull Trust Bond Owners to Get Little

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Chances seemed remote yesterday that the security holders or creditors of the two Insull investment trusts, other than the banks which made secured loans, will realize anything through the receiverships.

Temporarily the federal District court, under whose jurisdiction the receivers function, has enjoined the New York banks which planned to dispose of the collateral which they hold as security against loans made to Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities Company of Chicago.

New York Bankers En Route.

Representatives of the New York banks were on their way to Chicago yesterday to protest in court against the injunction. Whatever the outcome of that legal dispute is the only hope that the receivers for the two trusts can preserve something for the other creditors and security holders depends on an upturn in the stock market. If the injunction continues in force indefinitely the security holders and other creditors will realize nothing unless security prices show material improvement. Assuming that the collateral is held intact and the market shows marked improvement, there is a chance that others besides the bankers will salvage somthing from the wreckage of those two investment companies.

The odds are all against the security holders, according to the betting in La Salle street. Insull Utility 6 per cent debentures were quoted yesterday on the Chicago exchange at 12½ cents for each $100 par value, the lowest price at which the issue can be quoted on the market. The face value of the issue outstanding is $57,725,000. Oddly enough the issue is selling below the preferred stock and on a par with the common stock both of which are junior to the debentures. Market quotations are not available on the serial notes of Corporation Securities of which there are in excess of $24,000,000 outstanding.

Dividends Cover Interest.

The estimated annual interest on bank loans of the two companies is $2,225,000. This compares with an estimated dividend yield of $3,000,000 annually from the securities now pledged with the banks. The collateral consists of shares of the profitable Chicago utility properties, Peoples Gas and Commonwealth Edison. The indicated margin of $725,000 yearly would be available to meet other obligations of the trusts if the banks are enjoined indefinitely from selling or taking legal possession of the collateral.

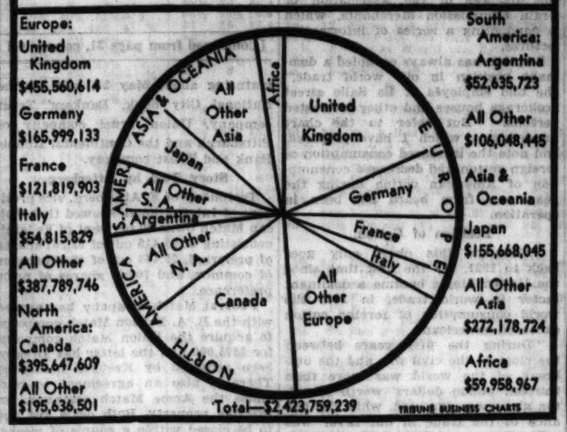
It is expected that the dispute between the receivers and the New York bankers will be decided one way or another within the next few days by the District court.

SWIFT SHARES OFF AGAIN

Liquidation in the packing shares continued to unsettle the Chicago market yesterday. The volume of transactions reached the highest mark in several days because of the heavy trading in Swift stocks and Libby, McNeill & Libby stock.

Necessitious selling in the Swift issues again sent these shares to new low price territory. The bulk of the offerings were reported to be from the east, where an important bank consolidation was announced this week. Scattered buying made the price retreat a stubborn one. At the close of the day Swift & Co. was quoted at 10⅛ and Swift International was bringing 13⅛. The combined turnover of the two issues was nearly 66,000 shares.

DISTRIBUTION OF AMERICAN EXPORTS IN 1931 BY COUNTRIES AND CONTINENTS



HOME LAUNDRY AGENCY FORMED BY GEN. ELECTRIC

Establishment of a retail selling organization for the distribution of electrical home laundry equipment was announced yesterday by officials of W. D. Hess Jr., Inc., acting as agents for the General Electric company. At the same time Mr. Hess stated that the formal opening of the organization's new offices in the Merchandise mart will take place Monday.

"We are in the opening of the greatest era of household development in the history of Chicago and its suburbs," Mr. Hess said. "The average home in this vicinity has only 30 per cent of the modern electrical equipment."

Mr. Hess' organization has been in the making for more than four months. During that time he has established 75 dealers and 3 branches in various parts of the city. Almost 500 salesmen have been employed. These newly employed salesmen will be guests on Monday evening at a banquet to be held in the Congress hotel. Charles Younggreen, past president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, will act as toastmaster.

American Steel Foundries Report First Quarter Loss

American Steel Foundries yesterday reported a net loss for the March quarter of $350,300 after depreciation, taxes and minority interest, compared with net profit of $66,395 in the first quarter of 1931, equal to $1.05 a share on 63,350 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock.

Directors voted the regular quarter dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock.

Supply Short, Russia Turns Wheat Buyer

Russia has changed from an exporter to an importer of wheat, having contracted for 40,000 tons of Canadian grain and 7,000 tons of Australian, according to reports from London, as heard on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. The news was interpreted to indicate that Siberia is short of grain. The grain already contracted for will be shipped from Canadian and Australian ports to Vladivostok. It is believed to be cheaper to transport the grain across the Pacific than send it overland from the Russian Black sea wheat fields. While Russian military forces in Siberia are considered the chief cause of the Canadian orders, some authorities believe the underlying reason for wheat imports is due to new famine conditions in the Volga section of Russia.

Believed Economy Move.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York News.]

LONDON, May 5.—Soviet purchases of Australian and Canadian wheat for shipment from Pacific ports to Vladivostock are suggested here to be due to overexportation by Russia or to the discovery that it is cheaper to buy foreign wheat than to transport domestic wheat eastward over the Trans-Siberian railway.

Wheat for Siberia.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 5.—(AP)—Four ships have been chartered here to carry 1,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to Vladivostok and negotiations to charter a fifth are under way. That was announced today. Payment will be made in Canadian funds before the ships sail.

A shortage of wheat in western Siberia, despite good stores in eastern Russia was said here to have prompted the soviet government to purchase Canadian grain. The expense and difficulty of shipping wheat over the long single line of the Trans-Siberian railroad were said to be greater than the cost at $2.50 a ton of shipping wheat from here.

The wheat in eastern Russia, which is being sold to the United Kingdom and other European countries, will aid in paying for the Canadian grain.

YANKEE MATCH TRUST GOAL OF KREUGER PLANS

Stock Structure Told at Inquiries.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—Ivar Kreuger, at the time of his suicide in Paris, was trying to establish one of his match monopolies in the United States, notwithstanding this country's anti-trust laws. At least that was indicated today by official figures gathered in the International Match corporation bankruptcy proceedings.

While counsel, headed by Samuel Untermeyer, sought a delay in the election of a trustee for the corporation, the figures became known through examination of private testimony gathered by Rosenberg, Goldmark & Colin, counsel for the Irving Trust company receiver.

Six American match companies were listed in the data gathered by the attorneys. In each of the six the Kreuger enterprises had acquired a considerable stock interest.

Besides the Diamond Match company, of which common stock, Kreuger had 350,000 shares, according to testimony at a public hearing Tuesday, those companies were the Federal Match, Ohio Match, North American Match, Union Match, and Acme Match.

Strongest Grip on Federal.

Seventy per cent of Federal Match company stock was owned by International Match, title being held through the Vulcan Match company, a wholly owned International subsidiary. Federal Match in turn has an agreement to acquire the Union Match company for $275,000, according to the privately heard testimony.

The tieups with the remaining companies are smaller or less direct, but altogether would have been sufficient to place Kreuger in a dominating position in the American match industry.

Vulcan Match company is an importing and selling organization for safety matches produced in foreign countries. Mississippi Match company also is connected with International Match.

International's ownership in Diamond Match consists of 350,000 shares of common stock, about one-third of the outstanding total, which is pledged as security for a loan of $4,000,000

Dividend Rate Is Increased by Homestake

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—Directors of the Homestake Mining company declared today a monthly dividend of 75 cents a share, placing the stock on a $9 annual basis. The latest distribution represents an increase of $1.20 a share over the previously yearly rate of $7.80 in force since October of last year. An extra dividend of $1 a share was also declared last February.

Action of Homestake's board attracted more than passing interest in the financial community, which has been accustomed of late to reading of dividend reductions and omissions.

Net Income Increases.

Homestake operates gold mines and has increased its net income steadily in recent years. Results for 1931 were equal to $9.70 a share on the capital stock, compared with $5.94 a share for the previous year.

Directors of the Atlas Powder company voted a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, payable June 1 to holders of record May 31, in the previous quarter 50 cents was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $4 annual basis.

E. J. Brach & Sons announced a dividend of 10 cents a share, compared with 25 cents in each of the three preceding quarters.

Declares Dividend.

American and General Securities declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share on the class A common, compared with 12½ cents in the preceding quarter. The regular quarterly dividend was voted on the first preferred.

The United States and Foreign Securities corporation omitted its quarterly dividend on the first preferred stock. Net assets on April 29, based on market prices, totaled $22,390,000.

Compressed Industrial Gases, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents a share, reducing the annual rate from $2 to $1.40.

E. H. Miller, Cotton Expert, Talks to Grain Traders

Improvements made in the raising and ginning of cotton, storage, and all methods of handling from the grower to the consumer were described yesterday by E. H. Miller, crop statistician for James E. Bennett & Co., at the weekly gathering of the Association of Grain Commission Merchants of the Chicago Board of Trade. Price trends, yearly statistics, the law of supply and demand, export business, the farm board's inception and operation, banking as applied to cotton merchandising, and all details that enter into the production, marketing, and consumption of cotton and cotton oil byproducts, were discussed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—Reactionary influences again held sway in the dealings on the New York Stock Exchange. Selling hit a pretty lively pace in the first two hours or so, sweeping a half hundred or more active issues down to new bear market lows on losses of from a fraction to around 3 points.

Around midday, however, the list began to stiffen and a moderate recovery, which gradually got under way, sufficed to erase the larger part of the earlier losses. Closing figures were off from a fraction to a point or so in the main.

U. S. Bonds in Rally.

The rally was supposed to be inspired by the brisk upturn in United States government bonds, following the heavy gold shipments to Europe on steamships leaving this port last night. The street heard that the bonds were being taken for the account of federal reserve banks and the suggestion was offered that the banks were trying by this means to create the impression that the central banking authorities were not particularly worried over the exodus of yellow metal from these shores. Some traders professed to be taking a more optimistic view of the efforts in congress to balance the budget and solve the allied problems pressing for solution.

The reduction in the General Motors dividend, announced overnight, appeared to have little effect on sentiment. Such an action had been popularly anticipated and no doubt was largely discounted by the selling which has been going on in this one time market wheelhorse for some time. While the stock sagged to a new low of 9⅞ it followed rather than pulled its group down. Its dip was no more

ISSUE PLAN OF REORGANIZATION FOR LEAMINGTON

Two H. O. Stone Master's Sales Set.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

Details of a reorganization plan for the Leamington store and apartment building at the northeast corner of North Leamington and West Grand avenues were sent to bondholders yesterday by T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, of which Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, is chairman. A "Leamington Building Liquidation Trust" is to be organized, the object of which will be the sale and liquidation of this property for the benefit of the bondholders.

WALTER J. M'GUIRE.

The committee, which is composed of Walter J. McGuire, Herman G. Amling, Barnet L. Rosset, and S. J. Campbell, announces that it expects to be able to procure a new first mortgage to pay reorganization expenses. The property is to be bid in for the bondholders at a foreclosure sale, to be announced later.

Attorneys' Fees $1,000.

In a statement of receipts and disbursements from June 19, 1930, to Feb. 29, 1932, made by the receiver, the Straus National Bank and Trust company, operating expenses of $4,757 were shown. The receiver's fees were $1,000 and the attorneys' fees $1,000. The gross receipts were $12,141. The cash balance was $4,908. The occupancy on Feb. 29, 1932, was seven out of the ten flats, four of the five stores, and one of the four garages.

The Leamington building was financed by an $85,000 first mortgage 7 per cent bond issue underwritten by Holzer, Inc., since reduced to $78,500. Interest and principal defaulted on Nov. 20, 1929. The Straus National bank was made receiver and since then has managed the property. Pritzker & Pritzker are attorneys. The Chicago Title and Trust company is depositary.

To Be Sold May 26.

The H. O. Stone & Co. bondholders' protective committee yesterday notified the owners of securities of the Kedzie Palmer apartments and the Kedzie Boulevard apartments, at Kedzie boulevard and Palmer square, that a decree of foreclosure has been entered and the sale has been set for May 26 at noon at the board of review rooms. The committee will attempt to bid the two properties in for the depositing bondholders.

Bonds of the $800,000 issue against the 222 East Chestnut Street building, underwritten by H. O. Stone & Co., defaulted interest on April 1. Yesterday it was announced that the regular H. O. Stone & Co. committee would act for this issue. Bondholders were urged to deposit their securities with the Chicago Title and Trust company.

A new group has been organized in Roseland, composed of Cornelius Teninga, Arthur J. Zimmerman, Clifford ●. Wood, Isaac E. Berkson, and Theophilus Schmid, bankers and realtors, to be known as the Roseland bond and mortgage holders' protective committee, which will handle reorganizations in the Roseland area. The new body already is receiving deposits of bonds secured by the property at the southwest corner of 112th street and Michigan avenue. The Roseland National bank is depositary. Joseph A. and Philip E. Golde are attorneys.

FOREIGN DRIVE AGAINST DOLLAR SHOWS LETDOWN

Alien Moneys Draw Less Premium.

New York, May 5.—(AP)—The dollar gave a better account of itself in today's foreign exchange trading. Although rates for the most part held at or above gold points, there was a distinct sag, especially in the late dealings, among currencies which have recently been strongest. Trading was dull in view of the Ascension day holiday observed in several foreign markets.

Dutch guilders and the Belga were off 4 and 3 points respectively, while French francs eased slightly to 3.94 11-16 cents at the close, off 1-16, although they had been as much as half a point down. Swiss francs continued firm, up 2 points net, but still 2 points under the early afternoon high. Sterling was steady and closed unchanged at 3.67¾ for cables.

Today's gold statement of the federal reserve bank showed an export of $1,600,600 to Holland. There were no imports and no net change in the stock of gold held under earmark for foreign account.

BUY MORE U. S. BONDS

The federal reserve banks have continued their "easy money" policy in the last week by buying government securities in the open market. Apparently the reserve authorities do not regard seriously the gold withdrawals to Europe and see no reason for building up their gold reserves.

The weekly statement of the reserve system shows additional purchases of government securities to the extent of $95,649,000, although part of this represents absorption of new treasury issues. The reserve banks now hold $1,286,881,000 of government obligations. However, their holdings of bankers' acceptances declined $1,352,000 to a total of $44,522,000. Borrowings of the member banks from the reserve banks show a further recession of $26,023,000, bringing the total down to $505,801,000.

Reserve Circulation Increases.

Federal reserve currency in circulation increased $35,074,000, thus reversing the trend of several weeks. However, this expansion was regarded as temporary and resulting from the larger need for money in connection with month-end settlements. Federal reserve note circulation now totals $2,561,646,000. Deposits of the member banks increased $2,902,000. Gold reserves receded $22,113,000, but still total $2,992,421,000. Total reserves decline $29,790,000, and the ratio of reserves to liabilities eased to 66.8 per cent, compared with 67.9 per cent last week.

The weekly report of the reserve board on brokers' loans shows an increase of 4 million dollars in the last week. Total loans now stand at 499 million dollars, which is 1 billion 200 million dollars below a year ago, when the total was 1 billion 699 million dollars. The New York banks increased their own loans by 13 million dollars in the last week, while interior banks reduced their loans by 7 million dollars and nonbanking lenders withdrew 2 million dollars.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 2,000; hogs, 16,000; sheep, 9,000.

Swine encountered another sluggish and unsatisfactory market yesterday. In the face of lighter supplies, prices kept slipping all day. They closed on a fully 15@20c lower basis. Spots were off 25c at the finish and many classes established new low marks. The general average price came down 15c to $3.45, equaling last Saturday's average, which was the lowest since January, 1899.

Top hogs were off 10c at $3.80, but still are 10c above the 33½ year bottom, made at the close of last week. Considering quality yesterday, a new low was made for the bulk of the market. Closely sorted light and light butchers reached $3.70@3.80, but most of the better grades of 225@300 lb butchers had to go at $3.35@3.60. Most of the 400@500 lb "packers" changed hands at $2.75@2.90, only sows on the butcher order bringing $3.00@3.20.

Cattle Receipts Smaller.

Cattle receipts were cut down yesterday and the trade perked up a little. Some of the good to choice grades of steers that were hit hardest on the break managed to recover a little of the loss due to the shortage in both numbers and weight. Offerings ran largely to lighter weight cattle. The lack of tonnage encouraged sellers to try to force the whole list higher despite the unsatisfactory condition of the wholesale trade. This tended to slow down trading some and a few loads were carried over. Nothing outstanding was included in receipts, but other choice grades of 1,003 @1,403 lb steers sold at $7.25, the top price. The trade is carrying a nominal quotation of $7.75. Bulk of beef steers brought $5.35@7.00 and common light ranged downward to $4.75, with odd lots of ill bred thin stock below that figure. Butcher stock continued slow and about steady. Most cows sold at $3.25@3.75, only prime smooth kinds at $4.00@4.50. Calves ruled strong to 25c higher.

Lamb Market Stronger.

Aged wool lambs held firm yesterday, while springers ruled steady to 10c higher. Fancy Colorado spring lambs filled a special order at $8.25, while several carloads of choice quality stock from California sold to local packers at $7.75@8.00. Reports from the wholesale market were not encouraging and did not warrant much strength in live lambs, but supplies were short at all centers and buyers could not help themselves. Several loads of Colorado wool lambs sold to shippers at $7.25 and other aged lambs brought $6.75@6.90. Shorn stock sold at $6.40. Old mutton ewes were draggy and lost the slight gain scored Wednesday, with top light ewes back to $2.00 and heavy stock at $1.00.

OCTOBER EGGS HIGHER

October eggs moved up ½c on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, touching 16½c, this year's high, for the third time. Butter was unchanged to ¾c higher. Support in October eggs improved noticeably near the close but liberal offerings came out over the market and the buying slackened. The storage figures improved, the four markets reporting 12,600 cases less than last year. Butter was neglected and the market held steady, despite fairly favorable storage reports and production news. Sales: Butter, 4 cars, 56 cars. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP)—New all time records were broken today in raw sugar when sales were confirmed at a decline of 2 points. The business included 33,300 bags of Porto Rican and 22,500 bags of Philippines in near positions at 2.58c to local refiners. In the absence of any new development in the spot market, futures were comparatively quiet and price movements were narrow and unimportant. The market opened 1 point higher for the May position on a little covering while the later months were unchanged to 1 point lower under liquidation and hedge selling, promoted by the continued liberal offerings in the spot market. Final prices were net unchanged to 1 point lower. The sales aggregated only 6,550 tons. According to cables received here, the Sugar club of Havana places the production in Cuba to April 30 at approximately 2,525,000 tons. Prices follow:

WHEAT PRICES ERRATIC WHILE TRADERS WATCH

Stock Ticker Seems to Get More Attention.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Lack of leadership on either side of the wheat market was quite pronounced yesterday with prices fluctuating erratically within a range of 1⅝@1¾c. An early decline carried all deliveries to a new low since late last March, with the July off 10¼c from the high on April 14. At that time the market was advancing rapidly as the result of the sensational government April crop report.

There was no material pressure on wheat early, but sufficient selling developed from discouraged longs and local operators to cause a sharp break, lack of aggressive support being the dominating influence. On the break there was short covering, and also buying against bids and by commission

OTIS STEEL HEAD ADDS PROTEST ON FOREIGN DUMPING

New York, May 5.—(AP)—Another steel manufacturer today added his voice to the chorus of protest against alleged "dumping" of foreign steel products in the United States. E. J. Kulas, president of the Otis Steel company, cites the increase of 50 per cent in imports of iron and steel products in March as compared with February as evidencing the "urgent necessity" for emergency legislation to check the movement of foreign steel to domestic markets.

The alleged unwillingness of banks to extend credit and the tendency of the steel industry to leave untouched the huge piles of scrap iron and steel on which bank loans once were made have brought the scrap metal industry to the lowest point in its existence, according to Benjamin Schwartz, director general of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, Inc.
